BIG THREE TELL REDS THEY WILL NOT RECOGNIZE EAST GERMANY

Identical Notes Sent to Soviet—First Formal Response to Moscow-Bonn Agreement for Diplomatic Ties.

MOSCOW, Oct. 3 (UP)—The western Big Three formally notified Russia today that they will refuse to recognize Communist East Germany.

The statement, sent in identical notes to the Soviet Foreign Ministry, was the first formal western response to the Russian-West German agreement to establish diplomatic relations.

(The western stand was first spelled out last week at New York after a two-day meeting of the Big Three foreign ministers.)

The notes were understood to underwrite West German Chancellor Adenauer's reservations made at the end of his historic Moscow visit last month. That visit was followed by a Russian announcement granting East Germany full sovereignty.

The notes were reported to make these points:

1. Reaffirmation that the western Big Three will not recognize any German government except that in Bonn.

2. Germany's frontiers will not be definitely established until a peace treaty is signed with all Germany.

3. A request for the Soviet Union to reassure the West that it will respect the four-power agreement for free communications between West Germany and East Germany.

The notes were timed to coincide with Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov's first working day at the Foreign Ministry after his return from the United Nations in New York.

They also were believed to be part of the western preparation for the Big Four foreign ministers' conference at Geneva Oct. 27.

P.O.W. PLANNED BUILDINGS TO KEEP SELF SANE

CHICAGO, Oct. 3 (AP)—An Air Force officer recently released by the Chinese Reds told yesterday how he used daydreams to fight off the mental tortures of his captors.

Capt. Elmer F. Llewellyn, released two months ago after more than 2½ years in a Chinese prison, said he saved himself from madness by spending weeks in detailed planning of various enterprises — supermarkets, drug stores and restaurants.

"I built them in my mind from the ground up, starting with the excavation," he said. "I figured out the number of board feet of lumber needed. I mentally picked out the equipment and then I catalogued every item that would be sold."

Llewellyn, of Missoula, Mont., is visiting relatives here. He said his dreams saved him from mental collapse and kept the Reds from wringing information from him. "They didn't even try to get me to sign anything," he said.

The Chinese made him stand and sit erect for long periods of time, Llewellyn said. He said he was down "to less than 100 pounds" from his normal weight of 165 when he was released.

Polls Open at 6 A.M. Tomorrow On Cigarette Tax, School Plan

Light Vote Expected in State-Wide Referendum on Educational Grants.

(Picture in Everyday Magazine.)

Polls will be open in St. Louis and St. Louis county from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. tomorrow for balloting on two propositions in a statewide referendum.

Referendum No. 1 is a proposal to impose a state tax of 2 cents on each package of cigarettes, effective next Jan. 1. Referendum No. 2 is the school foundation program which would establish a new system of distributing state aid to Missouri's public schools and set up new financing goals calling for increased state educational grants.

The cigarette tax proposition would be needed, proponents say, to help finance the new program of school aid if it is passed by the voters.

On Single Ballot.

Both propositions will be on a single ballot but each must be voted on separately. Simple majorities will be sufficient to pass either proposition. The school foundation program would become effective at once.

To vote in favor of a proposal, the voter places an X in the square in front of the word "for." To vote against the measure, he must place an X in the square in front of the word "against."

This is the first statewide election in which no political candidates appear on the ballot since April 4, 1950, when a measure to increase the state gasoline tax from 2 cents to 4 cents was defeated by the voters. In that election, however, the referendum was forced by popular petition after the tax had been passed by the Legislature. In tomorrow's election the proposals were referred to the voters by the Legislature on its own initiative.

Light Vote Expected.

A light vote is expected in both city and county as well as outstate. The Secretary of State's office in Jefferson City has estimated a turnout of 650,000 or about one-fourth of Missouri's 2,750,000 eligible voters.

The City Hall in St. Louis will be open tomorrow. Municipal and civil courts will be operating as usual.

The school foundation program would provide three types

WHERE TO OBTAIN DATA ABOUT VOTING TOMORROW IN SPECIAL REFERENDUM

CITY voters wanting to know where to cast ballots in tomorrow's special state election on the school and cigarette tax referendum proposals, may obtain the information by telephoning the League of Women Voters office, FO 7-7166, or by calling the city election board office, MA 1-5560.

County voters wanting such information were asked to call the office of the county league, FO 1-4846, or the county election board office, VO 3-6360. Because of the recent revision of many county election precincts, the county league will be unable to furnish its usual service of listing telephone numbers in major county municipalities.

STOCK MARKET DIPS SHARPLY, SHARES DOWN FOUR BILLIONS

Decline Is Third in Succession—Stocks Lose $1 to $6 With Steels and Motors Hardest Hit.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP) — The stock market was hit for sharp losses today as it went down for the third session in a row.

Prices declined around $1 to about $6 a share on pivotal issues.

Volume totaled 2,720,000 shares compared with 2,140,000 Friday.

All Major Divisions Hit.

Steels and motors were the worst sufferers but the setback swept all major divisions of the list. It was just a week ago the market skidded to its worst break since 1929 in reaction to the news of President Eisenhower's heart attack. Today closing prices were around the lows of the day. Largest losses were chalked up in the final 30 minutes of trade.

Bethlehem Steel was off $6.25 at $148, General Motors $5.37 at $137.12, United States Steel $2.25 at $55.50 and Chrysler $3.75 at $99.

DuPont was off $5, Montgomery Ward $2.50, Southern Railway $3.37, American Telephone 75 cents, Kennecott Copper $3.50, Goodyear $2.50, and Allied Chemical $2.25.

Glenn Martin up 25 cents was among the few gainers. Boeing was off $1.75, Standard Oil (N.J.) $3.87 and United States Gypsum, a wide-moving stock, $8.25.

Ticker Tape Lags.

The ticker tape, which normally records transactions within seconds, fell behind as selling hit the market shortly before noon.

The day began slowly with prices down $1 to $3 in quiet early trading. Before the opening, a medical announcement from President Eisenhower's sickbed had stirred new anxiety over his condition. But the early selling slackened as another bulletin from Denver reported the President had slept soundly.

A week ago today the stock market declined sharply on news of Mr. Eisenhower's heart attack. In the two following days, however, the market staged vigorous rallies, recovering about 43 per cent of the decline in the average.

EISENHOWER AWAKENS 'RESTED AND REFRESHED' WITH NO SIGNS OF COMPLICATIONS, DOCTORS SAY

BULLETIN EASES ANXIETY CAUSED BY NIGHT REPORT HE WAS 'TIRED'

Condition 'Remains Satisfactory,' Physicians Assert — Mrs. Eisenhower Visits Him During Breakfast.

DENVER, Oct. 3 (AP)—Anxiety over President Eisenhower's illness eased considerably this morning as physicians reported his condition "showed no changes to indicate complications," and that he appeared "rested and refreshed."

The statement said the Chief Executive's condition "remains satisfactory."

The official report from Fitzsimons Army Hospital at 9:40 a.m. (10:40 a.m., St. Louis time) served to lift tension created when the doctors announced last night that the President was "a little tired" and not feeling "as well as usual."

The statement last evening was the first since he suffered a heart attack a week ago Saturday which failed to say that Mr. Eisenhower was progressing satisfactorily "without complications."

First Two Weeks Critical.

The doctors have said repeatedly that any complications were most likely to develop during the first two weeks after Mr. Eisenhower suffered the attack.

The change in the 64-year-old President's condition last night came on the ninth day of his recovery.

This morning's medical bulletin, about 2 hours and 40 minutes later than usual to permit thorough examination of the President after he awakened late, said this:

"The President slept soundly from 8:45 p.m. to 7:10 a.m., with the exception of a half hour from 4:25 to 4:55 a.m.

"At that time a medical examination showed his temperature, pulse and blood pressure to be normal.

"When he awoke this morning the President felt rested and refreshed.

"His morning examination showed no changes to indicate complications, and his condition remains satisfactory.

"His temperature, pulse and blood pressure continue normal.

"His cardiogram continues to show slow, pregressive evolution.

"The President had a breakfast consisting of a slice of canteloupe, an egg, two strips of beef bacon, a slice of whole wheat toast and a glass of skimmed milk.

Dr. White 'Relieved.'

In Boston, Dr. Paul Dudley White, noted heart specialist, said after his latest telephone check with physicians attending President Eisenhower that "X-rays showed the lungs are clear and the heart shadow the same as the normal record of last year when he was in good health."

In answer to questions Dr. White said "I feel relieved—I was relieved when I received the telephone report."

He said he is making no change in his previously announced plan to return to Denver Saturday, where he again will consult with doctors there.

Dr. White explained today that "to clear up any misunderstanding, the damage (to the President's heart) is in the anterior, not the inside, but the outside, wall of the left ventricle, which pumps blood into the aorta, the main artery."

He borrowed a half dollar from a reporter and held it against his chest, and said "for a guess the damaged area would be about that size and about that position."

"The physicians' examination showed heart sounds of good quality with no rub or murmur (by 'no rub' the doctor explained he meant lack of friction)," he said.

"The lungs were clear. The abdomen was soft. The pulse was 78 and regular and the blood pressure was normal, 130 over 82."

First Gloomy Report.

Last night's announcement at 8:55 p.m. brought a sharp break in the succession of encouraging reports which had been coming from the President's bedside for more than a week. That report said:

"The President is a little tired

HERSHEY REPORTS DRAFTING OF MEN OVER 35 UNLIKELY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (UP) —Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said yesterday that men over 35 would be almost draft-proof in any future war while men 26-to-36 would be used "only selectively."

Drawing on lessons learned in World War II, Hershey said, men under 26 would be the only group "sure" to see military service. He said men 36 and over would be called to uniform only if "we're attacked at home."

"We didn't do that in World War II and I think a lot of our trouble stemmed from that," Hershey said during an interview on a television program.

He presumably referred to charges of inequities stemming from the induction of older men with families as well as the fact that older inductees were unable to keep up with the wartime military pace.

Hershey, who is 62, also was asked if he could foresee the day when it would be possible to abandon the draft. He said in reply that "I frankly have said many times that I don't think I've got enough time left to see the end."

RAG SELLER WINS $19,000 IN ITALY'S SOCCER POOL

LE SPEZIA, Italy, Oct. 3 (AP)—Ideale Cosso, a rag seller who lives with his wife and child in an abandoned bus, learned today he has won $19,000 in Italy's weekly soccer pool.

The 40-year-old Cosso said his wife made their fortune. She picked all 13 winners of Sunday's Class A league games and turned in the 50-lire (8-cent) bet in his name.

He said his first move would be to get a small apartment for his family.

19 KILLED, 16 INJURED IN PERU AIRLINER CRASH

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 3 (AP)—Nineteen persons were killed and 16 injured in the crash of a Fawcett Airline DC-4 on an Andean mountains southeast of Lima yesterday.

Among the dead was James Alexander Seymour of New York City. His wife, Julia, was seriously injured.

Mrs. Cynthia Scholtz, Chilean wife of a Panagra airline official, also was among the injured.

The plane was en route to Cusco when one engine caught fire.

WORTMAN'S CLUB MANAGER CALLED BY GRAND JURY

Tony DiMartino, manager of Frank (Buster) Wortman's Terrace Lounge on the East Side, was subpenaed today to appear Oct. 25 before the federal grand jury in Danville, Ill.

Authorities declined to disclose the reason for calling DiMartino, although United States Attorney Clifford Raemer of East St. Louis previously told the Post-Dispatch his office was anxious to obtain all information possible on Wortman's activities.

The federal grand jury is being impaneled Oct. 25 at Danville to hear matters arising in the Southern Illinois district.

The subpena was served on DiMartino as he appeared at a hearing before United States Commissioner Vera Fellner in East St. Louis on a warrant charging him with unlawful flight from Illinois to avoid prosecution for robbery.

Commissioner Fellner dismissed the charge, because the state robbery warrant had been withdrawn Saturday. The charge grew out of seizure of an automobile by five armed men from England's garage at 805 Exchange avenue, East St. Louis, Sept. 17. The machine had been towed in for being illegally parked in front of the Terrace Lounge, run by Wortman, notorious hoodlum and gangster.

Garage employes said they could not identify DiMartino as one of the five men.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is reported to be interested in circumstances surrounding the taking of the machine, which has not been recovered.

FBI agents are seeking to determine if the car was of any significance in the search for the missing Greenlease ransom. The strongarm methods used to seize the automobile puzzled authorities, since it could have been legally reclaimed by payment of fees and fines totaling $14.

CONGRESSMAN'S SECRETARY INDICTED IN TAX FRAUD

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (UP) — Lennon, secretary and 1954 campaign manager to Representative Adam Clayton Powell (Dem.), New York, was indicted by a federal grand jury today on charges of operating a tax refund mill which cost the Government $15,000 in false claims.

Lennon was indicted last week for evading more than $2000 in personal income taxes through false dependency claims.

The new indictment charges that he counseled 32 persons to present "false individual returns claiming deductions and exemptions which he well knew the taxpayers were not entitled to claim." Assistant United States Attorney Alfred P. O'Hara said Lennon had been paid various sums for his tax counseling services during the years 1951 through 1953.

U.S. OFFICIAL'S DAUGHTER FOUND UNCONSCIOUS, DIES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP) Mary Elizabeth Schottland, 17-year-old daughter of Charles I. Schottland, commissioner of social security, died today at her home shortly after she was found unconscious in her bed.

The body was taken to the district morgue for an autospy. Lt. Lawrence A. Hartnett of the homicide squad said detectives were investigating a possible overdose of sleeping pills as the cause of death.

Her death occured as her father was about to undergo minor surgery at a Washington hospital. He was not informed immediately.

Mink Boots — $426 a Pair.

LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP)—The shoe manufacturers of Britain today opened their forty-sixth fair by unveiling a pair of mink boots that will retail for 152 pounds, five shillings ($426.30).

U.S. SEEKING INFINITE POWER FROM H-BOMB

Scientist Says Energy, if Freed, Could Fill World's Needs for Billion Years.

By GEORGE H. HALL,
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3—The United States is engaged in a major effort to bend the energies contained in a hydrogen bomb to peaceful pursuits, Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission announced today.

Complete success of the project would mean, in the words of a scientist connected with the program, that the power requirements of mankind would be satisfied virtually forever.

Strauss said American scientists do not know as of today how this may be done. They are working on some ideas and awaiting the germination of others. Strauss said estimates of how long it will take to achieve success have varied from one to 1000 years, but that his own guess would be on the order of 20 years.

Process Explained.

Prof. Lyman Spitzer Jr. of Princeton University, one of five institutions where research is under way, said in a statement distributed by Strauss at a press conference:

"By far the greatest reserve of stored energy on earth is locked up in the nuclei of the hydrogen atoms present in the oceans. Deep inside the sun and stars hydrogen nuclei combine to form helium nuclei, releasing vast energies.

"This combination, or fusion, of light nuclei is called 'thermonuclear burning.' The Titanic energies released by thermonuclear burning have been unleashed in the hydrogen bomb.

"Thermonuclear burning occurs most readily with deuterium, a heavy isotope of hydrogen. Although only deuterium nucleus is present in water for every 6400 nuclei of ordinary hydrogen, the total amount of deuterium available in the oceans is enormous.

Power for Billion Years.

"If the energy stored in these nuclei could be released in a controlled manner and used for generation of electrical power, a virtually inexhaustible supply of power would be available to mankind. Conservatively estimated, the deuterium in the ocean's waters is sufficient to provide many times the present rate of world energy consumption for more than a billion years."

The burning described by Dr. Spitzer occurs only at enormous temperatures, from 100,000,000 degrees upward. Such temperatures have existed only in the centers of hot stars or in the explosion of an atomic bomb.

To convert the energy in deuterium into useful power such temperatures must be attained in a gas confined within walls that will remain relatively cool.

SOVIET SCIENTIFIC EXPEDITION WILL GO TO ANTARCTIC

LONDON, Oct. 3 (UP)—A Russian expedition will leave next month to set up scientific bases in the Antarctic, the Moscow radio reported today.

The Soviet scientists will take aircraft, tractors, amphibious vehicles and helicopters. Following an international Antarctic committee recommendation, the main Soviet shore base will be between 80 and 105 degrees eastern longitude. Two other bases may be set up in the interior.

The Soviet expedition, which will sail aboard the steamer Ob and an auxiliary vessel, is expected to reach the Antarctic ice mass early in January.

Other countries also exploring Antarctica are the United States, Britain, France, New Zealand, Australia, Chile, Argentina and Japan.

"Soviet scientists are ready to fulfill with honor the task entrusted to them by the motherland regarding a comprehensive study of a hitherto almost unexplored part of the Antarctic continent," the broadcast said.

STRATTON IRKED AT SOFTER POLICY ON TRUCK LOADS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 3 (AP)—Gov. William G. Stratton said today he will demand an explanation from State Police Chief Phil M. Brown for permitting up to 1000 pounds tolerance on truck weights.

Brown now is in Philadelphia attending a police convention.

"I'll expect a very satisfactory explanation," Stratton said. "I want to know why the policy was intituted, what the reasons were and why it wasn't cleared with me."

He said he learned about the order through a Chicago Sun-Times story, which said it was issed by Brown last February.

Stratton pointed out that despite strong support in the Legislature, he had vetoed bills which would have allowed truckers without penalty to exceed the axle weight limitation up to 1000 pounds if the overload could be shown as due to unavoidable shifting of cargo.

Joseph D. Bibb, state safety director, said he did not authorize the policy instituted by Brown.

NIXON STRESSES 'GOVERNMENT AS USUAL' AGAIN

He Goes to the White House to Talk With Eisenhower's Congressional Aid.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP) —Vice President Richard M. Nixon arranged to stop off at the White House today for what he termed a routine conference with President Eisenhower's chief congressional aid.

The informal talk with Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons (Ret.) was arranged before last night's announcement in Denver that Mr. Eisenhower "did not feel as well as usual."

"It is going to be my practice to go by the White House to go over routine matters," Nixon told reporters.

Earlier, the Vice President declared that during the first week of Mr. Eisenhower's enforced absence "things have gone smoothly and Government business has been carried on without delays or interruptions."

Nixon hit this "Government as usual" note, much as he had a week ago, in talking with reporters after he and his family attended church services yesterday.

"I can say without qualification," he added, "that every official of the Government with whom I have been in contact has had only one goal in mind, and that is to see that the Government ran in a way just as close as possible to the way we think the President would have wanted it to run under such circumstances."

"Usually in past American history" where similar circumstances have arisen "there have been internal disputes and jealousies," Nixon said. He did not elaborate.

In a separate statement, the Vice President announced that the National Equal Economic

Concert Crowd but No Concert, Date Mixup in Webster Groves

Almost everybody was ready for the opening performance last night of Webster Groves annual community concert series — everybody except one rather essential person.

While 900 patrons sat in the high school auditorium waiting for the music to begin, the scheduled performer, Mildred Miller, mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera, was sitting quietly at home in Arlington, Va., with her husband and their two children.

Her peaceful evening suddenly was disturbed by a telephone call from worried concert officials. The startled singer gulped and hastily re-checked her contract. Sure enough, as she had thought, it said Oct. 16.

Told of the artist's whereabouts, Webster Groves music lovers went home good naturedly to await the arrival of Oct. 16.

Concert officials today checked their contract and found that, like the singer's, it read Oct. 16. Moreover, violinist Michael Rabin—billed for Oct. 16—actually is scheduled for Oct. 30.

An error was made in listing the dates on the tickets and programs for the series, it was explained, an error that will mean added business for Webster Groves baby sitters.

Russians Mix U.S. Jazz, Vodka In First Nightclub Since War

MOSCOW, Oct. 3 (UP)—Solid Soviet citizens made merry to the tune of American jazz at the opening of Moscow's first nightspot since before World War II this weekend.

A 26-piece American-style jazz band in white jackets blared out such American oldies as "Lady in Red," "Dipsy Doodle," "Caravan," and "Night and Day."

Waiters in tuxedos with black satin lapels scurried with vodka, caviar, smoked salmon and broiled chicken to feed some 500 prosperous Muscovites gathered for the opening of the New Yar night club.

The new restaurant, in the swank Sovietskaya Hotel building, is located on the same spot as the pre-revolutionary Yar, famous for its gypsy fiddling. Old-timers say the room is just the same as it was in the time of the Czars.

The floor show is different. Instead of gypsy music, the New Yar features a hip-shaking Russian songstress in a daring sheer white gown and a handsome crooner in white tie and tails.

Prices are fairly high. A dinner of caviar, chicken and ice cream cost 40 rubles ($10 by the official exchange rate), drinks are extra and there is a 20-ruble ($5) entertainment charge.

But the prices didn't seem to bother and well-heeled first night crowd of successful professional and artistic people who carried their merry-making into the wee hours of the morning.

TOMMYGUNNERS GUARD PERON AFTER FLIGHT TO PARAGUAY

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Oct. 3 (AP)—Juan D. Peron, the toppled Argentine dictator, took up residence in exile here today behind a guard of police and tommygunners.

The weary one-time strongman was flown here yesterday in a Paraguayan amphibian plane 13 days after he had taken refuge aboard a Paraguayan gunboat in the Rio de la Plata at Buenos Aires. His departure had been delayed while Argentine and Paraguayan officials straightened out the technicalities of his asylum.

The new Argentine government of provisional President Eduardo Lonardi obviously hoped Peron would not tarry long in Paraguay, just across the Parana and Paraguay rivers from Argentina. A communique from Lonardi's regime said it was "confident" Paraguay would prevent Peron from "being an obstacle to friendly relations" between the two countries.

May Go to Spain.

There have been suggestions that Peron might go ultimately to Spain or Switzerland.

Peron's pilot on the flight was Comdr. Cosne Migliori, an Argentine who went into exile after an unsuccessful revolt against Peron in 1951. The first word greeting the former president as he emerged from the plane was a jeering insult from another Argentile exile.

Peron paid no heed. Looking somewhat wan, he saluted to the right and left and smiled at the few officials who greeted him at Campo Grande military airport. He entered a black Lincoln automobile for the nine-mile ride into the city. A few townspeople were gathered along the route to watch the procession, but there were no cheers.

The United Press said Peron's first act in exile was to call on Paraguay's President Gen. Alfredo Stroessner and thank him for giving him a place of refuge.)

Later today Peron planned to hold his first news conference since he was ousted.

Little Social Life.

He was housed in a new three-story residence belonging to Ricardo Gayol, Argentine textile importer. The property has a small garden and swimming pool. Asuncion affords little of the social excitement offered by the Argentine capital. This city of 114,000 still has many of the aspects of a Spanish colonial center of the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries.

Peron's only companions on the flight to exile were Juan Chaves, Paraguayan ambassador to Argentina, and Maj. Ignacio Cialceta, the fallen dictator's aide.

Dressed in a brown windbreaker and tan slacks, the ex-President went aboard the amphibian from the gunboat early yesterday afternoon. The gunboat had steamed three miles upriver for the rendezvous. The transfer was watched at a distance by a small cluster of newsmen and observers.

Peron, who dislikes flying, landed in Asuncion five hours and 35 minutes later.

Back in the Argentine capital the press and the government were still busily uncovering angles of Peron's personal and financial affairs.

Called Himself 'The Man.'

The Buenos Aires newspaper La Razon quoted Nelida (Nelly) Rivas, 16-year-old high school girl who has been linked to the dictator's love life, as saying he liked to call himself "the Man."

She said Peron, who will celebrate his sixtieth birthday on Oct. 8, was a generous lover who gave her some of the jewelry of his wife, Eva, who died of cancer in 1952. Police said they had found jewelry and cash worth $46,000 in Nelly's apartment.

A fortress-like hidaway of the former President in the basement of the Alae Publishing Co. building in Buenos Aires was opened to the public by the government. The steel and concrtte structure was stocked with food and had its own independent power, heat and ventilating systems so Peron could remain for days if he chose.

U.S. FIRM TO TAKE SWASTIKA OFF TOY PLANES FOR REICH

BONN, Oct. 3 (AP)—A United States manufacturer has agreed to stop shipping toy aircraft bearing swastika markings to West Germany after investigation by the State Department.

The United States embassy referred the matter to Washington after a Socialist deputy complained in Parliament about sale of the toys in Bonn.

Today the embassy said the United States firm "has agreed to eliminate swastikas from impressions of further plastic toys." It declined to identify the firm but said it never had shipped the toys direct to West Germany. They were sold to firms in Holland and resold to German firms.

'Newspaper Boy Day.'

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 3 (AP)—Gov. Phil M. Donnelly today proclaimed next Saturday as "National Newspaper Boy Day" in Missouri.

Peron's Sweetheart Guarded Against Assassination Attempts —Associated Press Radiophoto.

Police Think Dictator's Henchmen May Try to Kill Nelly in Hope of Salvaging Hero Legend.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 3—Argentine police are guarding Nelida (Nelly) Rivas, Juan D. Peron's 16-year-old mistress, to protect her from assassination by armed Peronistas.

They are operating on the assumption that some of Peron's secret agents may try to kill her to prevent her from testifying publicly about her relations with the fallen dictator.

Miss Rivas, in the hands of the new government, is perhaps the most valuable single weapon it has for destroying the popularity which Peron retained among the Argentine masses even after his overthrow and flight.

Blowing Up Cult of Peron.

Peron's affair with Miss Rivas, is having the effect of blowing up the cult of Peron and his late wife Evita.

Following Evita's death three years ago, Peron sought to transform her into the character of a saint who would attract the undying political support of Argentine workers for her supposedly loyal husband.

Once the faith of the workers in Peron's integrity has been undermined he could never hope to recover power in Argentina. That is why his fanatical lieutenants would seek to silence Nelly Rivas. But the chances are that they already are too late.

The story is out. And it is this story rather than the reports of all the corruption which is likely to remain for many years in the memories of Argentines.

Girl Friend's Warning.

Several days before Miss Rivas was picked up by the police, a correspondent was put in touch with her closest girl friend who disclosed some of the details of Nelly's relations with Peron.

She described Nelly as rather short of stature and said she is not pretty but extraordinarily voluptuous.

The informant, who is several years older than Nelly, said they became friends at a club for secondary school girls which Peron established in his presidential villa at Olivos, a suburb of Buenos Aires.

According to her account, it was Nelly rather than Peron who made the first move.

She said Peron came to the club two or three times a week to lunch with the girls and to join them in various sports, such as swimming and motor scooter racing.

Says There Was No Immorality.

Nelly's friend insisted that no immorality was committed at the club by Peron or any of his cabinet ministers, who also frequented the premises. The club was closed to outsiders and especially to other men.

Other members of the club, which was formally called Union of Secondary School Students, said they had seen no evidence of immorality during the hours they were there.

One day when Peron came for lunch, according to her friend's account, Nelly, then 13, insisted on sitting next to him at the table. She told Peron she was fascinated by his eyes.

Later, Nelly sat on the floor and propped her head against Peron's knees as they watched a film.

That was the beginning of their attachment, according to this account. The friend maintained that Peron was completely devoted to Nelly and showered gifts on her. These apparently included the vast quantity of jewels which the police seized in Nelly's home.

The friend said Nelly lived for a while with Peron in his presidential quarters in Buenos Aires. When Cabinet ministers and other associates called there she was presented to them as Peron's niece.

Withdrew From Club.

Once Nelly entered into intimate relations with Peron, her friend said, she withdrew from the sports club at Olivos and very seldom appeared there.

By the Associated Press.

The Newspaper O Globo of Rio de Janiero today quoted Nelly as declaring "If he calls me, I will go anywhere in the world to be at his side."

Nelly told the reporter: "I am at the disposition of my great friend and benefactor, Peron. If he goes to Paraguay, as he said in the letters intercepted by the police, and if he calls me—wherever it be—I will go resolutely to make him happy for the rest of his life."

O Globo quoted Nelly as saying of her visit to Peron's Palermo mansion:

"These were dream days for me. I never thought of Peron as the president or a politician. I always treated him and saw him as a man. It is unimportant what they say today: that he was a tyrant. I know him only as a man with a warm humanitarian heart. I would give my life for his happiness."

Later she moved to the mansion.

"Like any woman I was dazzled by what I saw," she said. "Even if I should die now I could say I have lived two years of bedazzlement. Few women in the world have had such a sweet life in such a little time. Peron loved me as a father loves a daughter. He demanded that everyone in the palace treat me with complete respect. I lived there like an empress in an enchanted kingdom. I called him papa, through affection."

BONN SAYS RUSSIA WILL FREE ITS P.O.W.S OCT. 9

BONN, Oct. 3 (UP)—The Bonn Government announced officially today that the first German war prisoners will arrive home from the Soviet Union on Oct. 7 or 8.

A Government spokesman said the Soviet embassy in Paris passed on this information to the West German embassy there.

He said all of the 8877 prisoners who have been granted "amnesty" by the Supreme Soviet would be released during October.

SPEEDUP FORCED IN POST OFFICES, UNION DECLARES

System Threatens Complete Breakdown of Mail Service, Official Charges.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—The AFL Federation of Post Office Clerks today accused the Post Office Department of imposing a "speedup system" on postal workers which threatens "a complete breakdown of the postal service."

E. C. Hallbeck, the union's legislative director, made the charge in the October issue of the organization's monthly magazine, the Union Postal Clerk.

He said "the speedup has been put into effect under cover of the department's work performance standards program instituted two years ago."

A Post Office Department spokesman, public relations director L. Rohe Walter, commented that the work performance program is not an unfair speedup but a still-underway attempt to "develop a reasonable standard of performance" in mail distribution by clerks throughout the country. In some post offiecs a clerk distributes 50 per cent more mail than in others, he said, and "we're tying to determine what is a fair day's work so we can have a reasonable standard to go by."

"If there's any place where there's undue fatigue or hardship, we could certainly hope that it would be brought to our attention," Walter said.

Hallbeck's article said the union will seek a "thorough investigation" by both the Senate and the House post office committees because of "the hopelessness of any corrective action through administrative channels."

It said that despite "rebuffs" from the department in attempts to get information, the union has compiled tentative figures in 22 cities "comparing quotas with actual production."

"Even with due allowance for minor errors," the union official said, . . . the established quotas are far in excess of what any one clerk could reasonably be expected to produce in a single hour, let alone each of eight hours five days a week.

"A continuation of the current speedup system may eventually so reduce morale as to result in a complete breakdown of the postal service."

Hallbeck said "far better results" could be obtained by placing those "taken out of production" in developing the work performance standards "back on productive work and giving the employe some reason to believe that his good work is appreciated."

Walter denied that "quotas" had been imposed under the program. He said it was a study not yet completed.

IRAN'S SHAH TO VISIT RUSSIA

TEHRAN, Oct. 3 (AP)—A court announcement said today Shah Reza Pahlevi and Queen Soraya will visit Russia next June and July.

"In order to strengthen Iran-Soviet friendly relations, the Shah and Queen Soraya have accepted (Soviet president) Marshal Voroshilov's invitation to visit Moscow," the announcement said.

Hints Civilians Won't Be Freed Unless Talks at Geneva Are Expanded.

TOKYO, Oct. 3 (UP)—Communist China hinted today that the United States must agree to Communist demands to expand negotiations at Geneva if it expects to get back all of the American civilians still held by the Peiping Government.

The hint appeared in the official Communist newspaper People's Daily and was broadcast by the Peiping radio.

The newspaper's "Observer" criticized American "stalling tactics" at the Geneva talks and attacked United States refusal to discuss the United Nations trade embargo of Red China or a possible meeting of Chou En-lai and John Foster Dulles.

Peiping promised to release 41 American civilians but so far only 15 have crossed the border and there has been no word on the remaining 26.

"Policy of Leniency."

"China has adhered consistently to a policy of leniency toward these Americans" said the newspaper which always reflects official Red Chinese thinking.

"It is only in the circumstances of the improvement of relations between China and the United States that this policy can be made more lenient."

Then it warned:

"If the United States persists in stalling in the constructive advance of the talks on the pretext that the agreement has not yet been carried out, this will not only turn the talks into a dreary negative performance but also be of no help to carrying out the agreement."

The newspaper said the United States had suggested a time limit for release of all Americans held in Red China.

Reference to "Rights."

"But the Chinese side naturally strongly rejected this demand inasmuch as it violates the inalienable sovereign rights of any country to deal with foreign nationals guilty of violations of domestic law," the Communist paper said.

"China can under no circumstances agree to any encroachment of this right and American threats not to proceed with the talks unless such Americans are released clearly are of no avail.

"The Chinese proposal to discuss the embargo and higher level talks represents efforts to ease the tension between China and the United States."

The newspaper also accused the United States of refusing to allow Chinese students in America to return to the Red mainland despite the Geneva agreement. Actually the State Department has said all those who want to leave may but only a small percentage has done so.

FAURE, PINAY PUT OFF TRIP TO MOSCOW, U.N. IS BLAMED

Paris Says Decision on Algeria Makes Visit Unfavorable Now — Premier Faces Trouble From Parliament.

PARIS, Oct. 3 (AP)—The French Foreign Office announced today the proposed visit of Premier Faure and Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay to Moscow has been postponed. The announcement was made after Pinay had received the charge d'affaires of the Soviet embassy to give him the news.

The Foreign Ministry said the French Government thought it preferable to put off the visit to a later date. The explanation was that the government considers, in view of recent events in the United Nations and the reaction of French opinion, the atmosphere is not favorable now for a trip of this type.

The trip had been scheduled for Oct. 14-16.

Russian Vote on Algeria.

Russia voted with the majority last Friday in a 28-to-27 vote in the U.N. General Assembly to debate troubles in Algeria. France insists Algeria is an integral part of France and Assembly debate about it would be a violation of the U.N. Charter provision barring interference in the internal affairs of any member state.

As a result of the vote, the French government withdrew its delegation to the Assembly, and also its permanent delegation, but kept one foot in the U.N. door.

The French press was loudly indignant over the U.N. vote. Only the extreme left criticized the government action, although some non-Communist papers opposed French withdrawal from the U.N.

Cabinet's Action.

The Cabinet last night announced withdrawal of its U.N. delegation and an end to participation in all activities of the international organization except those of the Security Council, its Disarmament Commission and subcommittee and its military staff committee.

The communique left the door open for France's return and avoided any mention of withdrawal from the U.N. as a whole. By remaining in the Security Council, France kept its preferred position as one of the five veto-holding permanent members.

The bitter decisions were taken as bloody fighting broke out anew in Morocco, the most restless of France's North African territories. Armed guerrilla bands attacked at least five French outposts in a new development of the nationalist campaign against French rule.

These developments promised serious trouble for Premier Faure when the National Assembly comes back tomorrow from its parliamentary vacation. Many members are breathing fire over government policies aimed at soothing North African nationalism while others think the government has moved too slowly.

Fireworks Predicted.

The National Assembly will be busy with organizational matters this week, but after that the fireworks may begin. Assembly dissatisfaction with North African affairs has caused more than one French government to topple.

The Cabinet, meeting with President Rene Coty in the chair, decided to withdraw the U.N. delegation after nine members of the delegation returned to Paris. Those coming home included Pinay and Herve Alphand, head of the permanent representation and October president of the security council.

The U.N. Assembly's vote to look into affairs in Algeria aroused the French fury because under France's constitution Algeria is an integral part of the nation, not a colonial territory.

"France will not permit having its territorial unity put on trial," Pinay declared as he arrived here. "Algeria is just as much a part of France as California is a part of the United States," a Foreign Office official added.

Referring to a preponderance of Asian and Arab votes in the U.N. Assembly action, Pinay said it was evident there was need of a "change in the operation of that institution." Otherwise, he continued, "the territorial unity of all countries may be put on trial by just any nation which could stir up nationalism."

Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, who arrived in Paris en route from New York to Moscow, told reporters the Russians voted to include Algeria in the Assembly agenda "because we are against aggravation of the problem. We are convinced France will settle the affair itself and that a settlement will bring about an improvement in relations among all countries."

These soft words did not soften Pinay. He said he was tired of "slaps in the face one day and smiles the next."

Spaak Supports France's Action On United Nations.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 2 (UP) — Henri Spaak said today that Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-France's recall of its United Nations delegation was "a good thing."

"France has done only what it should have done," Spaak said when he arrived here by air from New York.

He added that the U.N. General Assembly decision to debate the Algerian situation was "somewhat excessive."

U.N. Delegates Deplore Absence of France.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 3 (AP) — United Nations delegates speaking in the General Assembly's final round of policy debates today deplored France's absence from the hall in a protest boycott over the Assembly's Algerian stand.

Osten Unden, Sweden's foreign minister, led off with "deep regrets that the deliberations of this Assembly last Friday have caused the declaration by the French government which has just been published. . . . I feel we all hope a solution will soon be found to this abnormal situation."

Unden's prepared text said the French had sent a communication to the U.N. on the situation. U.N. officials said there had been no direct word from the French. U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold still withheld any comment.

Mohamed Ali, Pakistan's ambassador to the United States, told the Assembly, "The Pakistan delegation views with regret and concern the absence of the French delegation from the General Assembly." He said he hoped it would return.

"Without the full participation of France in all of the organs of the United Nations," said Ali, "this organization would be greatly handicapped."

Pakistan was the first country to express such concern among those that voted Friday in favor of an Assembly debate on Algeria. That vote led to the French walkout.

There are some evidences of behind-scenes activity to smooth over the situation but U.N. and diplomatic sources were wary about discussing them.

A United States delegation spokesman said "I cannot say anything about what we are doing about it."

A few delegates looked for some kind of an olive branch from India's V. K. Krishna Menon, last speaker in the policy debates late today. The Indians voted against the French and as one of the leaders in the Arab-Asian bloc could lead a movement for letting up on the Algerian issue and thus induce the French to come back.

JUDGE IS CALLED IN HOUSE GROUP'S PUBLIC INQUIRY ON POLICE FORCE

McLaughlin Due to Testify Tonight—Connor to Appear—Committee Turns Down Offer by Long.

Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin, presiding judge of the criminal division of circuit court, will be a witness tonight before a special State House committee named to investigate the St. Louis Police Department, State Representative Jennie S. Walsh, committee chairman, told the Post-Dispatch today.

She said the only other witness scheduled by the committee for the opening of its inquiry is James W. Connor, operating director of the St. Louis Crime Commission.

The hearing will start at 8 p.m. at Hotel Kingsway and will be open to the public.

"We think Judge McLaughlin can give us a lot of information on the crime situation in St. Louis and the way it has been handled by the Police Department," Mrs. Walsh said.

Connor on Outmoded Laws.

Connor told the Post-Dispatch he plans to give the committee his views concerning the "obsolescence of laws relating to the St. Louis Police Department." These laws, most of which do not apply in the same manner to Kansas City police department, have the effect of hindering operations, he stated.

Tonight's meeting is the only session scheduled by the committee this week, Mrs. Walsh said. The members will decide, after hearing the first witnesses, on future meetings, she pointed out.

The committee tonight also will consider a letter received from I. A. Long, Police Board president. Long invited the members to tour headquarters and to discuss with him and other police officials all matters pertaining to the department and the crime situation.

Mrs. Walsh's Comment.

Commenting on Long's letter, Mrs. Walsh said the other day that "it's like offering a kid a piece of candy and taking him on a tour of the building." She declared the committee is not interested in touring police headquarters.

The Police Board has challenged the committee's legal status on the basis of opinions by State Attorney General John M. Dalton and City Counselor Samuel H. Liberman.

Dalton held the House resolution to create the investigating group was invalid because it had not been passed by the Senate and approved by the Governor.

Long told the Post-Dispatch no representative of the Police Department had been invited to attend tonight's session of the committee and that he intended to send no one.

1300 HERE PROTEST VERDICT FREEING TWO IN TILL KILLING

An appeal protesting against the verdict freeing two white men charged with the killing of 14-year-old Emmett L. Till was made by about 1300 Negroes at a meeting last night at Union Memorial Methodist Church, 203 North Leffingwell avenue.

Directed to the President and the Attorney General, the appeal cited what it called "the recent unwarranted and brutal killings of Negro citizens . . . a reign of terror against Negroes," and said that "white supremacy is on the ascendancy." It urged the Government to "take some action for legislation and its enactment."

Roy Bryant and John W. Milam were found not guilty of murdering Till, a Negro, in Sumner, Miss.

Mayor's Memento From Munich

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

MAYOR RAYMOND R. TUCKER, just back from Europe, points to souvenir menu from famed Hofbrauhaus restaurant at Munich, Germany. He complimented Germans on their beer, but told them best in world was made in St. Louis.

Cleanliness of German Streets Amazed Visitors, Tucker Says

U.S. Officials Hesitated to Throw Away Cigarettes—People Apparently Happy and Prosperous.

Touring American municipal officials found German cities so clean that they hesitated to discard cigarettes on the streets, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker said admiringly today as he returned to his desk at City Hall.

The impression of neatness and good order was one of many the Mayor brought back from a five-week trip abroad, during which he and six other city officials were guests of the German government.

It was Mayor Tucker's first visit to Europe and he emphasized that his brief sojourn did not qualify him as an expert. However, he said West Germans appeared happy and prosperous. They have, he added, done a remarkable job of reconstruction.

The Americans landed at Dusseldorf, then inspected Bonn, Cologne, Hamburg, Berlin, Munich, Stuttgart, Heidelberg and Essen. Mayor Tucker also paid a call at Garmisch-Partenkirchen and went to Rome, Italy, as delegate to the International Congress of Local Authorities.

Home in 24 Hours.

"One of the most amazing things was the speed of the flight home," said the mayor, obviously glad to be back. "We started from Rome at 3:45 p.m. Thursday and were in St. Louis at 3:45 p.m. Friday."

In Germany under State Department auspices, Mayor Tucker and his colleagues from various American cities went through a rigorous schedule. They walked many miles, were wined and dined, and compared notes with German officials on sewage, water supply, housing and taxation.

Since St. Louis has voted $1,000,000 in bonds for a planetarium and is in the market for a projector, Mayor Tucker spent 50 minutes at the noted Hamburg Planetarium, listening to a very thorough lecture and watching the instrument go through its paces.

He also visited the Carl Zeiss Co. plant at Oberkochen, near Stuttgart, where the projectors are made. Outside of Cologne, he inspected an experimental monorail train. The monorail had been suggested as a solution to this city's mass transport problem.

Few German cities have speed limits for vehicular traffic, Mayor Tucker found. One Burgomeister told him the solution for narrow streets was to have the machines go faster. "How about the pedestrians?" the American asked.

Some Cities Rebuilding.

"They'll have to take care of themselves," was the reply. In general, Mayor Tucker learned that some German cities are rebuilding with wide streets and modern buildings, while others are having trouble replanning because older people want things the way they were before the bombings.

A major lesson of his trip, the mayor said, was that it behooved people of different nations to be tolerant of one another. "We shouldn't be critical," he said, "because they don't do things our way."

At the Pope's summer residence near Rome, Castel Gandolfo, Mayor Tucker and the mayor of Cologne were received in private audience. Later, the St. Louisan attended a public audience in the courtyard. He heard the Pope address an audience in Italian, French, Spanish and English.

$1.75 for Best Dish.

Mayor Tucker was impressed by the purchasing power of the German mark, which is about 24 cents in American money but represents about a dollar in terms of what it will buy. At the Hofbrauhaus in Munich, internationally famous, he had Sweinzungerl und Kraut mit Kartoffelbrei for about 60 cents. The highest priced dish in the house, steak for two with all the trimmings, was about $1.75.

When the mayor, wishing to uphold the honor of St. Louis, asked for a small glass of beer, he received a quart stein. He told the Munich Burgomeister it was wonderful, but insisted that St. Louis made the best beer in the world.

Mayor Tucker speaks a little German from his school days, so it was up to him to act as spokesman at innumerable banquets. One of his colleagues, the mayor of another American city, always presented a huge key to his municipality at these affairs. Tucker, however, had a supply of tiny keys to St. Louis and he invariably got in the last word.

"Der grosste Stadt gibt ihnen den kleinste Schlussel," the mayor would say. In English, this meant, "The largest city is giving you the smallest key," and it was usually good for a roar of laughter.

50 MOTHERS HALT AUTOS SO PUPILS CAN CROSS STREET

Fifty militant mothers, some with infants in arms, held up traffic despite impatient honking of motorists this morning at Weleba avenue and Florissant road, Cool Valley, to permit school children to cross the highway in safety. Cool Valley is a village near Ferguson.

Stretching across the highway in a solid line, the mothers saw the youngsters safely across the road whenever groups up to 10 collected. Machines piled up 15 deep at times. The women carried homemade placards daubed with shoe polish, some reading: "Death vs. Delay," "Give the Children a Chance to Grow Up" and "Let's Be Safe, Not Sorry."

The demonstration, which is to be carried out three times daily, was part of a long-continued drive to obtain an electric signal that would serve two schools, one public and the other, now nearing completion, parochial. Latest word from the State Highway department, the mothers said, was that an electric signal could not be erected at the spot because Weleba does not continue west of Florissant.

FINED FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Allen S. Glumm, of the 2100 block of South Third street, pleaded guilty of driving when intoxicated and was fined $200 today by Police Judge Morris Rosenthal, who also suspended his driver's license for 90 days. Glumm was arrested last Tuesday after his automobile collided with another at North Broadway and Taylor avenue.

TRAFFIC RECORD HARD HIT WHEN 12 DIE IN 21 DAYS

St. Louis's traffic safety record for 1955 will be one of the worst "in years" if the current fatality rate—12 in the last 21 days—is maintained for the rest of the year, the Safety Council of Greater St. Louis said yesterday.

Louis H. Antoine, chairman of the council's street and highway committee and former council president, said that while the number of traffic deaths so far this year—64—is 10 less than at this time last year, the toll as of last Sept. 10 was 20 less than in the corresponding period in 1954.

Thus the margin of improvement over last year has been cut in half and total deaths for the year, if the current rate is maintained, will be 109 compared with 102 in 1954, he pointed out.

"None of the recent fatalities should be looked on as just a statistic," Antoine added. "The victims were loved neighbors who did not have to die."

ARCHER KILLS DEER, IS TOO EXCITED TO RECALL DISTANCE

Elmer C. Curran, 4950 Claxton avenue, killed a deer with a bow and arrow in Washington county, near the Greenley fire tower, the Missouri Conservation Commission reported today.

Curran downed the 100-pound doe with an arrow from his 46-pound bow but was so excited he could not remember the distance of his shot, the commission said.

His deer was the second shot since the opening of Missouri's season for archers Saturday. The first was killed by Floy McGibney of Houston, Mo., who fired an arrow from his perch in a tree and brought down a doe near the Texas-Pulaski county line.

The archery season ends Oct. 31. The regular hunting season for deer in Missouri will be Nov. 1 through 5.

STATE CONVICTS STAGE TWO-HOUR DEMONSTRATION

Demand TV Set, Better Commissary Service and Tranfer of Guards.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 3 — Convicts in the state penitentiary here carried on a noisy demonstration for about two hours last night, demanding a television set, transfer of guards and better commissary service within the prison.

Warden Ralph N. Eidson said about 30 convicts in B and C hall started the demonstration, which spread briefly to one adjoining cellblock. B and C hall, a double cellblock, was one of the centers of the disastrous convict uprising on Sept. 22, 1955.

The convicts yelled and pounded on cell bars with buckets and cell furniture. The disturbance continued at intervals from 9 o'clock. Several windows in B and C hall were broken and some of the electric light globes smashed.

Commissary service within the prison, for sale of candy, tobacco and other articles to inmates, has been conducted only on the recreation grounds since the 1955 riots. In that uprising a large commissary was destroyed by convict-set fires which damaged or destroyed virtually all of the prison shops.

"They burn down the commissary, then they want a new commissary," Warden Eidson said.

Demands also were shouted by the convicts for three meals a day on Saturdays and Sundays, when holiday schedules are followed within the prison. On those days two regular meals, breakfast and dinner, are served in the mess halls and the convicts are issued sandwiches to take to their cells for an evening lunch.

Four convicts were ordered transferred to O hall, better known as "the hole," for disciplinary action pending further investigation of the disturbance, the warden said.

THIEVES OPEN TWO SAFES, STEAL CONTENTS IN STORE

Burglary of two safes in the Central Hardware store at 4200 Union boulevard was reported to police today. Eighty-one dollars was taken from one on the first floor, and an undetermined amount of cash and checks from one in the second-floor office.

The manager, George Wiehe, discovered the loss this morning. There was no evidence of forced entry into the store, and the safes were opened without damage, evidently by someone who knew the combinations, police said.

INVESTIGATORS ON WAY HERE FOR INQUIRY ON J ETS

Due at McDonnell Today or Tomorrow — Stopping at Westinghouse First.

Staff investigators assigned by the House subcommittee on military operations planned to be in St. Louis late today or tomorrow morning for a preliminary inquiry at McDonnell Aircraft Corp. on the Navy's difficulties with one type of jet fighter plane produced there.

The investigators were making their first stop at Kansas City, at the gas turbine division of Westinghouse Electric Corp., which manufactured the engines used in the plane, the F3H-1N Demon, a model superseded by the F3H-2N, which uses an Allison engine. The Allison is made by a division of General Motors.

The Navy has said the Westinghouse engine was not powerful enough to fly the plane, as tests showed in December 1953, but the Navy continued to accept that model until last June, and an inquiry has been started by a Senate subcommittee as well as that of the House.

Fifty of the original Demons, which cost about $67,000,000, have been grounded, and the Navy has announced that it plans to put more powerful engines in 29 of them and use the others for ground training.

The McDonnell Demon was not the only type on which a large amount of money was lost through engine difficulties. Secretary of the Navy Charles S. Thomas told a House subcommittee last February that $28,000,000 spent in developing the Grumman F10F was a total loss.

Westinghouse officials in the home office at Pittsburgh have declined to make any public statement on the current inquiry. They said recently they are developing a new jet engine and have great hopes for it.

Westinghouse announced over the weekend the employment of Adm. Robert B. Carney, who retired Aug. 17 as chief of naval operations, as a consultant to work on a part-time basis. His salary was not announced.

Gwilym A. Price, president of the company, said: "Because of Adm. Carney's long and varied background in the Navy we know that he will be able to give us much practical guidance, particularly from the standpoint of operational requirements for military equipment."

208 Killed in Mountains.

ROME, Oct. 3 (AP)—The mountains of western Europe have taken the lives of 208 vacationers so far in 1955. Austria has recorded the highest toll, 58. Most of the victims were on climbing expeditions.

PFC. JEWETT W. BENNETT

PARACHUTE FAILS, ST. LOUISAN SAVES FELLOW SOLDIER

Paratrooper Jewett W. Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Bennett, 1334 Theiss road, Concord Village, has been credited with saving the life of a fellow soldier whose parachute failed to open properly when they were making a night training jump at Fort Campbell, Ky., it was learned here today.

In a letter to his parents, Bennett, 20 years old, wrote that after jumping from the airplane with 17 other soldiers, the shroud lines of another chutist hit him. He looked up and saw the man's automatic parachute had failed to open and yelled to the endangered man to open his auxiliary parachute, the letter continued.

The auxiliary, however, failed to open properly and Bennett secured the shroud lines with him arms and legs and carried the soldier to the ground. The added weight of the second man caused both to hit the ground hard, but neither was injured. Bennett, assigned to a unit in the Eleventh Airborne Division, was graduated from Lindbergh High School in June 1954 and enlisted in the paratroops the following August.

CALLS ON RELATIVE IN JAIL AND LANDS IN CELL WITH HIM

A St. Louis man discovered to his sorrow yesterday a way of getting special visiting privileges at the East St. Louis police station jail. He was locked up in the same cell occupied by his half-brother.

Carl R. Burse, a Negro, 4300 block of Delmar boulevard, entered the police station and asked to see James Riggins, 3400 block of Delmar, who was being held on traffic charges.

Before being taken to Riggins's cell, Burse was searched by Patrolman Joseph Krakowiecki. Krakowiecki found a spring knife with a 3½-inch blade. Burse found himself starting a prolonged visit with Riggins on the wrong side of the bars on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

JURY WILL HEAR RESULT OF DOWD TRIP ON 'PAY-OFF'

Circuit Attorney Returns — Interviewed Former St. Louis Brothel Keepers.

Circuit Attorney Edward I. Dowd, who returned last night from a two-week trip to the West in the police pay-off inquiry, said he plans this week to give the circuit court grand jury an outline of results of his investigation in Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

In the meantime, Maj. James Thompson, head of a special police squad named to assist in the pay-off inquiry, will make a similar report to the Police Board, Dowd said. Thompson accompanied the circuit attorney on the trip.

Dowd told the Post-Dispatch he was highly pleased with his findings on the visits to Los Angeles and Las Vegas, but declined, at this time, to disclose the specific information obtained. He interviewed a number of women who had been brothel operators or prostitutes in the St. Louis area.

The circuit attorney said authorities in the western cities, particularly Los Angeles, were very co-operative in assisting him and Thompson in finding prospective witnesses and taking statements from them.

One disappointment of the trip was the failure to find Ruby Hoffman, considered a key figure in the inquiry into alleged pay-offs by operators of disorderly houses to some St. Louis policemen, Dowd said. The Hoffman woman operated brothels in the 4400 block of McPherson avenue and the 4500 block of Gravois avenue.

She disappeared after the investigation began last June and has not been found, despite intensive efforts by police and investigators in Dowd's office.

The circuit attorney said he did not plan immediately to give the grand jury evidence obtained on his trip, but would describe his general findings to the jurors Wednesday or Thursday. He declined to say if any of the witnesses discovered in Los Angeles or Las Vegas would be subpenaed for grand jury appearances.

One purpose of Dowd's visit to Las Vegas was to look into trips made there this year by Detective Capt. William Greenspan, one of eight policemen asked to fill out questionnaires on their financial condition in connection with the investigation.

Anti-Nixon Campaign Started By California G.O.P. Group

Some Influential Republicans Stress That Vice President Can't Win — They Quote Democrats.

By EARL MAZO
The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3— Practically everyone in the politically vital state of California agrees with the latest published Gallup poll that Vice President Richard M. Nixon is presently the leading candidate for the Republican presidential nomination next year if President Eisenhower does not run, as is now expected.

But a quiet, aggressive drive to kill the 42-year-old Californian's chances has been started by several influential California Republicans who either just can't stand Dick Nixon or want the nomination for someone else — principally Senator William F. Knowland, Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, or Chief Justice Earl Warren, all Californians.

Their strategy, while not yet organized, centers, strangely, in the same simple, three-word phrase that undoubtedly frightened enough 1952 national convention delegates away from the banner of the late Senator Robert A. Taft, denying him the nomination.

It is: "He can't win," meaning even if Nixon gained the Republican nomination, he could not carry the Republican party to victory in the general election.

Democrats Quoted.

Oddly, the Vice President's home-state critics—in and out of public office — are quoting Democrats to prove their case. Nothing is being circulated more freely in certain circles, for instance, than this sentence from a speech by Pennsylvania's Gov. George Leader at a Democratic dinner in San Francisco last month: "To defeat a Richard Nixon for President would be like taking candy from a baby's hot, sticky little hands."

At the onset of President Eisenhower's illness nine days ago, Nixon canceled a vacation, an important four-day speaking tour in California, and all other engagements to devote full attention to his now more exacting job in Washington.

He also promptly ordered the sizable band of zealous Nixon enthusiasts in California to forego politics — even talk of politics—until the President recovers and the national political picture is clarified.

For or Against Nixon.

But four days of mostly confidential conversations with major California political figures convinced this reporter that:

1. Try as they might, Californians cannot be neutral about their hard-working Vice President; they either love or hate him; there is no in-between shading.

2. It is simply impossible for a Nixon devotee to halt, even for a moment regardless of the circumstances, the drive to achieve his or her ambition for the leader who rose in less than 10 years from the obscurity of a limited law practice to national and international stature as Vice President.

Although their methods sometimes differ to a degree, the aim of the Nixonites is unswervingly the same: the presidency for their man. No year may be more opportune than 1956, while the picture of his commanding position on the Eisenhower team and his great devotion to the immensely popular President and his policies is clear for all voters to ponder.

It is Nixon's intimate association with Mr. Eisenhower and his administration — and the certainty that his posture as an Eisenhower-like statesman will become increasingly magnified during the coming critical months—that makes his friends confident that the Vice President will smother any opposition by convention time in San Francisco next Aug. 20.

Unanimous Vote.

They even talk, with a positive assurance based on hope and some knowledge, of the unanimous nomination on the first ballot. Speculation about a mad scramble for tthe nomination with two, three or four California aspirants canceling each other out, they insist, is premature and may even be ridiculous.

This despite the fact that in Nixon's home state the Republican governor and the party organization are, at present, strictly and forcefully anti-Nixon.

Nixon's advocates point out that there was solid support for his renomination as Vice President at the recent campaign school in Washington for Republican state chairmen and among Republican governors at the August Governors' conference in Chicago.

National Chairman Leonard W. Hall, they recall, did not equivocate.

7.5-INCH RAIN HITS KANSAS; 600 FLEE HOMES IN WICHITA

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 3 — A severe thunderstorm that dumped up to seven and one-half inches of rain in southeast Kansas, forced evacuation of more than 600 persons from homes in the north section of Wichita yesterday.

Water stood waist-deep in the area where Chisholm creek empties into the city's drainage canal. The stockyards were under water.

At Oklahoma City heavy rains sent the north Canadian river two feet above flood stage and forced the evacuation of more than 75 persons from lowlands.

PRESIDENT WAKES UP REFRESHED, PHYSICIANS SAY

this evening and did not feel as well as usual. Otherwise his condition is good.

"His temperature, pulse and blood pressure are normal."

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty said at the time he issued that statement that the President's physicians would make a thorough examination this morning in an effort to find out what made him tired.

This morning Hagerty told reporters:

"The doctors tell me tiredness is not unusual in these cases."

Asked whether they had discovered any explanation of the fatigue, Hagerty simply called attention to the statement in the latest announcement saying that Mr. Eisenhower's condition this morning showed no indication of complications.

At that point Hagerty said he wanted to emphasize for the benefit of people throughout the nation and the world that "we are going at all times to make reports on exactly what his condition is."

'Going to Let You Know.'

Hagerty added that if a situation similar to the one last night ever should develop again, "we are going to let you ladies and gentlemen know."

Asked whether Mr. Eisenhower's fatigue had disappeared, Hagerty again called attention to the morning bulletin saying he awoke "rested and refreshed."

Hagerty left open also the possibility that Mr. Eisenhower still may sign additional official papers this week, possibly even later today. He signed two last Friday night—the first business he had transacted since he was stricken with a coronary thrombosis Sept. 24. The doctors had looked on that first official act since his illness as a morale booster.

Hagerty said today that the President's chief aid, Sherman Adams, planned to visit him in the hospital at mid-afternoon. Haggerty added that he did not know whether more government documents would be signed at that time.

Responding to a question, Hagerty said the morning examination of the President showed there had been no change in the President's basic condition from the time when the fatigue developed last evening.

A reporter wanted to know whether there was any indication whatever that Mr. Eisenhower had suffered a setback.

"You can read English," Hagerty said, alluding to the latest medical report. "I'll have to go by the bulletin."

As to whether the President's fatigue last night disturbed him, Hagerty said: "I have no way of answering that."

Mrs. Eisenhower, who has been at the hospital since the night the attack occurred, spent about 15 minutes with the President at breakfast time today.

A Good Indication.

Reporters noted that the latest bulletin said Mr. Eisenhower's morning cardiogram showed "slow, progressive evolution."

Asked whether that was a good indication, Hagerty replied that it was.

Reporters asked Hagerty whether the change in the President's condition could be considered a "setback."

"I am not going beyond what I said," Hagerty replied in reference to the medical bulletin he had just read to reporters, of beyond "what the doctors have given me."

Nor would he say whether the change amounted to development of complications.

"How can I?" Hagerty asked. "All I can say is what is in the (medical) bulletin."

Yesterday morning the outlook was cheerful. A 7:15 a.m. bulletin reported—as had so many earlier ones—that he had spent "a very good night and was continuing to progress satisfactorily without complications.

A second bulletin at noon was in the same encouraging vein — condition satisfactory "without complications" and the President enjoyed a good breakfast which included one of his favorite dishes, beef bacon.

That bulletin also reported the President again listened to recorded music "and was read news stories of the World Series and the Army-Penn State football game" of Saturday.

"He continues to be comfortable and cheerful," the doctors' mid-day report concluded.

Evening Bulletin Delayed.

At that time Hagerty told reporters the evening bulletin would be issued about an hour earlier than usual—about 8 p.m. instead of 9 p.m.

Nevertheless it was about 9:15 when Hagerty showed up with the bulletin in the temporary White House press room at Lowry Air Force Base, about four miles from the hospital. By that time reporters were beginning to suspect that something might be up.

Hagerty, solemn-faced in contrast to his cheerful mood earlier, then read the bulletin. Explaining the delay of more than an hour, the press secretary said he had waited at the hospital until the doctors completed their regular evening examination—after finding that the President was "tired."

When he finished reading the report, Hagerty volunteered that the development did represent "a change in his condition."

Asked when the change occurred, Hagerty replied: "All I can say is this evening."

He reported later that Mr. Eisenhower had not been placed back under the oxygen tent last night, but that he was given three-quarters of a grain of seconal. That was the same amount of sedative he got the night before, but only half as much as he had been receiving at night theretofore.

The oxygen tent, a routine precaution in the early stages after a heart attack, was removed from the President's room Thursday morning.

Sticks to Bulletin.

Last night reporters asked Hagerty many questions in an attempt to get more information about the change in the President's condition, but for the most part he insisted on sticking to the language of the doctor's bulletin.

He did say the bulletin assertion that Mr. Eisenhower "did not feel as well as usual" meant "in comparison to the way the President has been feeling for the last several days."

"Did the doctors give any indication as to what might be causing this tiredness?" a reporter asked.

"No," said Hagerty, "they want to continue their examination to see—to determine what is causing the tiredness."

He added that another examination before morning was unlikely.

There were four doctors in on last night's examination, but Hagerty called the number "routine." Those on hand were Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, the White House physician; Col. Thomas W. Mattingly, a heart specialist from the Army's Walter Reed hospital in Washington; Col. Byron E. Pollock, chief of heart specialists at Fitzsimons' medical department.

Hagerty was asked specifically whether Mr. Eisenhower had suffered a relapse. Again he replied he was not going to go beyond the language of the bulletin.

The press secretary also confirmed what reporters already knew—that the evening bulletin was the first one from which the significant phrase "satisfactory progress without complications" had been omitted.

Nixon Not Informed.

In response to a question, Hagerty said Vice President Nixon had not been informed, as of 9:30 p.m., regarding the change in the President's condition. Asked whether Nixon would be told shortly, Hagerty replied: "I can't answer that. I just don't know."

At 11:15 p.m. Hagerty reported the President had dropped off to sleep at 8:45 p.m. and still was sleeping soundly.

Mr. Eisenhower's condition apparently began to change after he had his dinner around 6 p.m. Mrs. Eisenhower visited with him just before the evening meal, which consisted of a piece of beefsteak, a small baked potato, spinach, sliced tomato on lettuce, a half slice of whole wheat toast, sliced peaches and skim milk.

The main course at lunch was broiled chicken with whipped potatoes.

The President's mother-in-law, Mrs. John S. Doud, called at the hospital about 7 p.m. and remained about an hour. She did not see the Chief Executive but did visit with her daughter.

Hagerty said Mrs. Doud's visit was not prompted by the change in Mr. Eisenhower's condition.

Opportunity Conference scheduled for Oct. 25 will proceed as planned despite Eisenhower's illness.

Instead of a previously-scheduled dinner at the White House, Nixon said, a dinner will be held in a Washington hotel with Cabinet members invited. Nixon is to preside as chairman of the President's committee on Government contracts which is sponsoring the meeting.

The conference, to which 66 industrial and labor union leaders have been invited, is aimed at stressing the Administration's policy of persuasion against job discrimination because of race, creed, color or national origin.

By the United Press.

Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall visited the White House for one and one-half hours today. He conferred with Gen. Persons; Murray Snyder, assistant White House press secretary; and other staff members. He declined to discuss his talks.

STABBED TO DEATH IN FIGHT

Charles Seals, 2514 North Prairie avenue, was stabbed to death Saturday night in a fight at Elliot avenue and Dayton street.

Police said Seals, a Negro laborer, became involved in an argument with another Negro, who drew a knife and stabbed him in the chest. The other man then ran away.

FRENCH TANKS AND PLANES ATTACK BERBER RAIDERS

Several Hundred Casualties Reported in Band of Tribesmen That Killed 11 Europeans.

RABAT, French Morocco, Oct. 3 (AP)—Berber tribesmen were reported in retreat in the Atlas mountains today after a series of weekend guerrilla attacks in eastern Morocco and along the Spanish Moroccan frontier.

French authorities said 11 Europeans, including three women and two chtildren, were killed in a ferocious attack at Immouzer-des-Marmouchas, 65 miles southeast of Fez.

Several hundred Berbers in the band of 2000 were reported killed before the tribesmen began their retreat in the foce of French tanks, planes and troops. The tribesmen were friendly to the Sultan who left his throne Saturday.

Four other outposts defended by Moroccans in French uniform were attacked Saturday night and Sunday and two were temporarily given up by the French.

One Still Under Attack.

Officials said one post at Tizi Ouzli, a former fort of Abd El Krim in the 1925 Riff war, was still under attack, and another at Bou Zined was on fire late last night. Both are along the Spanish Moroccan frontier. Bou Zined is within the Spanish zone and is reached from the French zone only by an international road.

(The United Press said Resident Gen. Pierre Boyer de Latour sealed off vast stretches of northern Morocco and cabled for reinforcements. Paris ordered five French battalions to the scene, two of them from neighboring Algeria.)

The outbreak came on the heels of Sultan Mohammed Ben Moulay Arafa's departure from his palace in Rabat to a villa in the International Zone of Tangier.

His going was the first step in a French plan to meet the demands of nationalists in the turbulent protectorate but he left new problems in his wake.

In leaving, Moulay Arafa delegated his seals of office to a cousin, Moulay Abdallah Ben Moulay Abdel Hafid. This apparently was a concession to French colonials who had bitterly fought the government's ouster of the Sultan.

Broadcast by de Latour.

In an effort to quiet aroused nationalists, Pierre July, French minister for Moroccan and Tunisian affairs, termed the delegation of powers an "intermediate" step. The French resident general for Morocco, Gen. de Latour, in a broadcast asked all Moroccans to support Abdel Hafid "for the moment" as a symbol of unity.

Nationalists termed the Sultan's action illegal and urged that France go ahead immediately with its original plan of naming a three-man regency to take over powers of the throne.

The guerrilla attacks in the eastern Atlas mountains and near the border with Spanish Morocco were the first serious outbreaks since the uprising of Berber tribesmen Aug. 20 in which more than 100 French and more than 1000 Moroccans died.

Like the Aug. 20 attacks, the fighting over the weekend spread the violence to new rural areas. Most nationalist activity previously has been confined to the major cities in the western part of the protectorate.

The biggest of the guerrilla strikes came at Immouzer-Des-Marmouchas, a small outpost in the middle Atlas mountains.

Some 2000 members of the Marmoucha Berber tribe swept down on the small garrison of 120 Moroccan troops serving in French uniform. The French tried to parachute in reinforcements but the tribesmen's ground fire prevented the drop.

The French last night reported troops "in some strength" had arrived overland and the battle raged into the night. When the reinforcements arrived, only 50 of the garrison were still able to fight.

Buildings were reported burned in an attack on a post at Berkine, high in the mountains. The guerrillas murdered two customs officials at the frontier port of Boured.

ROOMING HOUSE OCCUPANTS DRIVEN TO STREET BY FIRE

Residents of a 2½-story brick rooming house at 4153 Enright avenue were routed by fire early yesterday which started in a room occupied by John Johnson, police reported.

The fire spread from Johnson's room to the roof, which was partly destroyed. Damage was estimated at $3000. Johnson told police he believed the fire started when he fell asleep smoking a cigarette in bed.

Two firemen suffered minor injuries when fighting the fire. Battalion Chief Joseph Wetzel suffered a foot injury when he stepped on a nail. Fireman Kermit Clark received a cut on one hand from broken glass. Both were treated at City Hospital.

PILOT KILLED IN CRASH AS 1000 PICNICKERS WATCH

YUMA, Ariz., Oct. 3 (AP)—Rescue teams searched the muddy water of a reservoir today for the body of a B-57 demonstration pilot who swooped to his death as more than 1000 picnickers at an Air Force barbecue watched.

John Birt, 28 years old, was demonstrating the plane just above treetop level yesterday when one of his two jet engines failed and the craft plunged into the Yuma Air Base reservoir.

He worked for the Martin Aircraft Co. of Baltimore, manufacturers of the craft.

HEARINGS BY TAX COURT

The Tax Court of the United States will open a series of hearings here tomorrow on appeals from income tax assessments.

Judge Stephen E. Rice will preside at the hearings, to be held in Room 516 in the New Federal Building, Twelfth boulevard and Market street. They will continue through next Monday.

2 Cents Interest in 45 Years.

YONKERS, N. Y., Oct. 3 (AP) The Government has returned a 20-cent deposit that a Yonkers man placed on a post office mail box key 45 years ago. The refund was made after the Post Office Department halted the deposit requirements. The money was accompanied by two cents interest accumulated on the deposit over the 45 years.

RECORD 6670 GO TO NIGHT SCHOOL AT WASHINGTON U.

Enrollment of part-time students at University College, the night school of Washington University, has reached a record level, Acting Dean Earnest Brandenburg announced today.

Preliminary registration figures show 6670 students, an increase of 699 over last year.

Previous high mark for part-time students was in 1949, when 6363 were enrolled. Registration has been increasing steadily since the school year 1951-52, Dean Brandenburg said.

At St. Louis University, the evening division this year has its highest enrollment since adoption of its present program in 1951, the Rev. J. J. Marchetti S.J., dean, reported.

The preliminary enrollment is 410 in arts and science, an increase of 70 over last year. The evening division's College of Commerce and Finance reports an increase from 568 to 675 this year.

Oldest U.S. Military Unit Home.

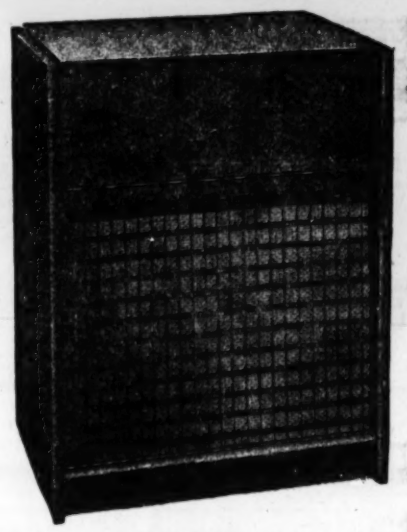

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—The nation's oldest military unit—it predates the republic—came home from Germany today. Battery D of the Fifth Field Artillery Battalion, First Infantry Division, had been in Europe 13 years, although none of its present 86 enlisted men and two officers were there that long.

2500 Years of Buddhism.

COLOMBO, Oct. 3 (UP)—The government of Ceylon is inviting the kings of Thailand, Laos and Cambodia to take part in the 2500th anniversary celebration of Buddhism from May 1956 to May, 1957. The Crown Prince of Japan also will be asked to visit Ceylon during the celebrations, along with Indian Premier Nehru and Burmese Premier U Nu.

DANES ARREST AIR BASE CLERK ON SPY CHARGES

COPENHAGEN, Oct. 3 (AP)—A civilian clerk employed at the Vaerloese Air Force base north of here has been arrested on charges of espionage. A Danish military spokesman said he was seen in company with a member of the military staff of the Russian embassy in Denmark.

The spokesman added that the police and army intelligence service had been watching the clerk more than a month.

A previous announcement said only that "a person" had been charged with illegal intelligence activity "on behalf of a foreign power." It was Denmark's first such case since World War II.

EGYPT, ISRAEL WITHDRAW FROM FRONTIER ZONE

Nasser Says Intercepted British Message Voiced Faith in Cairo's Policy.

CAIRO, Oct. 3 (AP)—Egypt and Israel have finished pulling back their troops from the demilitarized El Auja-Nizana zone but on the diplomatic front the battle of words continued over Egyptian plans to buy Communist arms.

Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser told military academy graduates in a speech that Egyptian intelligence had intercepted a message from the British War Ministry to the British Foreign Office saying Egypt would work to avoid aggression "but we have little confidence that Israel will follow the same policy."

(Neither the British Foreign Office nor the War Office in London would comment on Nasser's statement.

("We have seen Col. Nasser's statement, naturally," a Foreign Office spokesman said. "But there is nothing we can say about it at this time.")

Suggests U. S. Arms.

On the Israeli side, the Jewish nation's ambassador to the United States, Abba Eban, told an American television audience that if the United States cannot prevent a destruction of the balance of power in the Middle East, then the United States should "redress the balance" by providing Arms for Israel.

He denied that Israel had more armaments now than all the Arab states put together, but he said Israel would not sit "like a rabbit to allow the snake to get big enough to devour it."

Moscow radio defended the right of Egypt to buy arms wherver it choose. A broadcast heard in London said the Soviet Government had so informed Egypt, Czechoslovakia — from which the Egyptians plan to buy heavy arms the West won't sell them—and Britain and the United States.

On this point, the Soviets and the American Government were officially in agreement. Assistant United State Secretary of State George Allen told reporters in Cairo Saturday that "a sovereign nation has the right to get arms from any source." Allen is continuing his conferences with Egyptian officials and the British and French Ambassadors here in an effort to persuade the Egyptians not to get their weapons from the Communist bloc.

(The United Press said Allen scheduled a final conference with Nasser today on the arms question but it appeared his mission hod failed. Allen leaves tomorrow for Beirut, Lebanon.)

Nasser in his speech blasted the United States-British-French promise to maintain the Israeli-Arab balance of power. He accused the Western powers of arming Israel while trying to leave the Egyptian and other Arab armies weak.

The United States says it is willing to sell the Egyptians arms, but not the heavy tanks, heavy artillery and jet bombers it wants. Nasser said Britain and the United States had sent Israel 97 jet planes, 100 Sherman tanks and 70 field guns, while France had sent Israel 100 tanks.

Completion of the troop withdrawal from the demilitarized zone on the Israeli-Egyptian frontier was announced by the United Nations truce supervisory group in Jerusalem. The announcement said obstacles and military installations were dismantled and mines removed.

Troops Sent Sept. 21.

Israel sent troops into the zone Sept. 21, charging the Egyptians had established military posts in the area and had torn down frontier markers the Israelis had put up. The chief truce supervisor, Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, called on both countries to withdraw.

An Israeli spokesman said a "state of equality" had been established in the area and that Egypt was allowed to keep military checkposts on its side of the border. Israel replaced its troops with police.

Czechoslovakia's Government today issued a statement of protest against "interference" in its arms-for-cotton deal with Egypt. Radio Prague broadcast the statement, which it said was necessary "because of attempts made to force Egypt to void the agreement."

Israel Attacks Russian Agreement With Egypt in U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 3 (UP)—Israel today attacked Russia for its agreement to sell arms to Egypt.

Israeli delegate Abba S. Eban told the United Nations General Assembly that all countries welcomed a declaration by Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov here that "under present conditions, the termination of the armaments race must be regarded as the primary objective."

"It is unfortunate," Eban said, "that a few days later an armaments race was stimulated in the Middle East."

Eban delivered a scathing attack upon Egypt as the chief fomenter of trouble in the Middle East. He saved his major scorn for the agreement, announced last week, of Russia and Czechoslovakia to supply arms to the Egyptians.

"It is true," he said, "that heavy armaments cause international tensions; but it is even more true that international tensions cause heavy armaments. . .

"In the name of our region's threatened security, we are moved to appeal to all peace-loving states to avoid rewarding Arab belligerency with arms; to abstain from disturbing the military balance on which the peace of our region has precariously rested for seven years."

GIRL, 5, BITTEN BY RABID FOX FOUND IN SEARCH

SUFFERN, N. Y., Oct. 3 (AP)—A 5-year-old girl sought in 13 states since she was bitten by a rabid fox at a game farm near Catskill was found today. She is Nancy Bihler of Suffern.

State police here said the girl had been found after an intensive search and had received anti-rabies injections from a local physician. It was feared that if the girl did not receive the injections promptly she would die.

The girl was bitten Saturday by a fox that had wandered into a picnic area connected with the Catskill game farm, a sort of zoo in which many of the tame animals are allowed to run loose.

Her family apparently thought the bite was not serious and drove away while an attendant ran for help.

Roland Lindemann, proprietor of the game farm, led a posse that caught up with the fox about an hour later and shot it. The carcass was examined at the State Health Department laboratory and found to be rabid.

35C ETCHING SAID TO BE REMBRANDT VALUED AT $2500

SAN DIEGO, Oct. 3 (AP)—John Gallucci, whose hobby is rummage sales, disclosed yesterday that an etching which he picked up a year ago for 35 cents is a Rembrandt he values at $2500.

He quoted Miss Erbia Feinblatt, print curator of the Los Angeles county art museum, as confirming the find. In Los Angeles, Miss Feinblatt said the etching definitely is from a Rembrandt plate, showing a rare second state of "The Entombment."

In 40 years of San Diego rummaging, Gallucci has come up with such finds as:

A handwritten piece by Edgar Allan Poe in which the author bemoaned his $33-a-month salary. This cost $5. An original music score and manuscript by Puccini for $2. A first edition of Thomas Paine's "Rights of Man," with signed notations by the author, also $2.

An antique violin which later he sold for $2500. Original cost was 25 cents.

In 1920, a Coronado woman gave him a painting in payment for his painting her kitchen. It turned out to be "The Little Madonna" by Antonella da Messini, also worth $2500, apparently Gallucci's favorite price.

Gallucci revealed his collecting secret: "All you have to do is know what you're looking for."

ARGENTINA'S U.N. ENVOY PROMISES MOVES FOR PEACE

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Oct. 3 (INS)—The new revolutionary government of Argentina pledged in the United Nations Assembly today to observe all its international agreements, strengthen ties with other countries and promote world peace.

The first pronouncement in U.N. on behalf of Provisional President Eduardo Lonardi was presented by the new chief Argentine delegate, Dr. Enrique J. G. Plate, who succeeded former Peronist representative Juan Cooke.

Plate hailed the "new spirit of harmony and understanding in international relations" in the wake of the Geneva Big Four conference.

He offered his country's friendship to all nations, particularly the republics of the Western Hemisphere and "all those who are defending the principles of liberty which are the Western world's inheritance."

His Shoes in Evidence.

GREENWICH, Conn. (UP)—Robert Drew had good reason for appearing barefooted when presented in town court on theft charges. His only pair of shoes and socks, identified as among articles stolen from a country club, were being used as evidence.

GROCER ROBBED OF $850 ON STREET NEAR STORE

Frank Tranchilla was held up and robbed of $850 today a few doors from the grocery and meat market he operates at 1029 North Ninth street, police reported. He was returning from a downtown bank where he had obtained the money.

Tranchilla told police as he was nearing the store a man came up, pressed a hard object in his back and said this is a holdup.

The thief, aNegro, took the money, which was in a paper sack, and fled on foot. He was wearing blue trousers and shirt and a chauffeur's hat, police said.

ADENAUER, FAURE TO HOLD CONFERFENCE WEDNESDAY

BONN, Oct. 3 (UP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer will meet French Premier Edgar Faure at Luxembourg on Wednesday, Bonn government sources reported today.

The sources said the meeting will last only one day. They added that the two leaders will discuss problems of world interest and matters of direct French-German concern.

Among questions to be discussed, it was added, almost certainly will be preparations for the Oct. 23 referendum in the disputed Saar coal-steel basin which lies between France and Germany.

CORPORAL GIVES 48 SQUARE INCHES OF SKIN TO TWIN

WIESBADEN, Germany, Oct. 3 (AP)—A United States Army corporal today gave 48 square inches of skin to his severely burned twin brother in a "once in a million" grafting operation at a Wiesbaden Air Force Hospital.

An Air Force spokesman said the operation in itself was "successful" but that doctors would only know after another three or four days whether the skin stays.

The spokesman said that an Air Force physician, Maj. P. A. Cox, removed two strips 12 inches long and 2 inches wide, from Charles' legs and grafted them on Rodney's.

Rodney suffered severe burns on his legs and abdomen when his gasoline-drenched trousers were accidentally set afire by a cigarette while he was painting his car.

DOCTORS' PUZZLE: DO PEOPLE HAVE 10 OR 8 FINGERS?

LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP)—It's time the medical profession decided whether man has 10 or eight fingers, a British doctor says.

One system counts eight fingers and two thumbs. Another reckons 10 fingers. In the British medical journal Lancet, Dr. Robert Forbes writes:

"There is confusion everywhere. Textbooks disagree. Anatomists generally refer to the thumb, index finger, middle finger, ring finger and little finger, but surgeons often number them 1 to 5 from the thumb.

"To number the fingers 1, 2 or 3, etc., and to record that finger 3 needs amputation is to set the stage for a serious surgical mishap."

Dr. Forbes is secretary of the Medical Defense Union—an organization that represents doctors in legal actions. He says suits have arisen from surgeons' mistakingly amputating the wrong finger because of the different systems of counting.

FTC AID CALLS FOR BUDWEISER PRICE CUT PROBE

By EDWARD F. WOODS
Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3—A motion by Anheuser-Busch Inc. for dismissal of a Federal Trade Commission complaint alleging price discrimination among its customers was overrulel today.

FTC Examiner Frank Hier, in rejecting the motion, set Nov. 28 for hearings on the complaint in Washington.

The complaint is based upon the action of the St. Louis brewery in twice lowering the price of its so-called premium priced Budweiser beer during 1954 to match the price of local beers in the St. Louis area. The brewery continued, the complaint stated, to maintain its premium prices for bottled beer elsewhere in the country.

This "price discrimination," the complaint said, violates the Clayton Act, which prohibits any price discrimination where the effect may be to injure competition either among competing buyers or competing sellers.

Company's Stand.

Arguing for dismissal of the complaint, Edgar Barton, of New York, counsel for the brewery, said that FTC counsel had failed to prove a prima facie case of price discrimination and, further, had failed to prove that the alleged practices tended to create a monopoly or to destroy competition within the meaning of the Clayton act.

The net result of the price reduction by Tnheauser-Busch was to make St. Louis a more competitive beer market, he said.

The Budweiser differential over local or regional beers varies by localities, Barton said, and in some places there is no differential at all. The price cuts, he said, were put into effect because the brewery wanted more business." He attributed a rise in Budweiser sales to better selling methods and more vigorous advertising practices.

Effect on Competitors.

FTC counsel Frances Maier replied that Budweiser's improved position following the price cuts "shows a very effective way for a seller to put the lid on normal growth of competitors through price reductions."

Examiner Hier observed that "I am satisfied that the drop in price was the major cause of the loss of sales by Anheuser-Busch's competitors in St. Louis."

As he announced rejection of the dismissal motion, however, Hier said that the FTC "has a slim case as it stands now."

He warned counsel for both sides that he wanted to get the "full picture" of the St. Louis in the forthcoming hearings.

"I want to know why the price cut experiment was carried out in St. Louis," he said. "We've had some answers but I don't think we've had the full story." What happened in St. Louis, he continued, "is a striking and dramatic exercise of economic power."

"Suppose it were repeated all over the country," he said. "I doubt that it can be said it would not affect competition. We will want to know what assurance we will have that this practice is not going to be resumed."

U.S. LAUNCHES RESEARCH ON AIR POLLUTION EFFECTS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (UP)—The Public Health Service yesterday launched a special research program on the effects of air pollution on health. It awarded 10 grants totaling $295,367 for research projects to be conducted at universities, colleges and by the Detroit health department.

"There has been increasing evidence that various types of air pollution may constitute a serious, widespread threat to human health," Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele said in announcing the grants. "To what degree this is so, in just what way the human body may be damaged by different air pollutants in different concentrations, is therefore a matter of deep concern to us."

Money for the grants came from a $500,000 fund Congress appropriated this year for air pollution research.

MAN STABBED IN QUARREL

Hudson Walters, a truck driver from Houston, Tex., was stabbed in the abdomen and wounded seriously in East St. Louis last night by a man described by Walter as his helper.

Walters, who was taken to St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis, said the man, whom police are seeking, stabbed him in the 300 block of Collinsville avenue in an argument after a visit to taverns.

FOUR LOSE LIVES OVER WEEKEND IN AUTO CRASHES

Berkeley Pair and Moscow Mills and Collinsville Men Killed on Highways.

Three persons were killed in automobile accidents in the St. Louis area over the weekend, the Missouri Highway Patrol reported today. An Army sergeant from Collinsville was killed in an automobile accident near Columbia last night.

The dead:

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Reed, 6329 Garfield avenue, Berkeley. Reed, 45 years old, was a cutter in a shoe factory. Mrs. Reed was 26.

Sgt. Robert Y. Palmer of Collinsville, stationed at Fort Rileys, Kans.

Franklin Sidney Massie, 35, Moscow Mills, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed died today at St. Louis County Hospital of injuries suffered in an accident on Lindbergh boulevard at old St. Charles road about midnight Saturday.

Highway patrolmen said Mr. and Mrs. Reed were northbound when heir car collided with an automobile driven by Orville J. Mann, 45, utility man at the Lincoln-Mercury plant here.

Mann's car crossed over the center line and into the outside northbound lane of the four-lane highway, patrolmen said. He suffered internal injuries and a fractured leg and is in serious condition at St. Louis County Hospital.

Sgt. Palmer was bound for early morning guard duty at Fort Riley, Kan., when the car in which he was riding struck the rear of a trailer loaded with sheep and crashed into a heavy transport truck three and a half miles east of Columbia on U. S. Highway 40.

David Franklyn Powell of Kingsport,Tenn., driver of the car, was injured and was taken to the Boone County Hospital in Columbia.

Powell's westbound car struck the rear of a trailer carrying nine blue-ribbon show sheep hauled by tractor-trailer driven by Maj. Kenneth Krumm, associate professor of air science at the University of Kansas.

The automobile driven by Powell, locked with a part of the sheep trailer, cut into the eastbound traffic lane and was struck by a tractor-trailer driven by Paul Shannon of Kansas City, Kan.

Shannon, Maj. Krumm and the officer's son, Kent, were reported uninjured. Two of the sheep were killed and four others injured as the trailer crashed into a ditch at the side of the highway.

Massie was killed yesterday when the automobile he was driving struck a bridge railing at Sanford Creek on U.S. Highway 40 by-pass, three miles west of St. Charles.

Edward L. Bakewell Jr., St. Louis real estate dealer, was injured late Saturday night when a taxicab in which he was riding was struck by an automobile at Boyle and Laclede avenues. Bakewell suffered head injuries.

Police said the taxicab, driven by Thomas Miskel, 3511A Arsenal street, was traveling east in Laclede. It was struck by a car driven by Roland H. Nenninger, 2807A Victor street, police said. The taxicab then struck a parked automobile.

Bakewell was thrown to the pavement by the impact. Bradford Shinkle Jr., 48 Westmoreland place, riding with Bakewell, 39, lives at 3 Foxboro road,L adue.

The reaction must be controlled and means found to extract the energy and use it to generate electricity. The scientific and technical difficulties to be surmounted were described as "formidable." Developing the source of heat and the problem of containing the energy were said to be two of the main stumbling blocks.

New Details Given.

The fact that the United States is seeking ways of using thermonuclear reactions for peaceful purposes was made known at the atoms-for-peace conference at Geneva in August. Today's announcement gave the first reasonably comprehensive details.

Strauss declined to say how much the Government is spending on the program, designated project Sherwood. He said the sum was "significant," however, and had been increasing each year since the research was undertaken in 1951. Appropriations are being increased as fast as the project can absorb men and ideas, he said.

Studies are being conducted at Princeton and at Atomic Energy Commission laboratories operated by the University of California at Los Alamos, N. M., and Livermore, Calif. There are additional projects at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and New York University.

Energy is released in the atomic bomb and the hydrogen bomb by opposite means. In an atomic bomb, or peacetime atomic reactor, the process is known as fission. A neutron is shot into a heavy nucleus, disrupting it and releasing energy. In fusion, as in the hydrogen bomb, extremely light nuclei which tend by their electrical charge to repel one another are forced together to make heavier nuclei, releasing energy.

Strauss said there would be no dangerous fission products resulting from the processes in a controlled thermonuclear reactor and hence little radiation danger to persons who might live near the device.

The program announced today is not likely to have any effect on the efforts of industry to achieve economic use of atomic power, Strauss said. He thought industrial investment in atomic power plants probably would be pretty well amortized by the time fusion power became practicable. It was estimated that atomic plants now being built or planned would be paid for in something like 18 to 25 years.

Strauss described himself as a "great optimist" about Project Sherwood, which he reduced to these terms:

"The problem is to raise, maintain and confine temperatures while fusion takes place and then to extract the energy and convert it into electricity. We don't know how to do it. We only know it is theoretically possible."

President Eisenhower's illness is having "no bearing" on the work of the commission, Strauss said. Nothing is hanging fire for lack of a presidential decision, he added, except possibly a nomination for a vacancy on the five-man commission. The President has nominations before him and is expected to make a choice soon, Strauss said.

'Regrettable Snafu.'

Strauss described as a "regrettable snafu," for which he assumed full responsibility, the barring of Prof. Hermann J. Muller, Noble laureate, from delivering a paper titled "How Radiation Changes the Genetic Constitution" at the Geneva atomic conference.

Muller's paper, Strauss said, was predicted on some of the material derived from the Hiroshima bombing. This would have involved a discussion of the non-peaceful uses of atomic energy and would have been out of bounds, Strauss added.

Strauss said it might have been possible to ask Muller to modify his paper, but that in the press of arranging for the conference this was not done and he was sorry. Muller's paper, he said, will be included in the conference reports.

Strauss announced the AEC is now getting blanket approval to atomic activities by American firms in non-Communist countries as long as the work is unclassified and is reported to the commission. This relaxes a ruling that each firm had to obtain specific permission.

The United States, Strauss said, hopes to provide nuclear material for the use of foreign governments building power plants, but this will be a "gradual" program which will proceed slowly, partly because of the great cost of building plants.

Expensive Salad

WASHINGTON (INS) — On tiny Providence Island north of Madagascar the hearts of coconut palm trees provide a delicacy known as "the millionaire's salad," says the National Geographic Society. A palm heart is obtained by cutting down a mature tree. To serve 10 persons costs about $200.

CIGARETTE TAX, SCHOOL PROGRAM VOTE TOMORROW

of aid to the schools and, although the full program could not be financed from present revenues, the distribution system would apply to any amount of money available for this purpose. No school district could participate unless it levied at least $1 of school tax for each $100 of assessed valuation.

Assuming full financing, the program would require the state to make a flat grant of $75 a year for each pupil enrolled in a public elementary or high school.

To help "poorer" districts with an inadequate tax base, a separate "equalization fund" would be established. If these "poorer" districts were unable with the $1 levy to raise enough revenue to provide at least $110 a year per child, the state would make up the difference. This would be in addition to the flat $75 grant. Thus, again assuming full financing, the program would assure all eligible districts $185 per pupil a year.

Teacher Grants.

In addition, school districts would receive state grants of $100 to $300 per teacher, depending on the number of college credit hours earned by each teacher. This fufid is intended to provide an incentive for improving teachers' educational qualifications.

At present, the bulk of state school aid is distributed on the basis of teaching units, and elementary school districts can qualify by levying a school tax of only 65 cents.

There is no organized opposition to the school foundation program but labor groups and tobacco distributors are strongly against the cigarette tax.

The board of the St. Louis section, National Council of Jewish Women, voted unanimously today to indorse the foundation program. No announcement was made respecting the cigarette tax proposal.

The campaign for passage of both measures is being carried on largely by parent-teacher organizations who say that without the revenue of about $9,000,000 annually from the tax, the foundation program would be seriously handicapped if not nullified.

DU PONT HEIR, KILLED AT 21, LEFT MILLION TO COLLEGE

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 3 (AP)—A million-dollar bequest from a student—the late David F. du Pont, 21 years old, of Wilmington, Del., who would have been a senior this fall, was announced today by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He was the son of the late Lammot du Pont, former president and chairman of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. Young du Pont was a major in metallurgy at M.I.T. He was killed in an automobile accident early last month.

The bequest is to improve athletic facilities at the famous engineering school where the elder du Pont was a long-term member of the corporation. M.I.T. President James R. Killian Jr. said the fund would be used to maintain the quality of the athletic coaching and teaching staff and also to provide new or improved athletic facilities.

EBELING FILES FOR PRIMARY

Michael J. Ebeling, an attorney, 422 South Hanley road, Clayton, filed at Jefferson City today for Democratic nomination for circuit judge in Division 6, St. Louis county.

The position now is held by Judge Franklin Ferriss. Ebeling was an unsuccessful candidate for circuit judge in the county last year.

Rings Stolen

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.
MRS. DORIS DOWLING

WOMAN REPORTS $8500 GEM THEFT

Finds 3 Rings and Currency Stolen From Hotel Room.

Three rings valued at $8500 and $175 in currency disappeared from the Hotel Chase suite of Mrs. Doris Dowling, a lecturer, of Chicago, she reported to police yesterday.

The two doors to the fifth floor suite were locked, indicating, police said, that entrance was gained by pass key.

Mrs. Dowling said she retired at 1 a.m. yesterday, after placing her purse, containing the cash, and the three rings beside her bed. When she awakened at 8:30 a.m., the purse was lying on the floor, empty, and the rings were missing.

The rings, which Mrs. Dowling said she received from her late husband, were a 2½-carat diamond vauled at $3000; 2-carat ring, with emerald mounting, $3500, and a platinum wedding ring with nine diamonds, $2000.

Mrs. Dowling is in St. Louis for a series of lectures at a downtown department store.

Theft of $67 from his room yesterday by Pvt. Thomas Ploss, Fort Leonard Wood. Ploss told police the lock on the door was defective.

NEW TYPHOON AIMS TOWARD JAPAN'S INDUSTRIAL AREAS

TOKYO, Oct. 3 (AP)—Packing 100-mile-an-hour winds, typhoon Marge roared toward south central Japan today amid fears it will rip a path of destruction through Japan's largest industrial areas.

United States Air Force weathermen predicted the storm, barring a sudden change in course, would hit Shikoku, 150 miles southwest of the Osaka industrial area, about midnight.

Fringe winds of up to 56 miles an hour were forecast for Japan's industrial complex—Osaka, Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya and Kobe, with a combined population of 20,000,000. The area was drenched by heavy rains. Similar winds were forecast for Kyushu, Japan's southernmost main island which was devastated last week by typhoon Louise.

WASHINGTON BOULEVARD IMPROVERS SEEK MEMBERS

A membership drive is being conducted by the Washington Boulevard Improvement Association, organized to preserve property values in the three-block section of Washington between Kingshighway and Union boulevard.

Frederick Rosser is president; Miller Wolken, first vice president; Mack Evans, second vice president; Mrs. Clara Knobe, secretary, and Mrs. Christin Phillips, treasurer.

The group, one of 13 organizations affiliated with the Central West End Neighborhood Improvement Association, meets once a month at St. John's Methodist Church, 5000 Washington. The next meeting will be held at 8 p.m. next Monday.

AUTO SMASHED BY 2 OTHERS BURNS, GIRL PERISHES

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., Oct. 3 (UP)—A 17-year-old girl's automobile was smashed between two other autos Sunday night, causing a fire in which she was burned to death.

Miss Corine Carey's car stalled because of engine trouble and two youths driving from the opposite direction stopped to help her. They parked their car facing the Danvers (Ill.) girl's auto and focused their headlights on its engine while they tried to repair it. At that moment a third car, driven by Delbert Reed of Danvers, smashed into the rear of Miss Carey's vehicle. It was crushed between the two cars and burst into flames. Reed was in a hospital with serious burns.

BOMBER AND LIAISON PLANE COLLIDE, 5 REPORTED DEAD

TATUM, N.M., Oct. 3 (AP)—A B47 stratojet bomber and an Army liaison plane collided in the air over Tatum early today. First reports said five or six persons were thought to be dead. Incomplete reports from sheriff's and state police radio said at least one was dead in one plane and another injured.

The injured man, brought to Lea county general hospital at Hobbs, was identified as Second Lt. William D. Borgen, Sixty-third Bomber Squadron, stationed near Tucson, Ariz.

Heavy rains in the area prevented early attempts to reach the wreckage of the second plane. About 5½ inches of rain had fallen at Tatum, closing schools and roads.

YANKS WIN, 5-1; SERIES AGAIN SQUARED

SPOONER ROUTED IN FIVE-RUN FIRST; NO. 2 BY FORD A 4-HITTER

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3—Ed (Whitey) Ford, 26-year-old Irish-Swede from the sidewalks of New York, hurled a handsome four-hitter this afternoon as the Yankees, firing their guns in a five-run first inning, turned back Brooklyn's National League champion Dodgers, 5 to 1, and sent the 1955 World Series to a do-or-die seventh game.

Immediately after this afternoon's contest at Yankee Stadium, where the New York Americans now have won six straight times from the Dodgers, it was announced that Southpaws Tommy Byrne of the Bronx Bombers and Johnny Podres of Brooklyn would be the starters—a veteran gainst a kid—in tomorrow's end-of-the-line battle for the blue chips.

In today's game Ford, 18-game American League winner scoring his second triumph of this series and third in post-season competition, proved again that (1) the Dodgers are a different ball club away from Ebbets Field and (2) that it is indeed a fallacy that the Brooks murder lefthanders. Whitey fanned eight with his excellent assortment and walked four.

Homer by Skowron.

Meanwhile, making certain they wouldn't suffer a fourth straight defeat and their first World Series failure since 1942, the Yankees hopped on Karl Spooner, Brooklyn rookie southpaw, and batted around during a first inning in which they combined two walks with four hits for their five runs. The decisive blow was a homer by Bill Skowron, righthanded platoon first baseman, with two teammates aboard.

Thereafter the Yankees managed only four hits off righthanders Russ Meyer and Ed Roebuck, but breezed to victory because the Dodgers scored only in the fourth on a walk and two singles.

A crowd of 64,022 saw the unexciting contest in which Skowron's homer, the seventeenth of the series, enabled the two clubs to tie a record they set two years ago and, in addition, the double play executed by each team smashed two World Series marks for twin killings. Brooklyn now has turned 11 and with the Yankees they've managed a total of 18 double-outs.

Hank Bauer, returning to the New York lineup after suffering a thigh injury in the second game, collected three hits and Yogi Berra, leading both clubs with nine, singled twice for the Bombers. However, Mickey Mantle stayed on the sidelines as Casey Stengel went to a revised righthanded-hitting lineup.

Three Records at Start.

After an Army band played the National Anthem, sung by Lucy Munroe, the white uniformed Yankees took the field as Bob Fishel, former Browns' publicity director now tub-thumping for the Bronx Bombers, announced to the press box that three records were being set with the opening pitch.

Berra, catching his thirty-ninth game, this afternoon broke Bill Dickey's series mark of 38 contests behind the plate. Rizzuto, in his ninth World Series, matched the 51 total games played by Joe DiMaggio in 10 post-season classics. And the Dodgers set another record by using a sixth different starter (Spooner) in six games.

Opening the game, Gilliam looked at a strike and flied to Howard, Reese was called out as Ford caught the inside corner with a fast ball and the Yankee fans cheered as slugger Snider, trying to check his swing on a "3-2" curve, was waved out by Umpire Ballanfant.

The New York fans had even more to approve, beginning the home first, as little Rizzuto, fouling off pitches and extending the count, worked Spooner for a base on balls. Spooner also missed with his first two pitches to Martin as Newcombe was reported to have begun warming up in the hidden recess of the left field bullpen. The next one was a called strike and, after Martin fouled off pitch after pitch, Rizzuto was in motion as Billy fanned and was credited with a stolen base. Campanella, forced to hesitate while Gilliam was slow covering, threw perfectly, but too late.

With Rizzuto jockeying off second, Spooner walked McDougald on five pitches. Spooner poured two strikes past Berra, then fed a high slow curve that Yogi slapped softly to Gilliam's right. A double play seemed possible, but Gilliam, coming over, didn't bend far enough backhanding the ball, which bounced under his glove and into center field for a run-scoring single, McDougald hurrying to third.

Bauer, timing a slow curve, grounded a single beyond Reese's desperate effort, McDougald scoring and Berra stopping at second. Big Skowron, with two strikes, powered an outside pitch to the opposite field and into the lower right field stands for a three-run homer. And with only one out the Yankees led, 5 to 0.

The Yankee fans roared and there was a surprise, too, when a pitching change found Russ Meyer announced as Spooner's replacement, because, as mentioned, it's impossible for most Stadium spectators to see the bullpens under the runways, and there had been no information that Meyer had been getting ready as Newcombe sat down.

It was announced that Skowron's homer, his first in series play, was the seventeenth of this classic, enabling the two clubs to tie the record they set two years ago. The veteran Meyer, taking over, forgot himself on Cerv's grounder fielded by Hodges—the pitcher must have thought Gilliam would take it—and was late covering first as the batter drew a scratch single. Howard was called out on strikes and there was a derisive cheer as Ford, ninth man to bat in the inning, flied to Howard.

Brooklyn had an encouraging start in the second inning, but nothing came of it. After Campanella flied to Cerv, Furillo was hit by a pitched ball and Hodges walked. Ford also missed with his first pitch to Robinson, but slipped across a called strike and then prompted Jackie to ground to McDougald, who worked fast to launch a double play in which Martin pivoted.

Another One for the Book.

The double play, the Yanks' seventh, was the seventeenth of the series and set a new all-time two-team record for twin killings.

The Yankees were easy for Meyer in the second, Rizzuto popping to Robinson, Martin striking out and McDougald, after squawking on one pitch, fouling to Reese.

In the Yankee third a lead-

Stanky To Lead Millers

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—Eddie Stanky, fiery former St. Louis Cardinal manager, was hired today by the New York Giants to manage their top farm club, the Minneapolis Millers of the Class AAA American Association.

The man who was ousted as Cardinal pilot May 28 will succeed Bill Rigney, promoted by the Giants to manage the big league club after Leo Durocher announced his withdrawal as manager Sept. 24.

Stanky, 37, reportedly will be paid $12,500, the highest managerial figure in the American Association. He still has one year to go on his St. Louis salary of $42,500, so the Cardinals will have to pay the difference of $30,000, it was learned.

A teammate of Rigney's on the Giants "miracle" pennant-winning club of 1951, he turned down a chance to be a coach with the Cincinnati Redlegs because, it was said, he wants to be a manager.

A former player with the Chicago Cubs and Brooklyn Dodgers, Stanky came to the Giants with Alvin Dark from the Boston Braves in December, 1949. He was released by the Giants after the 1951 season so he could take the job of St. Louis manager. From the 1947 season through 1951, Stanky was on pennant-winning teams with three different clubs.

Under Stanky's guidance, the Cardinals finished third in 1952, tied with Philadelphia for third the next year and wound up sixth in 1954. The club was in fifth place, half a game out of first division, when he was fired, and wound up seventh.

Tom Byrne, Podres Named For 7th Game

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—Two winning pitchers in this year's World Series, lefthanders Tommy Byrne of the Yankees and Johnny Podres of the Dodgers, were named this afternoon as starting pitchers in tomorrow's seventh game.

Byrne won for the Yanks, at bat as well as on the mound, in the second game of the series. Podres started the Dodgers to their three-game sweep at Ebbets Field, as he won the third game of the series.

Black Labrador Wins In Retriever Trials

CHENEY, Wash., Oct. 3 (AP)—Burrill's Black Sheba, a female black Labrador owned and handled by Marc Sternhagen of Billings, Mont., won first place in the Spokane Retriever Club's open all-age stake.

Second in the field of 40 dogs was Snake River Dilly, a female Labrador owned by Mrs. Fentress Kuhn of Boise, Idaho, and handled by Cliff Brassfield.

Casey Gives Battle Cry, 'We're Home'

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP) — "We're home and we're confident," boomed Casey Stengel today, throwing down the gauntlet to the Brooklyn Dodgers for the seventh and deciding game of the World Series.

"We'll pitch Tommy Byrne," the wrinkled Yankee pilot added over the din in the dressing room. "After all, he pitched the best game for us here."

"Better than Whitey Ford?" somebody corrected.

"I didn't say that," Casey put in tartly. "I can't go with Ford tomorrow. I mean Byrne has pitched the best of anybody to date."

Ford, finishing his first World Series game in five starts, set the Dodgers down with four hits to knot the series at three games each.

"I thought he pitched beautiful ball," Casey said. "He had his curve working well and he was throwing in that fast ball at just the right time.

No Holds Barred.

"He didn't have any scarey moments but I wasn't taking any chances. We decided to win this game if we had to throw every pitcher on our roster at them.

"That hit by Skowron in the first inning (Bill Skowron's three-run homer) was just what the doctor ordered. But we had no intention of losing that lead."

Stengel said he kept Bob Turley, Don Larsen and Tom Morgan throwing in the bullpen, just in case Ford should falter.

Stengel said the only time he became uneasy was in the seventh when the Dodgers got Sandy Amoros and Junior Gilliam on base with two out.

"Then Joe Collins made a fine play to force Gilliam at second," Casey added. "It was a big out for us."

Stengel said he probably wouldn't make too many changes in his lineup with the Dodgers pitching Johnny Podres.

Confident Man.

"I think our lefthanders can his him as well as our righthanders," he added. "I'll use Hank Bauer again if he feels okay, probably Bob Cerv in center and Elston Howard in left. I may have Skowron at first base."

The cotton-topped Ford was the center of attraction in the Yankees cocky dressing room.

Restless Night By Connie Mack

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3 (AP)—Connie Mack, 92-year-old former owner-manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, spent a restless night in Presbyterian Hospital, his physician said today.

Dr. Illarion I. Gopadze said, "We are keeping our fingers crossed hoping there are no complications."

Mack, who led the Athletics to five world series championships, suffered a fracture of the right hip Saturday when he fell from his bed at his home in suburban Chestnut Hill after a nap.

Dr. Gopadze said he was satisfied with Mack's general condition.

"He has hardly any pain and is cheerful," he said. "His leg is in traction and he is quite comfortable."

Dodgers Look Like N.L.'s Best for Years.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.

BROOKLYN'S DODGERS ran away with the 1955 pennant and the pitching staff seems to be loaded with fine young prospects who could carry on to make the club outstanding in the league for several years to come. There seems to be no club in the league able to offer a formidable challenge.

At least two of the key men in the Dodger team, Pee Wee Reese and Jackie Robinson, are over the hill with not much more big league time remaining, and no replacements worthy of being compared to Pee Wee and Jackie are in sight. But when a club has pitching as strong as that of the Dodgers is likely to be for some years to come, there can be a loss of attacking power without it hurting too much.

Robinson, a great competitor, may go on for another year or two. He showed what he could do in this series, after careful dieting had removed some of the excess poundage that has been his big problem for a few years. Reese also probably will be around to play part time at least for another season or two.

Cardinal observers have drooled during this series at the sight of the young mound talent in Brooklyn uniform. Don Bessent and Roger Craig, who joined the Dodgers in July and gave valuable aid when veterans of the staff were in a slump, are only 24 years old. They look like they could be regulars on anybody's staff. Johnny Podres, who pitched the best game of the series—the third—is only 23 and Karl Spooner and Ed Roebuck are 24. Young Sandy Koufax won't be 20 years old until December and young veterans of Walter Alston's staff are Billy Loes, 26 and Carl Erskine, 29.

"And there's another flock of young pitchers coming along on Dodger farm teams," Bill Walsingham said last night after seeing Brooklyn take the lead in the World Series. "They won't have to worry about pitching talent for a long time."

Don Hoak, Don Zimmer and Frank Kellert are rookie infielders with the club, with Hoak the outstanding candidate for the third base job, when Robinson has to call it quits. Zimmer, while in the International League, was considered a future replacement for Reese. Kellert, a first baseman, is the best batter of the trio. In 39 games during the 1955 season he batted .325.

Besides being the soundest team in baseball, pitching, outfield, infield, catching and bench, the Dodgers have in Duke Snider the best center fielder of the day and perhaps the best ballplayer in the league.

New Report Durocher May Manage Cards.

LEO DUROCHER'S name has bobbed back into the Cardinal picture, but it is difficult to believe that the Redbird front office, with or without Frank Lane, could be considering The Lip seriously.

There probably is no better manager in baseball for a team with a chance at the pennant. He's a great strategist, sound and with a daring willingness to gamble. He knows talent and is a great general on the field. But it will be years, maybe three or four, before the Cardinals are in the seriously challenging class and Leo is not the patient type needed as young players are learning, frequently by the mistakes they make.

However, there was a report from a top National League club official that Durocher had the inside track at St. Louis and that he was more than willing to take the job of rebuilding the Redbirds.

Other candidates have been mentioned, including Fred Haney, Marty Marion and Fred Hutchinson and any one of the three would seem better fitted than the hot-tempered Durocher to handle young men learning to be big leaguers. Marion, of course, is under contract to the White Sox, but he was signed to that contract by Frank Lane and it's possible that the White Sox, with Lane out of the picture, might not object to breaking the contract with Lane's personally selected field leader.

Whoever takes over the helm as Redbird manager will find himself with several problems. He must find a catcher or two, build a pitching staff, add a couple of right-handed hitters to the roster and find a shortstop who can hit as well as field. And finding so many players is not an easy task.

Spooner Batted Out in Five-Run First; Homer for Skowron

SPORT CAMEOS by RED SMITH

Up From Red Clay Hills.

BROOKLYN, Oct. 3.

ONE year ago, Roger Craig was pitching for Newport News, Va., in the Piedmont League playoffs. He must have looked like a Piedmont Leaguer, too, tall, gangling, long-featured, with wind flaps for ears—a basketball player turned square. In that respect he hadn't changed yesterday, but everything else had.

Now he stood in a sunny circle of earth watched by the biggest crowd that ever saw a World Series game in Ebbets Field. Until July he had never seen a major league ball park. Now he was in the middle of one that was chock full of Yankees.

He would stand staring at the hitter, with the ball in the glove on his left hand. His right hand moved nervously in an unvarying pattern—to the bosom of his shirt, to his lips where he moistened fingertips like a schoolboy turning a page, to the bill of his cap for a small, unnecessary tug, down to his right thigh where he rubbed the fingertips dry, up to the waist for the hitch and squirm of a doll adjusting her girdle.

Then he would rock back and fire with a sweeping motion, three-quarters overarm. Every time the ball hissed in, history shivered in the throes of creation. This big, gawky rookie from the red clay hills of North Carolina was pitching the Yankees to death and the Dodgers were creeping, with breathless stealth, to the threshold of the unprecedented, unbelievable, unthinkable championship of the whole ruddy world, including Jersey City.

Fires of Autumn.

NEVER before had a Brooklyn team—or a Jersey City or Mexico City team, for that matter—won three games in a row over American Leaguers. Never have the Dodgers, in seven chances over 40 years, won a world championship. Never has any team lost the first two games and come back to take the title inside seven games.

At 4:45 p.m. it was all but done and a red fire was burning on the grass of center field. Twice clubbed to earth when this muscle dance began in Yankee Stadium the Dodgers had made off with their third straight, 5 to 3, one more would do the job.

Young Craig wasn't there for the curtain scene. Clem Labine played that, hustling over to first base to be in at the death when Gil Hodges took a throw from Junior Gilliam for the final putout, springing about the lawn with great, coltish leaps when the deed became official.

Labine had given invaluable aid from the seventh inning on, but for the long haul, the Dodgers had depended on the kid from Carolina. He didn't fail them. He held the pass while Duke Snider and Sandy Amoros slugged hoem the four indispensable runs, and when he went out the Yankees had scored twice and made only four hits.

That red fire was burning for him, and the ushers needn't have stamped it out. Until April, at least, Ebbets Field is strictly for the bats and owls.

Sidelights Of the Series

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (UP)—"We're back in business," chortled happy Casey Stengel today.

"Weren't the boys wonderful out there today?" he asked, moments after the Yankees had evened the series by beating the Dodgers, 5-1.

Stengel, of course, was pointing at Southpaw Whitey Ford.

The Cards are expected to announce Lane's hiring any day now.

Casey Stengel, who blamed himself for the two home runs Duke Snider hit yesterday, was a study in concentration when the Dodger center fielder came up for the first time in the opening frame.

Stengel sat stiffly upright on the Yankees' bench and didn't move a muscle as he stared at the action on the field in front of him. Only when Whitey Ford struck Snider out on a low pitch was Casey seen to breathe a tremendous sigh of relief.

Hustling Hank Bauer is dead tired from his all-out efforts during the regular American League campaign and Casey Stengel is aware of the fact.

Bauer has richly earned a rest in Stengel's book and the Yankee manager plans to give it to him—as much as possible —when the club tours Japan and Hawaii after the series is over.

First Hit Off Ford In Fourth

off walk to Berra and another single by Bauer, on which Yogi stopped at second, seemed promising, but Skowron flied to Snider, and Cerv grounded to Robinson, who tagged out Berra and fired to Hodges to nip the batter for the Dodgers' eleventh series double play, a record.

Ford lost his no-hitter to the first batter in the Brooklyn fourth, Reese, who sent a high hopper Martin corralled behind second base, but couldn't get to first in time. Surprisingly, because there was no ready evidence of injury to Snider, little righthander Don Zimmer pinch-batted for the home-run slugger and took a called third strike right down the middle. Campanella walked and when Furillo singled to left, scoring Reese, there was an outcry from the Dodger faithful, but then Hodges forced Furillo, Rizzuto to Martin, and Robinson forced Hodges the same way.

Amoros Moves to Center.

As the Dodgers took the field for the Yankee fourth, Zimmer went to second base, Gilliam shifted to left and Amoros moved to Snider's place in center.

The Yankees went down one-two-three in the fourth. Howard struck out. Ford rolled to Robinson and Reese threw out Rizzuto.

The awaited word on Snider came through, an injury to his left knee suffered when he stepped in a small hole while running down Skowron's third-inning fly, he reported from the visiting clubhouse. Something 'popped," Snider said.

Ford, breezing along, had no trouble from Brooklyn in the fifth. Amoros went out, Skowron unassisted, and Meyer fanned before Gilliam banged a base hit to left. McDougald closed out the inning with a good gloved grab of Reese's sharp grounder to his left.

Meyer's mastery over the Yankees was challenged in the fifth, which Martin began by lining a high screwball into left field for a single. McDougald flied deep to Amoros, but Berra, having a terrific series, compelled Umpire Dascoli at second base to skip rope to avoid his hot single to center, Yogi's ninth hit for a .473 average, Martin stopping at second. Bauer forced Berra, Robinson to Zimmer. At this point, Joe Collins, a lefthanded hitter, pinch-bated for Skowron and drew a walk that filled the bases and brought visions of more Yankee runs. However, Cerv ,hitting a neck-high "2-2" fast ball, popped to Reese.

The Dodgers took heart from an inning-opening walk to Zimmer in the sixth, and so did their fans, but Ford was only fooling. Whitey fired a third strike past Campanella, catching the outside corner. Furillo, with Zimmer running on a full-count pitch, grounded to Rizzuto, and Hodges rolled to McDougald.

Howard, first up in the Yankee sixth, looked at a dandy curve Meyer hooked across for strike three. Brooklyn's Mad Monk of the Mound then raced to the third base foul-line for Ford's topped roller and pegged out the opposing pitcher on a close play. The crowd applauded as Reese ranged to his right, backhanded Rizzuto's sharp grounder and threw out his long-time shortstop rival with a handsome effort.

To open the visitors' seventh, Robinson flied to Gerv in short center before Amoros blooped a single over second base. Frank Kellert, batting for Meyer, hit a pitch off his fists for a soft pop-up to Martin. When one of Ford's overhanded curves bounced in the dirt and away from Berra and rolled back to the distant stands, Amoros sped around to third on the wild pitch. Gilliam walked and the Brooklyn partisans set up a yell that increased as Reese grounded sharply far to Collins's right, but the Yankee first baseman got there and made a fine stop, firing to Rizzuto for a close force play on Gilliam. No runs.

Pitching for Brooklyn in the home seventh was righthander Ed Roebuck, making his World Series debut, an initial appearance that began shakily as Martin's grounder was fumbled by Rosinson for an inning-opening error. McDougald, trying to sacrifice, popped a bunt to Roebuck, charging off the mound. Hodges barely missed another of his 3-6-3 double plays, taking Berra's grounder, feeding the ball to Reese and then taking Pee Wee's return peg just too late. Bauer, next up, lifted a high pop fly to short right, a ball on which Zimmer gave up early and Amoros ran hard from center and couldn't get. The hit, Bauer's third, sent Berra to third, but he didn't score. Collins grounded to Zimmer for the third out.

Ford, dazzling the Dodgers now, moved through a smooth eighth, throwing a called third strike past Zimmer, retiring Campanella on a grounder to Rizzuto and fooling Furillo with a jagged curve Carl missed for strike three.

Roebuck, with better support, worked an easy eighth, too, grabbing Cerv's line drive, getting Howard on a fly to Furillo and Ford on a grounder to Hodges.

Tightening the Yankee defense for Brooklyn's last-try ninth, Stengel sent Noren to left field in Howard's place. Hodges grounded to Rizzuto. McDougald speared Robinson's torrid smash and threw him out. And it was all over as Amoros went down swinging on a slow curve.

Rookie Craig Victor in Fifth Game

By Bob Broeg

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3—Roger Craig, a rookie righthander, and Clem Labine, rugged relief pitcher, carried the Brooklyn Dodgers to their third straight World Series victory Sunday, a 5-3 decision that marked the Yankees' first loss of that many series contests in succession since the Cardinals of 1942 captured four straight over the New York Americans after losing the first game.

The 24-year-old Craig, called up with Don Bessent from productive Dodger farms in July when the front-line staff suffered crippling arm injuries, had allowed only four hits and two runs when he was replaced with none out in the seventh inning. He walked five men, but pitched strongly with runners in scoring position and merited victory in his series debut.

By contrast, for all of Casey Stengel's double-talk, a Yankee weakness was unfrocked when the Old Professor steadfastly stuck inning after inning with the Yankee starter, Bob Grim, even passing up a chance to pinch-hit for the pitcher, a .120 batter, with two men on, two out and Craig presumably floundering in the fourth inning.

The Yankees trailed 3-1 and Stengel already had seen fit to use a pinch-batter for his shortstop, Phil Rizzuto. But when he permitted Grim to hit for himself, it was inferentially an admission of unwillingness to rely on the New York bullpen. Not even Ol' Case could be that confident of winning two out of two in his own park. Or could he?

At any rate, the able Grim, son of a Brooklyn tavern-keeper, hurled six innings during which he gave up six hits of which three were homers, two by Duke Snider, accounting for four runs. The only Flatbush tally not traceable directly to a four-base blast came off Bob Turley in the eighth when the Dodgers sandwiched a sacrifice between their eighth and ninth safeties.

Yogi's Sixth Series Homer.

Yogi Berra, the kid from home, had two of New York's six hits, including his sixth homer as a world series competitor. Bob Cerv, pinch-batting, also teed off as the sixth hitting substitute to homer since Yogi first did so in 1947.

The largest series crowd in Brooklyn's history—36,796—sat in on the sunny Sabbath show in which Stengel once again juggled his lineup, Mickey Mantle taking his pulled hamstring muscle and painful limp to the sidelines. To load up with as much lefthanded power as possible, the foxy Yankee manager shifted Joe Collins to right field and played Eddie Robinson at first base, but it was a lefthanded hitter—Irv Noren— who most damaged the American Leaguers' cause. He went hitless in four trips and grounded into his fourth and fifth double plays of the series. Noren has had only one bloop single in 16 trips.

The Yankees had a golden chance in the second inning in which Collins and Robinson drew successive walks with none out, but Craig turned on the heat and soon found himself with a 2-0 lead, a result of Gil Hodges' single and a homer by Sandy Amoros in the home half of the frame.

The next inning Snider found the range, providing a three-run cushion that was jeopardized when Berra opened the fourth with a single, Robinson walked with one away and Billy Martin stroked a run-scoring single. Stengel then sent up Bill Skowron for Rizzuto, but the pinch-hitter fouled out and Grim, permitted to bat for himself as mentioned, lined out.

DP To Rescue.

Craig appeared in more trouble, beginning the fifth, when Elston Howard singled, but before Gil McDougald walked, Noren bounced into a double play and Berra ended the inning with a sharp grounder to Hodges.

Snider's second homer in the last of the fifth made it a 4-1 ball game. Then in the seventh after Cerv's circuit clout, pinch-batting, and a base on balls to Howard, Labine came in to relieve Craig. When Noren hit into a double play and McDougald tapped to Labine, the happy Dodgers hugged their pitcher as he came to the dugout.

Berra opened the eighth with his home run, cutting the Brooklyn lead to one slim run. With one out Robinson—Eddie, that is—singled and young Tom Carroll ran for him, but Martin hit into the third double play executed by the Dodgers in the game and the tenth twin-killing they've turned to tie a series record set by Washington in 1924 and first matched by the Yankees in '51.

In the home eighth the Dodgers added their insurance run off Turley on Furillo's safety, Hodges's sacrifice and Jackie Robinson's timely single. And when Labine worked a one-two-three ninth, the Yankees went back over the bridge to Manhattan empty-handed, defeated in three successive series games for the first time since World War II.

Snider Hurt, But Says He'll Play in Final

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—Duke Snider, on the very verge of writing his name with baseball's greatest in World Series annals, vowed today he will play tomorrow despite his injured left knee—"and it feels pretty good."

The big, handsome Brooklyn Dodger popped a cartilege when he stepped in a hole running for Bill Skowron's fly in the third.

"My knee popped as soon as I started," he said somberly. "I went on running"—and caught the ball—"but it was a leg I hurt earlier in Chicago, and so I asked Walt Alston to take me out."

"In Chicago I was so stiff I could hardly walk the next day. But now I'll play even if it's stiff."

Snider has hit four home runs in this series, and now has a total of nine in series play—only one behind the great Lou Gehrig of the Yankees. Babe Ruth heads the list with 15.

Manager Alston was as sober and quiet as his big centerfielder. He confirmed what he said yesterday, namely, that he will start John Podres on the mound tomorrow. Podres won the third game from the Yankees, 8-3.

Snider spent most of the game in the Dodger dressing room undergoing whirlpool bath treatment.

Dr. Eugene Zorn, the Dodger physician, said he believed Snider could play.

Alston said his lineup tomorrow for the big final game would depend entirely on Snider's condition. When Snider went out, he shifted Junior Gilliam from second base to left field, moved Sandy Amoros from left to center field to take Snider's post, and sent Don Zimmer to second base.

The gloomy Dodgers made much of the fact they might have gotten out of the first inning scoreless, but for a few bad breaks. Under normal circumstances Catcher Roy Campanella, with his rifle arm, might have caught Phil Rizzuto when he stole secondafter getting a walk. It looked as if Gilliam was slow covering, and Campanella was slow getting the throw away.

"I saw Rizzuto when he started to steal, but I didn't break for the bag right away because you're not supposed to leave too fast," said Gilliam. "Anyway, the ball caught in the web of Campy's glove."

A moment later, after Gil McDougald had walked, putting two Yankees on base with only one out, Yogi Berra hit a bounding ball just beyond the reach of Pitcher Karl Spooner. Gilliam broke for it but could not reach it. If he had it might have been a double play.

"Berra's ball stayed down low," said Gilliam. "I was playing Berra to the right, and I just couldn't get to it."

Alston answered questions in a low voice. "Newk wasn't right," he said. "I don't know whether I can use him tomorrow or not."

He was referring to big Don Newcombe, his 20-game winner in the regular season, but a disappointment in the first game of the series.

Also on the Dodger injury list is Jackie Robinson. He aggravated an old soreness in his right leg and played with it taped up.

"I couldn't get up on my toes," he said.

Smerek's Hit Ends Thriller

By Neal Russo

It looked like a wild football contest as teammates swarmed over Chuck Vogt after he scored the winning run. Ray Smerek, whose line-smash single to left broke up the game in the tenth, had to use his old gridiron savvy to survive the congratulatory pounding he took at Fairground Park yesterday.

Elsewhere, Erv Liberton, Coach Jack O'Reilly's old star quarterback at St. Louis U. High, was bowled over for stopping Kutis North almost cold again in a 2-1 victory for Carondelet Sunday Morning Club in the Muny baseball title game.

All this vigorous horseplay was excusable, for it was the first Muny championship for Carondelet after many years of trying and only one other really close call — in 1948. The South Siders had to do it the hard way, too. After being routed by Kutis, 10-5, in the two-losses-and-out tourney, Carondelet had to beat Hoffmeisters and then Kutis two successive times.

"I wore the same shirt, pants, cap, socks, shoes and belt I wore last week," said a superstitious Monte Gummels, who thus broke his playoff jinx after winning five South Side League pennants in as many tries as manager. "Even had the same ham and eggs," he said.

Tough to Repeat.

"That shows how tough it is to win the Muny title two years straight," said Manager Al Mick of Kutis, which came close to joining Fouke as the only repeat winner in the long history of Muny baseball. It was a heart-breaking loss for Kutis Pitcher Chuck Currinder, who deserved to win on a nine-inning shutout.

Borbein-Young Manager Lou Boggiano and others said one had to go a long way to find a better final series than this year's—the 3-1 Carondelet victory in 11 innings a week earlier and then the 10-inning thriller in the final. Coach Mark Christman of Carondelet said he could recall few instances of such thrillers back-to-back in all his years of pro experience.

In the final, it was Liberton all over as he ran his playoff record against Kutis to two runs allowed, only one earned, in 23⅓ innings. Again he was backed by a terrific defense that made only one harmless error, in the first inning.

Shortstop Vogt, Second Baseman Kenny Whitehead and Center Fielder Gene Valloni made the big difference in the field. All are newcomers.

Valloni Drives in Run.

Carondelet scored in the second inning. Eddie Kestler singled just out of Third Baseman Bob Burrichter's reach, took second when Marv Hacay mishandled the ball in left and tallied on Valloni's single.

Kutis tied it in the seventh on singles by Bob Louis, Jack Caito and Lee Engert, who was on base four times in five tries. With two down in the tenth, Vogt, who had singled, got around on singles by Whitehead and Smerek.

Currinder had a five-hitter for nine innings, walked only three and fanned four. He had far less trouble to wiggle out of than Liberton, who yielded two walks and a single in the first and stranded three in the eighth after walking two intentionally.

Play-off standings: Carondelet 4-1, Kutis 2-2, Hoffmeisters 3-2, Borbeins 1-2, McNearys 1-2, Kimacks 0-2.

Kutis, Tabacchi and Carondelet Elevens Win Soccer Matches

Kutis, Tabacchi and Carondelet Sunday Morning Club soccer elevens, preparing for the opening of the regular season next Sunday, came through with victories in practice games.

The Kutis club, paced by Bill Looby with three goals, doefeated the R. K. and A. Jones team, 10-0, at Fee Fee Gardens. Rich Meisemann tallied twice, while Butch Cook, Joe Carrenza, Ruben Mendoza, Harry Keough and Mendoza, Harry Keough and George Flores each tallied once.

At Scott Air Force Base, the Tabacchis routed the base team, 6-0, while Carondelet won from the Jadrans 7-0. Jimmy White scored three goals, Pat White two and Joe Gerdes one for Tabacchis.

Carondelet is scheduled to play Scott International Thursday night.

The Carondelets, Jadrans, Tabacchis and Scott elevens will play in the Muny League this season.

Normandie Golf Winners.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ebersole's net score of 74 took top honors in the mixed two-ball foresome at Normandie Golf Club. Mr. and Mrs. Bert Hammun and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Harbacek tied for second with 76.

Furgol Fifth; Evans Wins in Golf Tourney

HUNTINGTON, N. Y., Oct. 3 (AP)—The Long Island Rotary open golf tournament, won by lightly regarded Max Evans of Utica, Mich., will be a fixture on future P.G.A. schedules although the four-day competition ending yesterday operated at a slight financial loss.

Officials of the sponsoring organizations said the tournament probably would be held at a more accessible location in the future.

The Huntington Crescent Club course, over which the 36-year-old Evans turned in a 273 for 72 holes, is located some 50 miles from the center of New York City. Ray O'Brien, P.G.A. supervisor, also assured the Rotarians of a better break in dates next year.

Ed Furgol of St. Louis, former national open champion, totaled 278 and finished in fifth place, good for $1000. Furgol, after an opening round 71, had three consecutive rounds of 69.

Evans shot a 3-under par 67 on the final day and finished three strokes in front of Tommy Bolt of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Don Fairfield of Casey, Ill. First place was worth $2400. Bolt and Fairfield each won $1600. Tommy had 67 and Don 70 for their last rounds.

Hungarian Runner Beats World Mark

VIENNA, Oct. 3 (AP)—Sandor Rozsavoelgyi, another of Hungary's many great middle distance runners, bettered the listed world record for 2000 meters, the Budapest radio reported, with a clocking of 5 minutes, 2.2 seconds.

The listed mark for the distance, approximately a mile, and a quarter, is 5:07 by Gaston Reiff of Belgium. It was set in Brussels on Sept. 29, 1948.

Hezel Triples, Creve Coeur Is Victor in 13th

Jake Hezel's triple to right-center with two on in the thirteenth inning broke up a pitching duel between Jules Faron of Creve Coeur and Charley Galati of Ballwin and gave Creve Coeur a 3-1 victory yesterday in the County Baseball League semifinal playoffs.

The series is now squared at one victory apiece and the deciding game will be Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at Ballwin. The winner will meet Florissant, which won the National division playoff earlier, in a best-of-three series for the title won by Creve Coeur last season.

Faron shut the door after Ballwin scored in the first inning. He yielded only six hits and blanked Hank Arft, former major leaguer, in five times at bat.

Williams Winner In Casting Tourney

Len Williams had a 391 score of a possible 400 for the all-round championship yesterday in a casting tournament at Forest Park. Williams, representing the Carondelet Fly and Bait Casting Club, took the dry fly title with a perfect 100 and won all-ly honors with 199.

Other winners:
ALL-BAIT ACCURACY — Ed Lanser, St. Louis Club, 195.
⅝-OUNCE—Lanser, 98.
⅝-OUNCE (five-way tie with 97) —Lanser, Clem Forcade, St. Louis Club; Jake Graf and Don Kampmeinert, North St. Louis Club; and Vic Weidemann Jr., Carondelet.

Ollie Sweeney of the North St. Louis Casting Club won the ⅝-ounce event in the junior division with a score of 98.

Bears to Face Drake in Third Game at Home

Washington University's football schedule gives the Bears an early-season break, providing a team with considerable new material the advantage of home-field comforts for the first three games. So far the Bears at .500, and their chance to get ahead in the world is represented in a game at Francis Field Saturday against Drake.

The homebody Bears play six games at Francis Field, three game away, this season. They lost their opener, to Missouri Mines, and Saturday upset Wabash College, 20-14, when Mel Siegel threw a pass to Don Polkinghorne. It was a 70-yard touchdown play, and four seconds remained on the clock when it was completed.

That finish was a stimulus for this week's work, and victory against Drake would be a stimulus for the next two weeks. After Drake, the Bears do the major portion of their road work for the season, against opposition capable of making them homesick. They play Western Reserve at Cleveland Oct. 15, and Western Michigan at Kalamazoo, Oct. 22.

Lane Is Favored to Win Over De Marco

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (UP)—Southpaw Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., will continue his busy campaign for a shot at the lightweight crown tonight in a TV 10-rounder with ex-champion Paddy DeMarco at St. Nicholas Arena.

Sixth-ranking Lane, who won 10 of his 11 fights this year, is favored at 7-5 to whip the "Brooklyn Billygoat." Lane, 22, is favored because of his speed and aggressiveness. He is a comparatively light puncher, like DeMarco.

Redskins Hold Top In East

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—Led by a couple of yearlings, the frisky Baltimore Colts are kicking up their heels in the National Football League.

The youngsters, Alan Ameche and George Shaw, have accounted for all the Baltimore touchdowns in a surprising season in which the Colts find themselves in a three-way tie for the lead in the N.F.L.'s Western Conference today after whipping Detroit, 28-13, over the weekend. The Colts, like the Green Bay Packers and Los Angeles Rams, have 2-0 records, and the Colts meet the Packers Saturday night in the best game on the N.F.L. card.

Any forecaster who predicted, before the season started, that the Baltimore-Green Bay game would bring together two unbeaten teams would have been laughed out of town. But that's the way it has been going in the pro league this season.

Green Bay kept pace by shellacking the Chicago Bears yesterday, 24-3, while the Rams cut it as close as possible with a 27-26 victory over Pittsburgh, achieved on Les Richter's 33-yard field goal just as the gun sounded.

Redskins Lead in East.

Washington, another surprise package, leads the Eastern Conference with a 2-0 mark after its wildly-exciting 31-30 squeaker over Philadelphia Saturday night. In other games yesterday, Cleveland's powerful Browns snapped back after an opening loss to crush San Francisco 38-3 and the Chicago Cardinals upended New York 28-17.

A record crowd of 40,030 watched in awe at Baltimore as the Colts manhandled the Lions. After all, the team had won only three games a year since coming back into the league in 1953. And these were the mighty Detroit Lions, whom they had never beaten.

But Ameche and Shaw were not in the league during the past two seasons, and apparently they were too busy playing college ball — or studying — to read about the Lions' prowess.

In any event, Ameche bowled two yards through the Lion line for one touchdown and added another on a 52-yard gallop.

When Ameche, nicknamed "The Horse" before he ever became a Colt, wasn't running through the Lions, Shaw was passing over their heads. He hit for two touchdowns and the 28 points the Colts accumulated so stimulated the defensive platoon they stopped Detroit cold in the second half.

Tobin Rote Again Stars.

Green Bay owes much of its early success to the "new" Tobin Rote. Although he has been in the N.F.L. five years, 1955 is the first year he's been consistently hot-pitching the pigskin and the result has been two straight victories. Rote fired 32 yards to Bill Howton for one touchdown yesterday and connected with Gary Knafelc for a 28-yard clincher in the final period. In between scoring passes, Rote plunged one yard for the other Packer touchdown.

It seemed for a time that Los Angeles's generosity would hand its game to Pittsburgh. Two fumbles and a disastrous fourth-down punt attempt virtually handed the Steelers three touchdowns, but the Rams pulled themselves together and marched from their 30 to Pittsburgh's 26, with the aid of a hotly disputed 15-yard penalty. Richter booted the winning field goal from the 33 and Pittsburgh Coach Walt Kiesling blasted the officials for what he called the "worst" officiating he's ever seen.

Otto Graham, the un-retired Brown quarterback who couldn't get started in Cleveland's first game against Washington, got thoroughly warmed up against San Francisco. Shooting his passes through the San Francisco defense, Graham guided an attack that rolled up 357 yards. When San Francisco closed up to stop the passes, he sent Ed (Big Mo) Modzelewski and Fred (Curley) Morrison crashing through the weary 49er line.

The Cardinals utilized two long scoring passes by Lamar McHan, one play covering 51 yards to Ollie Matson and one for 74 to Gern Nagler, plus a 65-yard run by Dave Mann, to upset the Giants. The Cards' other score came when Jim Psaltis intercepted a pass and ran seven yards to score.

DOWN THE STRETCH

by Herman Wecke

Improved With Age.

A HORSE bred by A. G. Vanderbilt was one of the outstanding performers of the Cahokia Downs meeting, which closed last Saturday night. . . . He was Re-Shuffle, the five-year-old, owned by Thurman Gammon. . . . The son of Case Ace-Fresh Stout by Discovery, finished with six victories in seven starts. . . . He thus tied Mister Plucky for the most firsts at the 60-day and night meeting.

Re-Shuffle really came into his own after the Gammon string moved from Fairmount to Cahokia. . . . At the Collinsville course he had two wins, two places and one show in 10 trips to the post. . . . At Cahokia the Gammon star earned $6675, giving him a total of $8625 for the year, the result of eight firsts, two seconds and one third in 17 starts.

At Cahokia, Re-Shuffle won in the sprints and over a route. . . . His biggest triumph came on the final night, when he started in a handicap for the first time. . . . Going the mile, with Larry Gammon, the owner's son, in the irons, he made every post a winning one to add $1950 to his winnings.

One of the oddities was that despite his fine record, he always went to the post as a long shot. . . . When he won on July 23, he paid $11.20 for $2. . . . Aug. 13 it was $20.80. . . . In his following triumphs he paid off to the tune of $9.20, $12.60, $9.20 and $14. . . . Larry Gammon was up in four of the victories, Billy Gummow once and Jake Colclasure on the other occasion.

In Money 161 Times.

CLARENCE MEAUX, the Abbeville, La., rider, the meet's leading rider, was in the money 161 times in 327 attempts during the Cahokia meeting. . . . That means that 49 per cent of his horses were in the money. . . . In addition to his 68 firsts, he had 50 seconds and 43 thirds.

Statistics for the meeting show that of the 76 jockeys who rode, 53 rode at least one winner. . . . Nineteen of the riders had 10 or more firsts to their credit. . . . Three newcomers to the jockey fraternity in the St. Louis district made good showings. . . . Jake Colclasure was second with 44 wins, Art Farrell had 30 and Wayne Chambers 18. . . . And another, Bobby Mundorf, was doing well at the finish. . . .

The leading riders:

	W.	P.	S.
Meaux	68	50	43
Colclasure	44	25	34
Gummow	36	23	21
Clemens	30	42	43
Farrell	30	24	27
Sanabria	24	16	16
White	22	20	10
Murphy	19	27	25
Domenico	18	16	16
Chambers	18	18	15

Favorites Won 158 Races.

PUBLIC choices came into the winner's circle 158 times in the 526 races at the track for a .30 percentage. . . . Second choices won 121 times; those who went to the post as third choices 84 times and long shots on 163 occasions. . . .

Track operators were especially well pleased with the mutuel handle for the final week, when a total of $1,662,526 passed through the windows. . . . Three times the total was over $300,000. . . . It was $317,883 last Tuesday; $378,379 Friday and $389,001 closing night. . . . The fans wagered $767,380 on the final two nights. . . .

The exodus of horsemen to other tracks began late last week and will continue for several days. . . . Jockey Meaux will go to his home for several days and then return to Chicago to finish out the Hawthorne meeting and ride at Sportsman's Park. . . . Wally Humes, the Southwest High School graduate, will ride at the Wheeling, W. Va., meeting. . . . Says the Cahokia meeting was the worst he ever experienced. . . . He had only 30 mounts and did not ride a winner. . . . Had two seconds and a third. . . . Many of the officials, who served at the meeting, went to Chicago, and others to Kentucky. . . . Later many of them will serve at the Sunshine Park meeting in Florida.

Faurot Plans Light Work for Crippled Tigers

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 3 — Coach Don Faurot prescribed rest as a means of getting up spirits of the Missouri Tigers today before beginning preparation for the fourth intersectional game with Southern Methodist at Dallas, Friday night.

He plans a light week with only two days' practice ahead before the Tigers depart Thursday. The squad will remain over at Dallas Saturday to witness the Oklahoma-Texas game before returning here.

Faurot hopes to get back three of his injured veterans who missed play yesterday in the 14-20 loss to Utah. He expects Gail Curtright and George Cramer to be available at halfbacks and Pete Craig at end, but is not at all certain that his No. 1 quarterback, Jim Hunter or No. 1 left halfback Sonny Stringer will be in condition.

Absence of the veterans contributed to the upset loss to Utah although Faurot attributed it to "too many mistakes."

He had praise for the Tiger line which limited Utah to 2.6 yards per try, but pass defense was something else again and he admitted that the team needed Hunter, or some other leader to keep it together. On the basis of his performance in sparking the two touchdowns drives, Dave Doan took over as No. 1 quarterback today, moving ahead of Dick Stuber. The job is Hunter's, however, if he is able to play.

BONN OFFICIAL WARNS WEST ON RED SOFT TALK

Says It Would Be 'Fatal' to Be Taken In by Kremlin's 'Clever Appeal.'

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (UP)—West German Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano said today the West will achieve, no peace, but its own destruction if it is "taken in" by the smiles and soft talk emanating from Moscow since the Geneva summit meeting.

In a speech before the National Press Club, the German diplomat said the Russians are making a "celevr appeal" to the world's deep longing for peace and friendly relations. But he said it would be a "fatal" mistake if the West were "misled by any such enticing assurances" to relax its own defense efforts.

He said Russia's goal is "to break u pthe defensive organization of the West, to drive American forces from Europe, and to establish her own military supremacy on the cointinent of Europe."

Warns of 'Destruction.'

"If the West should be so rash as to neglect her own security and freedom by allowing her sol effective guaranties—namely her alliances for the maintenance of peace—to be weakened, then, I believe, the so-called relaxation of tension would turn into disintegration and finally destruction."

Von Bretano said his talks with the Western Big Three foreign ministers in New York last week convinced him that they are in "complete agreement" about the strategy to be followed at the Big Four foreign ministers meeting with Russia starting at Geneva Oct. 27.

At this meeting, he said, the West will "take the initiative in making workable and constructive proposals" for reunifying Germany and setting up a European system that would promote a true basis for lasing peace.

By the Associated Press.

Won't Quit Ties With West.

Von Brentano said yesterday his country was not prepared to surrender its freedom or its ties with the West as the price of Russian agreement to unification.

Von Brentano said West Germany is "inseparably linked" with the Atlantic allies. Withdrawal, he said, would soon bring reunification—"but as a part of the satellite system of the Soviet Union."

The Foreign Minister added in an interview recorded for television and radio broadcast:

"And you may be convinced that neither the 50,000,000 Germans in the Federal Republic of Germany nor the 18,000,000 Germans in the so-called German democratic republic (East Germany) are prepared to pay this price."

He said 90 per cent of the East Germans would "vote for the democracy, for freedom, for liberty, for the West."

Von Brentano declared West Germany stands ready to support "in Europe and in the world a true security system." This, he added, could relieve tension and test Soviet arguments that the Russians "feel themselves threatened in their security."

The West Garman diplomat said such a security system could include NATO and the Western European Union.

A neutralized Germany, Von Brentano said, "would constitute a very grave danger for all the world." He gave this reason:

"We would not be able to pursue a policy of our own. Earlier or later we would have to side, either with one side or with the other side. This might lead to a shift in the balance of power or a shift in various ways."

NEGRO TAKES OVER AS MINISTER OF ALL-WHITE CHURCH

OLD MYSTIC, Conn., Oct. 3 (AP)—A Negro minister has taken over as pastor of an all-white church here.

The Rev. Simon P. Montgomery, 33 years old, of Norwich became the new pastor of the Old Mystic Methodist Church yesterday without formal installation ceremonies.

The all-white congregation of about 300 voted unanimously last week to accept the Rev. Mr. Montgomery as their pastor. He will live at the parsonage of weekends but on weekdays he'll stay in Norwich where he is a member of the faculty at the regional technical school.

The Rev. Mrs. Montgomery is the second Negro to serve an all-white congregation in Connecticut. For the last five years, the Rev. Roland T. Heacock, former pastor of a Negro church in Springfield, Mass., has been pastor of the Congregational Church in Staffordville.

B-29 AND ITS EQUIPMENT ON DISPLAY AT EXPOSITION

Airmen from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, will explain equipment housed in the fuselage of a B-29 Superfortress on display at the International Hunting and Firearms Exposition which opens tomorrow at the Arena.

The airplane, which has been stripped of its wings and tail assembly, is similar to World War II models which dropped the first atomic bomb over Hiroshima and later Nagasaki in 1945. It is 99 feet in length.

Equipment housed in the plane's body includes the Norden bomb sight, radio and radar gear, armament and dummy bombs. The exposition will continue through Sunday.

Liquor Rationing Off, Sweden Has Soberest Weekend in Years

Shift From Whisky to Beer 'Made People Friendly'—No Wife-Beating Reports in Stockholm.

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 3 (AP)—Sweden's reputation as a hard-drinking nation went overboard in one Saturday night—the first time it was put to a real test in 36 years.

The orgies of whisky selling forecast for the end of liquor rationing yesterday failed to come off.

Instead, the Swedes guzzled oceans of strong beer Saturday night and into the wee hours of Sunday morning. With the switch from hard liquor to beer drinking, the Swedes spent one of their soberest and quietest weekends since liquor rationing was clamped on the nation in 1919.

Police said "not one single case of wife-beating by drunken husbands was reported in Stockholm. This was most unusual for a Saturday night."

"It was as quiet here as in a church," said the chief of the Katarina police station, normally full of drunks on a Sunday morning. Only 12 persons were arrested the whole weekend. Three or four times that number was usual for a Saturday night.

"Real beer made people friendly instead of quarrelsome as when they drank whisky and schnapps," restaurant waiters observed.

A great many Swedes tasted real beer for the first time in their lives. For 36 years they have been forced to drink an insipid brew containing 2.8 per cent alcohol.

Swedish "strong beer," previously only brewed for export, contains 4½ per cent alcohol, while the alcoholic content of imported foreign beers varies. The new beer was received with great enthusiasm.

Under the rationing system now abolished, male adults 25 years or older could have three quarts of hard liquor monthly, bought in the state-owned liquor stores.

DEATH IN CRASH FOLLOWED STAR'S SPEEDING ARREST

BAKERSFIELD, Calif., Oct. 3 (AP)—The state highway patrol disclosed yesterday that Hollywood movie actor James Dean got a speeding ticket near here Friday less than two hours before he died in a head-on automobile crash near Paso Robles.

Checking time of the citation with that of the fatal accident many miles to the north, officers reckoned the 24-year-old actor must have driven his Porsche Spyder sports car all the way at an average speed of nearly 75 miles per hour.

A WANT AD

talks business to everybody...and is heard

For as little as

a day you can run a WANT AD ON the local 7-day rate.

MA 1-1111

talk to an ad-taker and charge it.

AD-TAKERS

are on duty every day except SUNDAY...FROM

8 A.M. to 9 P.M.

If it's a salesman you want, you'll look far before you'll find a better one than a want ad.

Small as it is, it packs a mighty wallop, and gets in places where a two-legged salesman can't get the tip of his shoe. There are no barriers a want ad can't hurdle; it encounters no sales resistance because it's paid for by the advertiser and sought by the reader who buys the Post-Dispatch to know what's for sale and who has it for sale. It's wanted.

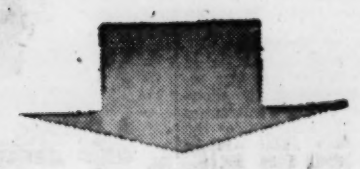

The want ad is a tireless worker for anyone willing to hire its services.

It is a guide to business opportunities, often a promoter of an enterprise. It sells real estate, unused commodities and has a voice in thousands of transactions like no other medium of advertising.

It talks business to everybody, and is heard.

For the price you pay, a Post-Dispatch want ad is a force in selling you can't afford to ignore. Better than a million individual ads have been published during the last twelve months in the Post-Dispatch, and a million-plus of anything is worth consideration.

So, for things you want to buy, sell or rent, read and use Post-Dispatch want ads.

WHAT IS IT THAT YOU WANT?

MAJOR GROUPS IN THIRD-DAY STOCK PRICE SETBACK

Closing Weakness After Mid-Session Selling Flurry — Associated With President's Illness by Traders.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—Widespread weakness in the stock market today sent it down below the bottom of the lowest point reached a week ago in the break that accompanied news of the President's heart attack.

There was an estimated decline of four billion dollars in the quoted values of securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange. A week ago the loss was estimated at 13 billion dollars.

A flurry of selling early in the day cut prices back sharply. Then the market steadied itself until the final hour when a phase of acute weakness developed.

Prices of all leading issues slipped quickly. Losses of 1 to around 5 points were frequent, and some losses extended to between 8 and 9 points.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was down $3.80 at $169.50. A week ago the average closed at $170.10. The decline today was the third greatest of this year.

(Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 10.92 points to 455.70 or .14 of a point above the close last Monday when the index slumped 31.89 points. The 20 rails slipped 3.41 points to 151.64 and the 15 utilities lost .76 of a point at 62.38.)

Associated Press average of 60 stocks closed down 3.8 points at 169.5. The industrial stock index lost 6.2 points, rail index 3 points and utilities .9 of a point.

The market broadened 29 issues compared with last Friday to total of 1210 shares. Of these 932 closed down, 142 up and 136 were unchanged and 6 new highs.

London stocks were lower today, the Financial Times index going down 2.2 points to 188.8.

Trading was speedy during the flurry that started near the beginning of the third hour, and the tape was 2 minutes late for a brief time in reporting the progress of business on the floor on the New York stock exchange. The total came to an aggregate 2,720,000 shares for the day. That compares with 2,140,000 shares traded Friday when the market declined a bit.

A week ago the market was in the grip of one of its worst reactions that came with news of President's illness. Since then it has had two days of recovery and two days of reaction with prices on average well up from their lows. Today's market, however, cut in on that margin of recovery from the Monday break.

BUSINESS WORLD

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—The nation's steel mills will operate at 96.5 per cent of rated capacity this week and produce 2,330,000 tons of ingots and steel for castings, the American Iron & Steel Institute said. The institute reported that production last week amounted to 2,341,000 tons which was 97.0 per cent of capacity.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS DISPLAY WEAKNESS

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—Weakness in convertible issues led the Bond Market lower early today. Trading was moderately active.

U.S. Treasury bonds were unchanged at times in the over-the-counter market. Volume was thin with much of the activity professional in character.

Most corporate declines were in major fractions.

Rails wtre mostly off.

BANK CLEARINGS.

St. Louis bank clearings for Oct. 3 were $111,100,000 compared with $96,200,000 a year ago.

SLACK DEMAND CUTS DOWN GRAIN PRICES

Fairly Large Cash Receipts, Rain in Wheat Belt Are Influences.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3 (AP)—Grains closed weak on the Board of Trade today even though final prices were up a bit from the day's lows. Selling pressure never became heavy but demand was very limited in all pits. It was this lack of demand which was mainly responsible for the decline. Losses ran to a cent or more in wheat and corn and to more than 3 cents at one time in soybeans. Oats dipped only fractionally while rye at times managed to sell above the previous close. Fairly large cash grain receipts, more moisture in the winter wheat belt and weakness in other markets upset grains.

BUMPER COTTON CROP IN SIGHT: $10 BREAK

Private Estimates Indicate Larger Production Than U.S. Forecast.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP) — Cotton futures declined the daily trading limit of $10 a bale in most deliveries today on heavy liquidation. Selling was touched off by weakness in the Liverpool cotton futures market and sharply higher private forecasts of 1955 cotton crop in the United States.

The limit decline finally attracted some trade and replacement buying on the theory that the selling had been overdone. Prices rebounded about $4 to $5 a bale, but in early afternoon again displayed some easiness.

One private survey estimated the cotton crop at 13,600,000 bales and another at 14,240,000 bales. This compares with the official September forecast of 12,873,000 bales and the 1954 crop of 13,696,000 bales. On the basis of the crop ideas, traders saw an increase rather than decrease likely in the cotton surplus.

Late afternoon prices were $4.90 to $7.10 a bale lower than the previous close. Oct. 31.60, December 31.43 and March 30.70.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—Cotton futures closed $5.90 to $7.70 a bale lower than the previous close.

Business Outlook

PROFOUND CHANGE HAS TAKEN PLACE

By J. A. Livingston

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.

ON THE DAY after the presidential election in 1948, Robert Cutler, who today is chairman of the board of the Old Colony Trust Co., Boston, was scheduled to "deliver a message" to a large gathering of celebrants of the expected victory of Thomas E. Dewey. The topic was pre-selected by Sinclair Weeks, now Secretary of Commerce. It was: "The Changed Climate in Washington Under Dewey."

"Needless to Say," Cutler told members of the American Bankers Association at their convention in Chicago, "I had to change my message." Since then, Cutler has become an assistant and close associate of President Eisenhower, having served as chairman of the Planning Board if the powerful National Security Council. He has returned to his post at the Old Colony Trust and serves as a consultant to the President and the Council.

"I DO NOT HAVE TO change my message today," he told the bankers, "notwithstanding the sudden illness of my dear friend and chief, the President. I know there was a little nervousness on the stock exchange on Monday. But I also know one pretty good trust company that isn't selling its common stocks." Cheers. "If any one wants the name of that trust company, I'll be glad to tell him privately after the meeting." Laughter.

Allyn P. Evans, president of Lionel D. Edie & Co., New York investment advisory firm, also had a prepared speech. He spent a tortured Sunday. Should he simmer down his optimism? No, he wouldn't: 1956 would be a year of "normal growth." Industrial production wouldn't spurt 10%, as in 1955. But it would advance 4%.

STRONG ECONOMIC forces would still be exerting upward pressure on production, employment, and profits: Capital expenditures by businessmen; increased spending by states and municipalities for public works, roads and buildings; the continued growth in population. Therefore, argued Evans, President Eisenhower's heart attack, though a great shock, would not be a long-term disrupting influence. It would not change the business trend.

W. Randolph Burgess, Under Secretary of the Treasury, also stood pat. His original text read: "As the result of the wise leadership of President Eisenhower, our military might is more powerful than ever while the stability of our currency has been firmly maintained. These two objectives are supplementing one another and giving strength to our nation."

TO THAT BURGESS appended these final words in full resonance: "They are well-established policies of our Government. Ladies and gentlemen, they will continue!"

So it went. Homer I. Livingston, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, and retiring president of the A.B.A., felt that inflationary pressures would continue in the economy; that business in 1956 would be "very good, but probably not quite so good as 1955. Business has such momentum I don't think the news will have much effect."

Fred F. Florence, president of the Republic National Bank of Dallas and newly named president of the A.B.A. was less placid: "I'm tremendously concerned. Confidence is an important element in prosperity. The people have great faith in President Eisenhower's leadership and any interruption of that leadership will cause uncertainty."

I SHARE FLORENCE'S view. All of us—you and I, business men, bankers, consumers, and the leaders of both political parties—are compelled to make a reappraisal, an agonizing reappraisal, of the political outlook, and the resultant economic outlook. The header the stock market took on Monday was an instance of such reappraisal.

When a market breaks 31 points it leaves scars, doubts. People wonder: Has the trend changed? The very act of wondering causes them to reassess the outlook. Where once was certainty, assurance, and a clear course ahead, there's questioning, there's hesitation. That makes a difference. To be sure, the assets of the steel industry haven't changed, nor the assets of banks and utility companies. Nor the managements of business. Physically, this is the same America peopled by the same people.

BUSINESS COMMITMENTS and speculative undertakings were based on a continuance of Eisenhower policies into 1960. These were policies business men understood and, for the most part, approved. Now there's an interregnum. We're all less sure of policies, the future, and where we stand.

One example: Throughout the last five years, consumers have been willing to consign a larger and larger proportion of personal income to installment commitments. And sellers of goods and lenders have willingly gone along, confident that under Eisenhower high levels of production and employment would prevail.

But a Democrat might take up residence in the White House—only 15 months hence. Yes, a profound change has taken place in the outlook. The past serves as a reminder: The title of that unmade speech—"The Changed Climate in Washington Under Dewey."

BRITISH TO DRAFT SELF-RULE PLAN FOR ZANZIBAR

LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP)—The colonial office said today Britain and the sultan of Zanzibar plan to give Zanzibar some form of self government within the British Commonwealth.

The statement emphasized that self government should develop "by appropriate stages" for the 150,000 persons who occupy the clove-producing island off the east coast of Africa. Zanzibar became a British protectorate in 1890, although still retaining an Arab ruler.

The colonial office statement said Britain plans to put proposals for gradual self government before Zanzibar's legislative council at an "early date."

CREW CHANGE BY AIRLINER

LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP)—The British royal navy will take to the air Nov. 1 to change crews on the cruiser Newcastle at Singapore. Fifteen chartered airliners are to fly 750 officers and men from Britain to the 9000-ton warship and ferry back the old crew.

The admiralty explained this would save the nine weeks normally needed for the voyage home and rule out the necessity of sending another cruiser to replace the Newcastle during recommissioning.

G.O.P. MAKES APPEAL DIRECT TO WORKERS

Seeks Votes as Individuals Rather Than as Members of Unions.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Republican leaders today aimed a vote-appeal directly at individual laboring men and women rather than at organized labor as a group.

"This Administration believes that each worker is an individual," a campaign document of the Senate Republican Policy Committee said. "This Administration does not look at workers as a class apart."

A six-page section of the document stressed what it called "notable labor benefits" under the Administration of President Eisenhower.

Because many top leaders of the largest labor organizations have backed Democrats in past elections, the strategy of appealing to the rank and file was used with some success in the 1952 Eisenhower campaign.

Similar tactics for next year are evident in the latest campaign document.

"This Administration has attempted to direct its labor program toward the individual wage earner rather than toward an imaginary mass called the 'common man,'" the campaign booklet said.

"This Administration believes that the idea that men were somehow the product of a biological punch press turned out in a common mold, with the same yearnings and needs, was as reactionary and unfree a philosophy as has ever been promulgated in this country . . ."

The booklet said:

1. Average wages reached new highs the first half of this year, with weekly pay of factory workers at a peak of $77.11 in August.

2. The cost of living recently was slightly lower than a year ago and "for the first time since World War II the greedy hand of inflation is not in the worker's pay envelope."

3. With 65,500,000 employed, more persons now have jobs than at any time in history. Unemployment now is down to just over 2,000,000 compared with more than 3,000,000 in 1950 and 9,500,000 in 1939.

4. Workers' families have benefited from tax reductions, extension of Social Security benefits, an increase in minimum wages and improved labor-management relationships.

1,827,000 in Capital Area.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)—The population of the metropolitan Washington area is estimated now by the Board of Trade at 1,827,200. In 1930 the area contained 672,198 persons.

24-Hour Airlift Rushes Relief As New Flood Menaces Tampico

TAMPICO, Mexico, Oct. 3 (UP) — Tampico, flooded throughout the greater part of September, was reinforcing sandbag dikes today against a new rise in the Panuco river.

United States Navy relief teams, rushing medical and food supplies in, reported 30,000 square miles of land under water.

R. Adm. M. E. Miles, Navy relief director for the area, said that two square miles in the heart of Tampico is the only sector not flooded for 40 miles in all directions. The Navy said 16 aircraft are joined in an around-the-clock airlift. More than 33,400 pounds of food and clothing have been flown in to the region.

The aircraft carrier Saipan stood by with an emergency load of yellow fever vaccine rushed here from Pensacola, Fla. It also brought food and a dozen Navy doctors to help the 30,000 refugees cut off inside the city.

The floods from rivers over a 70-mile wide area of four Mexican Gulf Coast states follower the hurricane Janet, which already has claimed 523 lives in Mexico and the Caribbean.

By the Associated Press.

Helicopters from the Saipan found more than 900 persons marooned yesterday on islands of the vast lake covering what was the coastal plain behind the city. Half of them have been evacuated and the airlift continues.

Three hundred more are trapped on a dike along tthe swollen Panuco river and 500 are reported on a hill near the village of Las Palmas.

Mexico's death toll in the wake of Janet now is 290. More than 1000 persons were injured and at least 100,000 are homeless. The greatest number of deaths was on the Yucatan peninsula, where 200 lost their lives and the towns of Sacxan, Chetumal, Bacalar and Zcalak were leveled.

Streams through central Mexico are flooded without any signs of subsiding.

Damage to the Mexico City-Laredo highway apparently was more serious than first reported. The main tourist route may be closed for some time.

DEMOCRATS MEETING FOR STRATEGY TALKS

Leaders, in Chicago, Expected to Discuss Effects of Eisenhower Illness.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3 (UP)—Democratic leaders from most states met today to discuss 1956 campaign strategy and, unofficially, talk over the political effects of President Eisenhower's illness.

Some of the Democratic leaders were expected to take advantage of the meeting and visit Adlai E. Stevenson here. Stevenson, the 1952 Democratic presidential candidate, is scheduled to announce next month whether he will make another bid for the White House.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler was scheduled to lead the discussions in the first official meeting of Democratic leaders since Mr. Eisenhower suffered a moderate coronary thrombosis a week ago last Saturday.

Butler appointed the advisory committee last month to advise the national committee on organizational matters and campaign procedures.

Headed by Neil Staebler, Michigan's Democratic state chairman, the committee was scheduled to take up such matters as the recruitment of campaign workers, audio-visual training aids and training conferences.

Hy Raskin, a committee member and the party's former deputy national chairman, said the group would also go into publicity, advertising, radio and television strategies, campaign speakers, and women's activities and finances.

One of the party leaders, National Committeeman Kenneth T. Anderson of Kansas, predicted that Stevenson will announce his candidacy next month.

Anderson said he has been in contact with other potential Democratic candidates and most of them are waiting to see what Stevenson will do.

He said there has been an attempt to pit Govs. Averell Harriman of New York and G. Mennen Williams of Michigan against Stevenson "in the hope it would split the Democratic party."

He added that "my personal representatives have talked with Williams and Harriman backers and have been assured that Harriman and Williams have given their word to Stevenson that they will support him at the convention, if Stevenson will start an intensive campaign at once."

What calories are non-fattening?

All the calories that you use up are non-fattening

The average adult uses up 2,300 to 3,200 calories a day

There are only 18 calories in a level teaspoonful of sugar

And sugar can help you cut down on the only kind of calories that can make you fat—they are the ones that come from overeating

Science shows how sugar can help keep your appetite—and weight—under control

These days, when it seems that someone is always reminding you about the calories in the things you like best, it's reassuring to remember what calories really are.

Calories are simply units of energy. All foods contain calories, but the only calories that can make you fat come from overeating—from oversized portions and unneeded second helpings.

Since sugar is best known as a quick energy food it is often singled out as a source of calories. Of course it is. But you use up as many calories as you get in a teaspoonful of sugar in just about 7½ minutes of normal activity.

These calories that are spent for energy can never be deposited as fat. That holds true whether the calories come from steak or apple pie, grapefruit or sugar.

Sugar is used as energy faster than any other food because it is absorbed into the blood stream almost immediately.

This is a helpful fact to know if you're watching your weight! That's because variations in the blood sugar level play an important role in the healthy body's appetite control system.

In clinical tests at a leading university, scientists found that people got hungry when their blood sugar level was low. They got hungry more often when they were gaining weight. But when their blood sugar level was elevated there was less sensation of hunger.

This important discovery explains why it is easier to stay satisfied on less food when you have a sweet just before a meal. It has also led to an entirely new concept of diet planning, designed to help people cut down on food without cutting out any favorite food.

These newer, more realistic diets purposely include sugar in foods and beverages because it makes the diet easier to get started on, easier to get used to and easier to stick to.

And if you are maintaining your present weight, isn't it good to know that sugar helps to count your calories for you?

18 CALORIES

. . . that's all the calories there are in a standard level teaspoonful of sugar. Using a sugar substitute in foods and beverages actually saves so few calories that the authoritative Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council reported:

"There is no clear evidence that the availability to and consumption by the general public of artificially sweetened foods would be effective for purposes of body weight reduction or control."

All facts in this message apply to both beet and cane sugar

SUPREME COURT BEGINS TERM, DOCKET HEAVY

More Than 700 Cases—Eisenhower Illness Centers Attention on Warren.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP) —Faced with legal controversies of far-reaching importance, the Supreme Court re-assembled to begin a new term today in its 165-year-old, history-shaping career.

Communism, military justice and racial segregation stood out among the questions raised in an unusually heavy docket confronting the nine justices returning from their summer vacations.

And with the prospect that President Eisenhower might not seek re-election next year, greater-than-usual political interest focused on the Chief Justice—former Gov. Earl Warren of California.

Warren said last April he would not be a candidate for President "under any circumstances or conditions," and he has since given no sign of changing his stand. Yet, following Mr. Eisenhower's heart attack, Warren's name again sprang up in speculation about whom the Republicans might choose for the Presidential nominee in 1956.

Proved Vote-Getter.

A proved vote-getter, Warren had won three terms as a Republican Governor of California when Mr. Eisenhower named him Chief Justice in 1953. The heavy work on the docket of more than 700 cases will not start until next Monday.

This term's stack of cases is an increase of about 300 over the same time last year. Despite this, the justices plan to go on a five-day work week by holding hearings on Mondays through Thursdays and holding their closed conferences on Fridays. In previous years the court heard arguments Mondays through Fridays, then sat in conferences on Saturdays.

In today's session a new public address system was to be put into regular use, after several years of experimenting with various types of voice amplifiers. A tape recorder also was to be used for the first time, to preserve—for the use of the judges only—what is said by lawyers and jurists at the high bench.

The nine-month term is expected to produce a decision on the United States Communist party's challenge of the constitutionality of the subversive activities control act.

The law is the keystone of the government structure for registration and control of the Communist party, Communist "fronts" and Communist-infiltrated organizations. If allowed to stand, the party asserts, "there remains no limitation on the control by Congress over political expression."

Scheduled for reargument early in the new term is an attack on a key section of the code of military justice. The question raised is whether Congress could authorize military court-martial of a civilian for a crime alleged to have been committed while he was in the armed forces.

The case specifically affects former Air Force Sgt. Robert W. Toth, a steelworker of Pittsburgh, Pa., who was arrested in 1953 for court-martial on a charge that he took part in the killing of a South Korean civilian. Toth, honorably discharged in 1952 after service in Korea, says his appeal presents the question whether Congress "can convert our democratic civil government into a military oligarchy."

In appeals filed in the summer the court has been asked to rule whether racial segregation is illegal in public parks, playgrounds and golf courses; whether states may ban interracial marriages, and whether states may require Negro candidates for public office to be listed as "Negro" on election ballots.

Other Disputes.

The court also was asked to hear arguments and decide these issues:

May tenants in federal housing projects be evicted for refusing to sign loyalty oaths?

May the California Supreme Court ban—on grounds of public policy—reinstatement of a woman Communist to a job in the Cutter laboratories? Cutter is one of the firms making Salk antipolio vaccine.

May the Government again try former Army Sgt. John David Provoo on treason charges? Provoo's first trial was in New York City, where he was convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment. The conviction was set aside on the ground the trial should have been held in Maryland.

Did a federal court in Chicago err in dismissing the Government's civil anti-trust suit against du Pont and General Motors? Purpose of the suit was to compel du Pont to drop its stock interests in G.M.

Appeals in which the high court previously agreed to give decisions included these issues:

Validity of the new federal immunity statute, which gives the Government the right to force witnesses to testify in espionage cases by granting them immunity from prosecution for what they said. This appeal was filed by William Ludkig Ullman, former Treasury Department official alleged to have been a wartime spy for Russia.

May sedition against the United States be prosecuted in state courts as well as federal courts? Pennsylvania in this case seeks to uphold conviction of Steve Nelson, Pittsburgh Communist leader, on charges that he violated the state's sedition law.

RUSSIANS BUILD GIANT BASE IN NORTH POLAND

Installation Used to Supply East Germany —Baltic Shipping Route Employed.

By TOM REEDY

STETTIN, Poland, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Russians have built a giant military base between Stettin and Kolberg in northwestern Poland.

All the Soviet army troops stationed in Poland are in this area, about 30 square miles in territory that was German before the war. The sector also contains jet air fields and naval installations along the Baltic.

No estimate of the Russian strength is available.

Work on the base started three years ago. It serves as the supply center for the 300,000-man Soviet army stationed in East Germany. And it gets the Russians out of sight in Poland.

The plan for it was worked out by Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, Soviet army hero and native of Poland who now is Polish defense minister.

Old Base Eradicated.

The old Soviet base at Liegnitz was eradicated along with sub-bases through the heart of Poland from Frankfurt-Oder to Brest-Litovsk.

Polish informants describe the situation insofar as they dare speak about it:

In the postwar years, the Russians supplied their garrison in Germany by rail. Anti-Soviet partisans kept three Russian divisions busy protecting the lifeline. Double locomotives had to be used, the first one to touch off land mines.

In the Rokossovsky plan, relocation of the base was tied in with a master system of supplying by ship. Not only supplies but Soviet troops being redeployed are moved by ship from Koenigsberg (Kaliningrad) to Settin and there the short hop to the German frontier is easily negotiated and protected.

In two weeks this correspondent has driven 2000 miles in Poland and by actual count has seen only six Russians in uniform. The western base is the explanation.

Roads Crowded.

Bromberg is a big Polish army base, even as it was a German bastion when this area was in German hands. The roads are crowded with young soldiers serving their 16 months conscription. Outside the city, now called by the ancient Polish name of Bydgoszcz, the Polish air force has built its jet fighter fleet No. 3. Warsaw and Krakow have Nos. 1 and 2.

The defense thinking of the Russians makes sense, Poles commented. One semi-official informant describes this area as "a Prussian field marshal's dream." The reason: It is flat with no natural terrain for defense and once tanks broke out of the Stettin-Kolberg pocket nothing could stop them. These people know. They saw it happen before.

Mr. Truman Helps Organize Oil Company, He Joins National Guard and Is Elected Lieutenant of Battery F.

By HARRY S. TRUMAN
Thirty-third President of the United States.

EIGHTH ARTICLE

© 1955 by Time, Inc. (Publisher of "LIFE").

IN 1905 Battery B of the National Guard of Kansas City was organized by George R. Collins, who became captain of the organization. There were about sixty men in the organization, and most of them were very fine fellows who worked in banks and stores around town and would go out to a rented armory once a week and pay a quarter for the privilege of drilling.

I joined the battery the year it was organized. And when I attended my first National Guard camp at Cape Girardeau, Missouri, I was a private in the rear ranks.

In 1906 I quit the bank and went back to the farm where I stayed until the war of 1917 came along.

One day in late 1908 a cousin of my mother came to the farm to look at some stock. I noticed a Masonic pin on his coat and told him I had always wanted to be a member. A few days later he brought me an application for membership in Belton Lodge No. 450 at Belton, Missouri. On February 9, 1919, I received by first degree.

Grandma Young, who lived to be 91, died in 1909, leaving the six hundred-acre Blue Ridge farm to my mother and Uncle Harrison. Other members of the family contested the will, but the matter was soon settled out of court, and in 1915, when Uncle Harrison died, he left his share of the farm to my mother, my brother, my sister and me.

Young Mr. Truman Goes in For Oil.

The great mid-continental oil fields were being opened at about this time, and test drilling was extensive in Missouri and adjoining states. Interest was very wide-spread, and I decided to try my fortune in this mushrooming new industry. The resulting experience was one which taught me a good deal about finance and human nature as well.

It all started when Jerry C. Culbertson, a Kansas City attorney who had known our family for years and who had once handled an investment for us in a zinc mine near Joplin, introduced me to a man named David H. Morgan, who had just moved to town from Tulsa, Oklahoma. Morgan, I soon learned, was a businessman with a degree in law and with extensive experience in the oil industry. He was also a fine gentleman who was to become a life-long friend of mine.

Culbertson had just completed an agreement with Morgan for the organization and promotion of an oil company, and he invited me to come in as a one-third partner.

I decided to make the suggested investment, and after I had executed five $1000 notes indorsed by my mother, the contract was drawn up on September 25, 1916 making Morgan president of the new firm, Culbertson secretary, and myself treasurer.

The financial structure which Culbertson had worked out was typical of thousands that appeared during the first quarter of the twentieth century. He called the oil concern "The Atlas-Okla Oil Lands Syndicate" to signify the 1500 acres of land in eastern Oklahoma which Morgan had turned over to the corporation. There was also formed a brokerage firm known as "The Morgan & Company Oil Investments Corporation" to handle sales of shares, purchases and management of oil properties, leases, etc., on a regular commission basis.

I was enthusiastic about the possibilities of Morgan & Company, and it soon became widely known through Culbertson's promotion techniques.

Dry Holes Where Teeter Pool Was Found Later.

Culbertson soon decided, however, that the original syndicate formed on the 1,500 acres of land was not suited to the type of promotion he planned, and he therefore proceeded to revamp it. In March, 1917, the reorganization was completed in the form of a common law trust with 60,000 shares, and the Atlas-Okla Oil Lands Syndicate became the Morgan Oil & Refining Company. All assets, lands and other property belonging to the original syndicate were transferred to this new company.

In the meantime, Morgan, who was the practical oil man of the organization, was in the field, inspecting and leasing thousands of acres of oil properties for the company in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana. On some of these properties, test wells were drilled to completion, but these, unfortunately, proved to be dry holes. On others, drilling was in progress when the entry of the United States into World War I suddenly put an end to the company's activities.

I have always wondered how things would have turned out in my life if the war had not come along just when it did. Morgan & Company had just begun drilling on a huge block of leases we owned in the northwest corner of Greenwood County, Kansas, when the war-created manpower shortage forced us to dispose of all our leases. In fact, I was already in France when drilling stopped at a depth of 1,500 feet in that particular well. Other companies and operators who bought our interests in Greenwood County continued drilling, and later in the year 1917 they struck the Teeter Oil Pool, one of the largest ever opened up in the state of Kansas.

Elected First Lieutenant in Battery F.

When the United States entered World War I in the spring of 1917, the Missouri National Guard decided to expand Battery B in Kansas City and Battery C in Independence into a regiment. I helped in that expansion, and we raised six batteries, as well as a supply and headquarters company, in Kansas City and Independence, and also a battery for the First Missouri Field Artillery in St. Louis.

The regiment was organized, and all the officers were elected by the members of the organization. The batteries elected their officers, and the officers elected the staff. I was elected first lieutenant in Battery F when it was organized on May 22, 1917.

I had hoped that I might be a section sergeant, a post for which I was well-qualified. I had not hoped for a commission, and when I found myself a lieutenant, I had a tremendous amount of work to do in order to become familiar with my job. At that time, light artillery batteries had two first lieutenants, a senior and a junior, and I was the junior lieutenant of Battery F in the Second Missouri Field Artillery.

We trained and drilled in Kansas City at Convention Hall and on the streets, and on August 5, 1917, we were sworn in as part of the Federal service and became the 129th Field Artillery of the 35th Division. On September 26, 1917, we entrained for Camp Doniphan at Ft. Sill, Oklahoma.

The Colonel appointed me regimental canteen officer, and I asked Eddie Jacobson, a member of Battery F and a man with merchandising experience, to help me. We collected two dollars per man from each battery and from each headquarters and supply company. This gave us $2,200, whereupon Eddie and I set up a store, a barber shop and a tailor shop. We went to Oklahoma City and stocked up our store with things that would not ordinarily be issued by the government—cigarettes, paper, pens, ink and other items the men would want to buy.

$15,000 Dividends on $2200 in Six Months.

Each battery and company was ordered to furnish a clerk for the store. Eddie and I sewed up their pockets, and I deposited our sales intake every day. After operating the canteen for six months, we paid the $2,200 back, plus $15,000 in dividends. Many other canteens of the 35th Division were failures, and some of the men who ran them were sent home, but after our arrival in France, I was promoted, largely because of the work Eddie Jacobson and I had done.

In addition to my duties as canteen officer, I performed all the regular duties of a battery officer. I took my turn as officer of the day, equitation officer, and firing instruction officer for the battery. I attended the Ft. Sill School of Fire, and did foot drill as well as whatever needed to be done. When it came time for my captain to make an efficiency report on his lieutenants, he made such a good one on me that the C.O. sent it back with the comment, "No man can be that good."

I was examined for promotion in February, 1918, and was picked for the Overseas School Detail. I left Camp Doniphan by train on March 20, 1918, and arrived about four

Truman Law Aids President On Signatures

It Relieves Him of Signing Many Papers, Once Mandatory.

By RADFORD MOBLEY
The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch. Copyright 1955.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.

IT WAS back in 1950 that former President Harry Truman gave President Eisenhower a great assist in his present illness.

Truman signed a bill authorizing executive delegation of many routine functions, such as signing numberless relatively unimportant papers, to other officers of Government.

Prior to that time a President had a great deal more paper work than he has today. By one "Harry S. Truman" signature he rid himself and successors of much of it.

Spared Routine Tasks.

It now appears that President Eisenhower, using the Truman bill, will be spared many routine assignments as he convalesces from his heart attack.

The congressional report showed at that time over 1000 provisions of law "as vested functions in the chief executive."

These required only a "perfunctory confirmation" of "some relatively routine determination by a department head." But the law, or laws, before 1950, required the President's attention or signature.

Powers Delegated.

The act, signed in August 1950, was explained by former Budget Director Frank Pace, in this manner:

"This legislation would enable the President to delegate to the heads of departments and agencies . . . the performance of such functions vested in him as the President may deem advisable.

"The range and number of matters which take up the time of the Chief Executive exceed by far the business which must be transacted by the heads of the largest private enterprises in our country.

"Such action (passing this legislation), while not relieving the President of his responsibility for the acts performed, would allow him to devote the time saved to these matters which require more of his personal attention than he can afford to devote to them."

Intelligent Soviet Policy Holds More Danger Than Previous One

Now Russia Has Power to Apply to U.S. the Strains It Sought to Place on U.S.S.R.

By STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

IF there is one sentence which describes the basic underlying assumption of American policy throughout the years of the cold war, it is this:

"The United States has it in its power to increase enormously the strains under which Soviet policy must operate . . . and in this way to promote tendencies which must eventually find their outlet in either the break-up or the gradual mellowing of Soviet power."

The sentence comes from the famous "Mr. X" article by former policy planner and ambassador to Russia George F. Kennan. The article, which first outlined the "policy of containment," was written in 1947. Ever since, with some twistings and turning, containment of Soviet power has been the policy of the United States.

This seems a good time to ask, therefore, whether the containment policy is actually working—whether the "gradual mellowing of Soviet power" foreseen by Kennan has actually begun to happen. A good man to ask seems Kennan himself, the author of the containment policy.

Last Port of Call.

This reporter accordingly made Milan, Italy, where Kennan was attending a meeting of the Congress of Cultural Freedom, his last port of call in a three-month tour of the Soviet Union and western Europe.

The congress brought together 150 or so leading intellectuals and political thinkers of the non-Communist world. Although those present disagreed strongly and articulately about other matters, they were almost unanimously agreed on two points.

First, there has been a real change in the Soviet Union. Second, this change confronts the West with a period of great danger.

To understand both points, it is necessary to examine the real nature of the change that has taken place. To use Kennan's phrase, the "morbid and irrational" aspect of the Soviet regime has largely disappeared since the death of Joseph Stalin.

Products of One-Man Rule.

The morbid and irrational aspects of the regime were in part the products of a quarter-century of ruthless one-man rule; in part, of the increasingly neurotic fears and suspicions of the aging Stalin. The results of the sweeping away of these aspects of the regime are obvious, both internally, and externally.

Internally, the experts at Milan agreed, the most striking post-Stalin phenomenon is the downgrading of the power of the secret police. The MVD is now headed by a career man, who reports to the Presidium as a whole rather than to any individual. To emphasize the dominance of the party over the police, the MVD has been publicly stripped of the power to arrest a Communist party member, without the prior approval of the local party committee.

At the same time, there is hard evidence, much discussed at Milan, that the whole labor camp system, which used to be a special empire of the secret police, is being re-organized root and branch. Thousands of prisoners have been granted amnesty and the living conditions of the others rendered far more tolerable.

Easier Atmosphere.

The subordination of the secret police power has in turn led to an easier atmosphere of life for the ordinary Soviet citizen. But this does not mean for a moment that the Soviet system has been changed in any of its essentials. The Soviet system will not be abandoned, to use party secretary Krushchev's colorful phrase, "until shrimps learn to whistle." The new regime has merely shuffled off those internal aspects of the Soviet system which were irrational and therefore unprofitable.

The "new" Soviet foreign

President's Prestige Kept Secretary Safe From Many Attacks.

WASHINGTON.

THE "Sherman Adams coup d'etat," as Washington jocularly calls the calm assumption of White House responsibility by the President's chief aid, is now an accepted fact. Adams is in Denver, seeing the President and deciding what the President shall see. A toned and braced Eisenhower staff is proceeding as before.

Adams's willingness to take responsibility means that, so far as domestic routine goes, the Eisenhower administrators are in good shape. He has already had much more experience than most people realize in acting as a White House umpire, since it was his calculated strategy to persuade the President to run again by keeping as much work as possible from the presidential desk.

But in the field of foreign affairs, Adams can be of very little effective help. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will be peculiarly on his own for a while and for the first time.

Carefree Training Period.

During his training period, when Dulles worked in the State Department as the symbol of a bi-partisan foreign policy, the late Senator Vandenberg fronted for that policy with Republicans while President Truman and Secretary Acheson carried the load. For Dulles it was a relatively carefree time.

He took direction of the department under a President elected in a landslide of public confidence and acclaim. The great Eisenhower name has been a safe shelter for his official family to a degree not even enjoyed by Franklin Roosevelt's first administrators.

None profited more than Dulles. Important Senators had misgivings about the Secretary of State and many have thought

She Likes Milton!

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In reply to all good Americans and fine Republicans who have been stating of late that there aren't any good qualified Republicans to run for President in 1956, I wish to urge each and every one of them to stick to the Eisenhowers but switch to Milton!

He is a completely qualified, well-learned, highly intelligent man who is thoroughly informed on all of Ike's plans, past, present and future. He is definitely future-President material and the man for us to choose.

Let us start the second Eisenhower bandwagon! MRS. R.A.W. JR.

No More Maline Creeks

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It was only last summer that our Missouri Legislature adjourned and allowed a large amount of pending legislation to die.

One of the items in this category was House Bill 115, the so-called anti-pollution bill that was passed by the House and conveniently forgotten in the Senate.

Had this bill been enacted into law, pollution of the Maline creek, Gravois creek and other polluted watersheds could not have taken place.

A big hullabaloo over a small section, such as Maline or Gravois creek, will not solve the problem. Builders and contractors do not install adequate sewage disposal out of the goodness of their hearts. Industry does not take steps to see that their wastes are not harmful to others unless compelled to do so.

My sympathies are with the Maline creek people, but had they listened a year ago when sportsmen and conservation organizations were pleading desperately for help to put over an anti-pollution law, perhaps some of the present difficulties would have been averted.

Certainly it is time that the people of the state as a whole awaken to the dangers of pollution and see that the next time legislation to stop this sort of thing is offered that our Legislators do not ignore it, do not water it down until it becomes useless as the present law is, and that they enact it so that we won't have any more Maline creeks ever again.

Mushrooms to Be Harvested

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Traffic is being speeded on Gravois under the recently initiated reversible lane system. Plans are being considered to remove the concrete standards in the center. Why not remove the ridiculous "mushrooms" that fan out in the center of the street at intersections? What good are they besides being a hazard? MUSHY.

Top Priority at Geneva

Soviet attitudes at Geneva and since have not encouraged the hope that reunification of Germany can be accomplished at this time. Nevertheless the Western foreign ministers, meeting in New York to prepare for this month's conference at Geneva, have reaffirmed their conviction that top priority should be given "to the reunification of Germany, within the framework of a plan for European security."

This may seem to be a quixotic insistence upon negotiations which are foredoomed to failure, but the Western foreign ministers are only complying with the directive issued by President Eisenhower and Premiers Bulganin, Eden and Faure at the summit conference.

The first of the four topics they instructed their foreign ministers to discuss was that of European security and Germany, and they specifically mentioned a security pact for Europe and reunification of Germany "by means of free elections."

Since that directive was issued, Western foreign offices have been concentrating upon study of possible security arrangements that might induce the Kremlin to assent to German unification.

They are now reported ready to submit at Geneva plans for an arrangement under which members of the Atlantic alliance would join in guaranteeing Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union against an attack from Germany, while the Soviet bloc in turn joined in guaranteeing Western Europe against an attack from the same source.

The British made a somewhat similar proposal at Geneva, without much apparent impression on Moscow. The Russians' objection has always been that they are being asked to give up a concrete strategic and military position in Eastern Europe in exchange for purely paper promises that a united and rearmed Germany will not again become the source of aggression against them.

Just how this deadlock might be broken may not be clear, but continued efforts to break it are worth while. British Foreign Secretary Macmillan told the U.N. last week he is confident a European security arrangement can be worked out which "the world would regard as giving Russia full protection" against any new German threat. And if Russia does not agree with "the world," he emphasized that "we would be glad to consider any amendments or additions."

In the light of history it is not strange at all that the Russians should fear and distrust a rearmed Germany. Yet the West also has suffered repeated attacks from Germany, and the West has as great an interest as Russia has in severely limiting German military power.

Out of that common interest it should be possible to forge a common policy toward Germany and a general European security structure. To make a beginning on that task, at least, is the first responsibility of the foreign ministers' conference at Geneva.

More TV in the Classrooms

The expansion of its classroom programs which KETC is planning will give this community's educational television station a new opportunity to prove its unique usefulness. Classes in spelling, science and literature will be televised to supplement—for neither TV nor anything else could ever replace—personal teaching.

Foremost among the good results should be more effective education. But there should be many worth-while by-products as well. The available number of teachers, short here as everywhere, will be used with increased economy. Teachers will get some much-needed time free from classroom work, which after all is only one of their many kinds of work.

But best of all, the pupils may be expected to learn better, both because of their intrinsic interest in television and because exceptional quality can be built into these presentations.

Adult education is an important responsibility of educational TV; it is carried on largely through the evening programs. The education of our children, however, should never cease to have first claim on the medium.

The Aged Lose a Protection

Someone was evidently asleep when the bill to regulate nursing, boarding and rest homes for aged persons was enacted at the last session of the Missouri Legislature. Amendments offered in the Senate restricting the application of the act have now been held by the Attorney General's department to render it unconstitutional.

These amendments exempted from the operation of the act homes run by religious, charitable or non-profit-making organizations, and homes within towns which do their own regulating by local ordinance. The net effect was a weakening of the measure, which was originally drawn to set the standards and afford supervision for all nursing homes. The sponsors accepted the watering-down in a spirit of political expediency, feeling that some improvement was better than none.

The exemptions were never justified, for as the opinion of Assistant Attorney General Hugh P. Williamson says with clear and unanswerable logic: "Certainly the occupants of such institutions are equally entitled to the protection which the law would afford." At the earliest opportunity the act which is now struck down should be replaced with one throwing the protection of standards and supervision around all nursing, boarding and rest homes for the aged in the state.

Better Understanding With Tito

It is good to get reports that the talks of Robert Murphy, Deputy Under Secretary of State, with President Josip (Tito) Broz of Yugoslavia went satisfactorily, and that agreement was reached on such matters as American inspection of arms delivered to Belgrade.

Washington could not help being alarmed by word that the Russian leaders had made more progress during their recent visit to Belgrade than might have been deduced from the independent and somewhat chilly way they were received. Moscow must attach even more importance to a reconciliation with Tito than Washington does to a continuation of his ties with the West. This does not belittle Yugoslav co-operation, but it helps toward a realistic understanding of the concessions the Russians must have been tempted to make. So Mr. Murphy's first duty must have been to find out just how far Tito yielded to them.

The Yugoslav president most probably speaks the truth when he says he never again wants to see his country reduced to the status of a satellite. But that does not guarantee his full support of the West. It is always difficult, if not impossible to obtain complete assurances in international relations. In wooing Tito, for example, the Communists can make interesting offers, especially in the way of trade. So it behooves us to keep our connections in good repair.

The chances are that Tito feels safer with the West, but we should miss no opportunities of strengthening him in this inclination. Since it has been a rather wide-open secret for some time that he would like to visit Washington as he visited London, why not extend an invitation? Instead of first attempting to be absolutely sure of his pro-American sentiments, why not use such an invitation to strengthen those sentiments?

Would it not be wise diplomacy if Washington now assured Tito that he can count on being welcomed on a visit in the not too distant future? What could the United States lose?

Autumn Report on Polio

The autumn report on the Salk polio vaccine program is highly reassuring to the American people.

Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Folsom says the Salk vaccine proved so effective this year that vaccinated children have suffered 25 to 50 per cent less polio than those not vaccinated.

Looking to the future, Mr. Folsom says vaccine production has increased, and there should be enough to vaccinate all children from 5 through 9 years before the end of 1955. Moreover, health authorities have predicted improvements in the vaccine in the near future.

In view of the springtime stop-and-go polio program under former Secretary Oveta Culp Hobby, her successor's report will restore confidence in the Health Department's operations. It will, of course, restore confidence in the program itself, but we suspect that parents generally lost less confidence in the program than in its administration during the early off-again on-again phases of April and May.

Unfortunately Mr. Folsom's report cannot make up for lost time. The expectation last spring was that children up to 9 years would receive two shots of Salk vaccine, with one shot coming before the summer's critical period. The suspension of the program prevented reaching that objective.

But the Folsom report does show that the original goal may at least be reached this year. Under Mr. Folsom the Health Department has been rushing to catch up. And there is no cause for doubt that the Salk program protects children from a dread disease—if indeed there ever was any real cause for doubt.

NO and YES

Missouri voters will personally determine state policy on two important matters in Tuesday's special election. Both proposals were referred to the people by the General Assembly.

Referendum Measure No. 1 would impose a state cigarette tax of 2 cents a package to help finance a new method of distributing state aid to the public schools. In our opinion, this tax ought to be rejected. The time may come when such a levy may be desirable. As of now, though, a convincing case for its imposition has not been made.

Referendum Measure No. 2 would create the new plan of aid to the schools. This is the so-called "Foundation Plan." While it is not perfect, it goes a long way toward bringing equity to the area of public school financing. In our opinion, this plan deserves to be approved.

In summary, then, our idea as to the best course for the state's voters is to vote NO on the cigarette tax and YES on the Foundation Plan.

France Defies the Umpire

The French Government's position toward the United Nations is a little like that of a ball team which first threatens to walk off the field because of an umpire's decision, and then decides to play another inning under protest.

When the General Assembly voted 28-27 to debate the question of Algerian home rule, French Foreign Minister Pinay and eight of his delegation to the U.N. stalked out and left for home. Mr. Pinay told reporters in New York that the French would not attend any U.N. meetings.

After a Cabinet meeting, however, France has announced that she will remain in the Security Council and the Disarmament Commission, and will abstain only from activities of the General Assembly. This leaves the door open somewhat for participation in a number of subsidiary but important U.N. affairs.

In clinging to her Security Council post, France is of course clinging to recognition as a major power. And her defensiveness concerning her position as a power, after defeats in Indochina and civil strife in North Africa, undoubtedly contributed to French resentment of the Assembly's action.

France maintains that Algeria is a domestic problem, and she can make a case against U.N. debate on the subject. But debate is not going to undermine her position in Africa, and declining to play out the game will not win the contest for France.

Her allies, the United States and Britain, should do their utmost to convince France that she will look more like a great power inside U.N. and the Assembly than in walking off the field.

All the Roles Unplayed

One cannot but feel a sharp sense of all the fine performances unplayed, of all the years of extraordinary contribution to the theater unlived, in the death of James Dean at 24. Anyone who saw him in John Steinbeck's "East of Eden," or on television, must have been struck with the authenticity of his genius.

He had breadth—he was equally at home in roles at opposite poles—and he had depth. There was always the feeling of a sensitive yet steel-like grasping of the import of the role, and of more power where that came from. It would have been one of the finest experiences the theater affords to have watched this brilliant youngster give of his talents year after year, and to see what maturity brought to him.

His death in an auto accident in California ends his career at an age when most careers are barely starting; but though the repertory he left was brevity itself, it was distinguished.

Kirkwood's Turn

Now that St. Louis is fluoridating its water supply for the benefit of its children, Kirkwood surely ought to follow suit. Kirkwood is the only community in St. Louis county that has its own water supply. Consequently it is the only one which can follow St. Louis's lead at once. This is a wonderful opportunity for Mayor William L. Berthold and the three other members of the Kirkwood Council to help improve the dental health of every youngster in their community. They ought not to hold back any longer.

NEW FOOT HOLD

Behind the Stock Market Break

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Three newspapers which supported Mr. Eisenhower say stock market reversal was tribute to President; traders know he upholds business and fear change; Chicago Tribune suggests that one man cannot be as indispensable as market made him seem.

New York Herald Tribune

Last week's fall of the stock market, the most severe since the fearful days of 1929, has already been partially restored.

It is possible to look calmly upon what has happened. It is even possible to see in this dramatic fall a new evidence of the country's touching faith in Dwight Eisenhower.

Sentiment, of course, does not rule the financial centers. In the illness of the President, American business men saw the sudden possibility of a change in the economic policies which his Administration has pursued with such brilliant success.

In its particular way, that Monday's stock market reaction was therefore as striking a vote of confidence as a national administration ever received.

Under President Eisenhower business has once again been treated like the force which it in fact is: the nerve center from which flow out the economic advantages and the stream of material production which nourish a wide prosperity.

Controls were removed in the face of dire predictions as to the consequences. Hasty measures were resisted despite gloomy insistence that without them the 1953 setback would get out of hand. In both cases the faith in the free enterprise system was fully vindicated.

Today, as before the stock market decline, economic conditions are overwhelmingly favorable. In August the number of employed was at a record level and industrial production at a peak. Average weekly earnings for the factory worker were at $77.11 and personal incomes were running at an annual rate of three billion dollars more than in June. Judged by consumer buying, by automobile sales, by housing starts, the American economy has been, and is, in a position of strength. The Administration of President Eisenhower has assured that it will be so, and the immediate prospect—as Secretary Humphrey has emphasized—is that policies will not be changed. As to what will come after 1956, that is up to the people.

Chicago Daily Tribune

President Eisenhower's heart attack did to the stock market what increased margin requirements, higher interest rates, a congressional investigation and the Republican loss of control of both houses of Congress had failed to do. It brought about as bad a fall in stock prices as on some of the worst days in 1929, and a sharper fall than followed the outbreak of either of the last two wars.

The extent of the market crash and the heavy volume of trade indicate the hold President Eisenhower has upon the American people. Recent polls have indicated that he is more popular than ever. James Reston of The New York Times recently wrote that "the popularity of President Eisenhower has got beyond the bounds of reasonable calculation and will have to be put down as a national phenomenon, like baseball."

The President has been praised for ending the Korean war, for bringing about a change to reasonableness on the part of the Russians, and for obtaining the release of American prisoners held by Red China. On the domestic front he is credited for the wisdom of achieving economic recovery from the recession of 1953-54 without increasing Government expenditures, and also with forcing cuts in the Treasury payments so as to make possible further tax cuts in the coming session of Congress.

It was no wonder, then, that people should feel that investments in American companies were not going to be as desirable as they have been if this man's unique talents were not going to be available for an extended period running through 1960. Nor was it remarkable that the favorable report by Dr. White on the President's condition brought about a sharp upturn of prices Tuesday. The alarm about a possible Democratic victory in 1956, which the country appeared to express through the market action, can scarcely escape notice.

The Tribune believes that the country will be most fortunate if the President has a prompt recovery and resumes his duties as rapidly as he safely can. We doubt, however, that in the long run of history Mr. Eisenhower will appear as indispensable as the market seemed last Monday to believe him to be.

The New York Times

It would be idle to pretend that things are precisely where they were before the unfortunate news from Denver. The outlook for orderly economic progress is always favored by the knowledge that the country's leadership is in the hands of a man who believes strongly in the free enterprise system and is determined to preserve it at all costs.

In a free economy confidence on the part of business in such leadership is a necessary ingredient of prosperity and progress. And in Wall Street when the signs are difficult to read and interpret the first instinct of the speculative community is to withdraw from the market until the picture becomes clearer.

In 1929 the market leaders, in all too many cases, didn't go up; they were put up, and because, after being put up, they were passed along to shoestring purchasers, carrying them on their thin margins and without the financial reserves to protect them. When those margins "went below water" the customers were sold out right and left.

None of this condition was present in the stock market last Monday. That the market was vulnerable to any sudden unfavorable news development, however, few persons, we think, will seriously deny. Prices had been rising almost uninterruptedly for more than two years in this, the Eisenhower phase of the 6-year-old bull market, alone.

When a market has advanced that long, not only has it usually attracted to its ranks many inexperienced speculators, who are inclined to sell when they see others selling, but it has become pretty well perforated with air pockets in the form of stop-loss orders, or orders to sell when the decline has reached a certain point below the level prevailing when the order is placed.

These are largely technical considerations, however, which by no stretch of the imagination can be added up to "another 1929." On the whole, it may very well be that this shakeout was a much needed and badly overdue warning that the stock market doesn't always move in the same direction.

The Baltimore Sun

One important factor was emphasized not so much in New York as in Chicago where the American Bankers Association was in session. It is reported that the speeches made there had been prepared before the President's illness and that they were not changed before they were delivered. The theme running through all of them was a warning against inflation and an appeal to the bankers to support the Government in any curbs it applies by restricting credit.

It may be conjectured that, in addition to the factors previously mentioned, there is among the traders in Wall Street, too, an undercurrent of uncertainty about the future and a growing awareness that stocks cannot go up forever.

If that is true it is a good sign. For nothing could be more conducive to uncontrolled inflation than the agreeable assumption that the future is secure.

Between Book Ends

A Swagman's Belonging

Macauley had an itching foot that spurned the sidewalks of town and a pair of legs that liked nothing better than a trek across the bleak, cracked plains of Australia's sheep country. Because of this he saw his wife but rarely and perhaps shouldn't have been surprised on one of his homecomings to find somebody'd been around there since he'd been gone—was, indeed, still there. Macauley told the man he was going to take him apart and did. Then in blind rage he took the 4-year-old child of the marriage which he, at least, had honored, and with hardly a glance at his terrified wife, headed out.

That's how he got stuck with the shiralee which is another name for swag which is another name for a swagman's belongings. Buster was the shiralee's name and from cabbage-tree hat to scrubby shoes there wasn't much to tell whether she was girl or boy. She trudged doggedly at Dad's heels getting little encouragement and no praise.

D'Arcy Niland

When she lagged too far behind he hoisted her up to balance the swag on his back and continued putting one foot in front of the other until they reached some dreary camp site. There he'd dump her while he fixed their bit of tucker before hitting the shake down under the stars—or rain. A tough life for a man and brutal for a child, but Buster asked no odds and kept up her end as best she could.

Men respected Macauley for his fists and his squareness and women looked after him with speculation in their eyes. But he lingered nowhere, hitting the road again after a few days' work at some lonely sheep station. In spite of his impatience at being slowed down by Buster her stanchness and loyalty get under his skin, and it is his love for her that lights the book, however grudgingly he lets it shine through.

You won't forget this strong and moving story written with action rather than adjective. D'Arcy Niland draws definitive characterizations of Macauley and Buster and the rugged rapscallions they meet along the way. The Waltzing Matilda expressions may sound childish but life in the Australian back country is anything but that.

Should you get lost between the brumbys and the billycans there's a glossary to set you right. Service men and women who read The Shiralee may get a new slant on the land down under.

All Quiet On This Estate

AMBERWELL, by D. E. Stevenson. (Rinehart, 314 pgs., $3.50.)

Amberwell is the country estate of a well-to-do Scottish family. For 200 years the Arytons have lived there. Each generation has added improvements to its grounds and gardens, and Aryton children who have gone to sea or the colonies have always returned to Amberwell.

The house means more to the family than the family itself. And the building of a garden pool is of more interest to the reader than the marriages of the current sons and daughters. Perhaps that is because Amberwell seems real while the characters belong more to the nineteenth century than the twentieth. Somehow, when war comes to disrupt the life at Amberwell, it is Hitler's war. One would expect it to be Napoleon's.

The book provides pleasant, easy reading. The pace of the story is quiet. Children play in the shrubbery and the vicar comes to dine once a month. But surely all novels need not be provocative. "Amberwell" is like a good cup of tea with sugar and milk.

Wall Street Fears Republican Loss

WASHINGTON.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S illness had one reaction that directed our attention to a familiar institution and its sometimes strange psychology. This is the New York stock market. Now and again it reverts to attitudes prevalent among the plush set over half a century ago.

Back to the time, for instance, when the lords of finance, cooperating with Mark Hanna, the Ohio political boss, drove about in a fancy carriage-and-four knocking on the doors of Wall Street for contributions for the campaign of William McKinley against William Jennings Bryan for the presidency. The theory was that if Mr. Bryan and the Democrats should win that would practically be the end of the world, at least the small world in which they flourished and which they often mistook for the whole world.

Mark Hanna

And so on receipt of the news from Denver, the stock market immediately took a nose dive. The Administration contends there is no reason for such a tumble, though some economists say some sort of adjustment was due.

No Compliment to G.O.P.

We are left then with the explanation that Wall Street, itself, seems to prefer. This is that the upset was caused by the fear that, with President Eisenhower out as a candidate, the Democrats would come back into power.

This Wall Street reaction wasn't very welcome to the Republican party, because it only dramatized the private view of Republican leaders that without the President their hopes next year are very slim.

What was also revealed that is also discouraging is that Wall Street still seems insulated, exists in an ivory tower of its own, talks mostly to itself, and seems to lack understanding of how other folks in the outside world think.

Other People's Money.

We have seen this from time to time here in recurrent congressional investigations, going back to that of a quarter of a century ago into the 1929 stock market crash. The big moguls of Wall Street and the stock market and investment banking followed one another day after day before the Senate Banking Committee.

They seemed to resent any intrusion into their private little world with its magic formulae and symbols and some of them talked as if they were endowed with special privileges in handling other people's money.

That, of course, was all changed with passage of laws to regulate the exchanges and security markets and investment bankers in the public interest, and the establishment of the Securities and Exchange Commission to protect the public.

Of late, however, there seems to be a return of the old attitude that the Stock Exchange is rather more important than it is.

Not Gospel for All.

It still is regarded, it is true, as a sort of weather vane of economic conditions in business and financial circles, though it is not watched so closely by millions and millions of persons in the country.

Thus its warnings and guidance about politics are not likely to be taken as gospel. Millions who own no "shares" react politically on the basis of other considerations.

If you appreciate the attitude of the speculative fraternity, it is easy to understand how any disruption of the status quo in government disturbs them. Things have been mighty nice. Big business and industry have a more potent voice in government than they have had in a long time.

Even the Securities and Exchange Commission, which is supposed to watch and regulate the exchanges and investment business, is now effectively "packed" with representatives of the very interests it is supposed to regulate.

Fear of Popular Voice.

It was shown in an analysis by Senator O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, that all five S.E.C. members are either bankers or lawyers for investment bankers.

This overbalance of government on the side of big business naturally would be readjusted a little more on the side of the general public interest if the Democrats should come back.

That is what the insiders and professionals are afraid of, not that a change in government would affect the general prosperity of the country.

It is true, however, that if the general prosperity of the people were adversely affected between now and the election, the Republican party would be hurt, and tumbles in the stock market contribute to a bad psychology.

In fact, Republicans already have organized their 1956 campaign around the "peace and prosperity" theme, and, with the President out, that must become their chief reliance.

Bulls are better trademarks than bears.

JULIUS OCHS ADLER OF N.Y. TIMES DIES

Manager of Newspaper, Also a Retired Major General, Had Cancer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Julius Ochs Adler (ret.), general manager-first vice president of the New York Times and publisher-president of the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times, died today in New York Hospital of cancer of the pancreas. He was 62 years old.

Mr. Adler had been in the hospital since Aug. 5. He first underwent surgery for a kidney ailment in World War II. He was operated on for cancer four months ago, and returned to his newspaper duties for about two months.

He retired as commanding general of the Seventy-seventh Infantry Division at the end of 1954. He had reached the mandatory retirement age of 62 on Dec. 3.

Mr. Adler was born in Chattanooga. He joined the New York Times in 1914, became vice president and treasurer in 1919 and general manager in 1935. In that year he also became president and publisher of the Chattanooga Times.

Served in New Guinea.

He was on military leave from his newspaper duties from 1940 until late 1944, when he came home from New Guinea in the Pacific for hospitalization.

Later he recovered sufficiently to be found fit for active field command.

In 1953 President Eisenhower, who had once referred to him as "a soldier's soldier," named him chairman of the National Security Training Commission. The panel recommended a program for training 18-year-olds concurrently with the drafting of older youths for active duty.

After the soldier-newspaperman ended his 40-year military career in 1954, the Army presented him with a certificate of appreciation for "outstanding patriotic civilian service." He had served since World War I with the Seventy-seventh, which he eventually commanded in the Army Reserve.

Question Unanswered.

In 1941, while Mr. Adler was directing maneuvers of the Sixth Motorized division in Tennessee, a New York Times reporter asked him to read an obituary the reporter had been assigned to write.

Mr. Adler, then a brigadier general, pointed to one paragraph which posed the question whether he was a soldier with journalism as an avocation or a journalist with a military bent.

"I have never been able to make up my mind myself," he told the reporter.

The New York Times and the Chattanooga Times are not connected, although Mr. Adler himself owned part of the Tennessee newspaper.

He is survived by Mrs. Adler and three children, Julius Ochs Adler Jr., who is on the staff of the New York Times, and Mrs. Barbara Buchman and Nancy Jean Adler.

Mr. Adler's other business interests included the Spruce Falls Power and Paper Co., Ltd., of Toronto, of which he was a director. He was vice chairman and a director of the Interstate Broadcasting Co., board chairman of the Chattanooga Publishing Co., and vice president and director of the Times Facsimile Corp.

From 1932 to 1940 he was civilian aid to the Secretary of War for the Second Corps Area. Since 1949 hew as a member of the Reserve Forces Policy Board.

Began as Private.

His military career began as a private at the Plattsburg, N. Y. training camp in 1915. He became a cavalry second lieutenant two years later and went overseas with the Seventy-seventh Division. In the Argonne, he was gassed. He returned home a major wearing the Distinguished Service Cross, Silver Star, Purple Heart and decorations from France and Italy.

He advanced in rank as a reservist in the years between the two world wars, and saw service also with the Forty-Fourth, Fourth and Sixth Divisions.

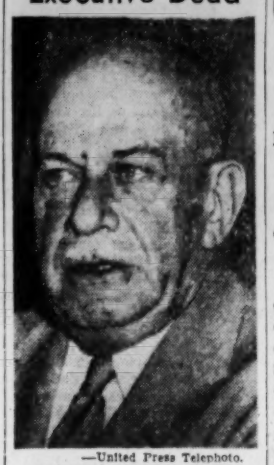

New York State gave him its conspicuous service medal in both wars, and the Legion of Merit and Bronze Star was added to his decorations in World War II.

Mr. Adler was president of the Senior Reserve Commanders Association, Army of the United States; chairman of the Greater New York Boy Scout Councils, and a trustee of International House, Denver's National Jewish Hospital, and the Grover Cleveland Birthplace Association.

He also was a member of the governing board of the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association; and of the Citizens Committee for Military Training.

A graduate of Princeton, he was president of the class of 1914 from 1934 to 1939. In 1939 the Daily Princetonian gave him its alumni award, and from 1940 to 1944 he was a university alumni trustee-at-large.

PRESIDENT BACKS CHARITY DRIVES IN FILMED TELECAST

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (AP)—President Eisenhower, in a filmed and recorded broadcast, last night urged citizens across the nation to support the united charity drives in their communities this fall.

The President said these drives, in which various volunteer agencies join for one united charity appeal, "constitute the biggest single voluntary cause in our nation."

The presidential appeal, recorded and filmed before his heart attack last weekend, was broadcast over all major radio and television networks.

MRS. EMILE V. CALOZ DIES, FORMER ST. LOUISAN

Mrs. Emile V. Caloz, the former Miss Anne Contesse Tyler of St. Louis, died of cancer yesterday in San Francisco, relatives here were informed today. She was 45 years old.

A maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball in 1931, she was the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Monroe Tyler of St. Louis. She was educated at Academy of Sacred Heart and Maryville College. Mrs. Caloz left St. Louis in 1944 with the Red Cross, and married Army Sgt. Caloz at Nuernberg, Germany, on Aug. 20, 1947. They had lived at San Francisco for about three years.

Surviving are her husband; three sisters, Mrs. Sara T. Lacey, Madrid, Spain, Mrs. O'Neill Ryan Jr., New York City, and Mrs. William King Gardner, St. Louis, and a brother, James Monroe Tyler, St. Louis. Funeral services will be held in Presidio, Calif.

FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW FOR JOHN ASHBURY LEWIS

Funeral services for John Ashbury Lewis, retired banker who formerly headed the old Republic National Bank here, will be at 10 a.m. tomorrow at the Lupton undertaking establishment, 7233 Delmar boulevard, University City, with burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mr. Lewis, 90 years old, died last night at St. Luke's Hospital. He lived at 6314 Washington avenue, University City, at the home of his son, Wilson Lewis. He was treasurer of the Automobile Club of Missouri for 25 years, until his retirement two years ago, and was a member of the club's board of governors.

Before heading the Republic bank, which was liquidated in 1924, he was cashier and vice president of the old National Bank of Commerce here and a vice president of the Irving Trust Co., New York City. Surviving, in addition to his son, is a sister, Mrs. Rolla C. Kellogg, 103 Linden avenue, Clayton.

GROUP 9'S FIRST ART EXHIBITION OPENS

New Organization Formed As Schweig Gallery Alters Policy.

(Picture In Everyday Magazine).

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

Group 9, a new organization of leading St. Louis artists, opened its first exhibition yesterday with a reception at Martin Schweig Gallery of Modern Art, 4657 Maryland avenue. This display marks the start of the gallery's season under an expanded plan of operation.

The reception was attended by several hundred artists and art collectors of the St. Louis area, Artists' Guild officers and staff members of City Art Museum and Washington University School of Fine Arts. Purpose of the exhibit, to run through Oct. 22, is to present Group 9 members and their work as a whole.

Later shows in a continuous monthly series will deal with the same artists as individuals and in smaller groups. Exhibitors, all Washington University art teachers, include Walter Barker, Frederick G. Becker, Edward E. Boccia, Fred Conway, Werner Drewes, William Fett, Tanasko Millovich, Charles Quest and Siegfried Reinhardt. Work of all Group 9 members will be available at the gallery at all times.

New Director's Background.

The new full-time director of the gallery is Miss Margery Dodson, painter and sculptor. She taught art six years at John Burroughs School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rowland W. Dodson, 6202 Westminster place, and the granddaughter of Dr. George Rowland Dodson, pastor of First Unitarian Church for 35 years before his death in 1939.

In presenting the work of three artists last season, the gallery lacked a full-time director.

Today the gallery was open but will regularly be closed Mondays. It will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, with special Thursday evening hours ending at 8 o'clock.

The 18 paintings, drawings and prints now on display constitute a show that seems just about as brilliant and diversified as the growing St. Louis art colony can now put together, with not a single mediocre work on view.

An innovation is Reinhardt's "Man," a large drawing on three panels. Each of the two smaller sections on the left is set back an inch behind its predecessor, creating an uncanny illusion of rippling muscles and skeletal structure actually in motion as the viewer walks around it.

More Illusions on the Way.

Product of considerable experimentation, the device is no mere exhibition "gimmick" but is used in seven monumental oils nearing completion at the artist's studio.

Other highlights of the show include a new Conway water color, "The Harbor," whose contours and hues sing jubilantly together; an old Milovich batik, or picture dyed on silk, "In a Forest," a quiet lyrical composition which presents the artist at his best and most characteristic; a new abstract oil by Quest, classic in its sense of stability and strength, and a new Becker oil, "Mosaic," without representational allusion but alive with invented forms.

Outstanding new paintings include Boccia's "Senescence," with a suggestion of a satyr's horn half-hidden among thinning locks; Drewes's "Shipping," a sparkling impression of Stockholm's busy, sunlit harbor painted last August; an untitled Barker oil rich in textural contrast and lavish in use of paint, and Fett's "Toward the Light," whose flying drapery forms illuminated by El Greco-like beams have been taken for an abstraction of a resurrection.

WILLIAM R. ORTHWEIN FUNERAL TOMORROW

Attorney and Republican Leader Dies After Operation—Practiced 50 Years.

Funeral services for William R. Orthwein, attorney active in Republican politics for more than 30 years, will be tomorrow at 2 p.m. at the Second Presbyterian Church, 4501 Westminster place. Burial will be in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Mr. Orthwein died yesterday at Barnes Hospital following an appendectomy. He was 73 years old and lived at 11 Beverly place.

From 1929 to 1933, Mr. Orthwein was a member of a group which counseled the late Mayor Victor J. Miller during the mayor's mental illness. He served as supply commissioner under Mayor William Dee Becker, from 1941 to 1945.

He was an unsuccessful candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant-governor in 1948 and was defeated for city collector of revenue in 1950.

A member of an old St. Louis family which engaged in the bulk grain exporting business, Mr. Orthwein attended Peabody School and Smith Academy. He was graduated from Yale University and obtained his law degree at Washington University.

Since 1905 he had practiced law in St. Louis. From 1916 to 1923 he was vice president and general counsel for the old Kinloch Telephone Co., and was a director of the old Mississippi Valley Trust Co.

During the 1930s, Mr. Orthwein served as trustee in the reorganization of five of the city's leading hotels, and also assisted in the reorganization of Central Properties Corp., owner of the Ambassador and Missouri theaters.

He was a past president of the St. Louis Lawyers Association and helped organize and was first secretary of the Bar Association's Legal Aid Society, a service now handled by the city. His law office is at 722 Chestnut street.

A deacon of Second Presbyterian Church since 1912, Mr. Orthwein also had been active in the St. Louis Grand Opera Guild and the Players Club.

At Yale, he was captain of the water polo and swimming teams. He also played on the baseball team and later was successful at golf and bowling. He was one of the founders of the Missouri Athletic Club.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Nina Baldwin Orthwein; three sons, William R. Orthwein Jr. of St. Louis, David K. Orthwein of San Francisco and Robert B. Orthwein of Detroit; a brother, Percy J. Orthwein, St. Louis, and two sisters, Mrs. Alice Heissler and Mrs. Arnold Stifel, both of St. Louis.

JACK BENNY'S DAUGHTER AND HUSBAND SEPARATED

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 3 (AP)—Comedian Jack Benny's 20-year-old adopted daughter, Joan, and New York stockbroker Seth Baker, 27—married in a lavish ceremony here 18 months ago—have separated, a spokesman for Benny said last night.

He said the cause was "incompatibility." Asked whether a divorce was contemplated, he replied, "I don't know."

The spokesman said the couple came here with their 2½-month-old son, Michael, for a visit with Benny and his wife, Mary Livingstone, over the Labor day holiday. Baker returned alone to New York two or three weeks ago, he added.

100 MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS SEE OLD PLYMOUTH

PLYMOUTH, England, Oct. 3 (INS)—History was rolled back 335 years yesterday when more than 100 direct descendants of the Mayflower pilgrims visited the English town from which their ancestors sailed.

The American group from 25 states—some of them wearing period costumes—stood on the spot at Barbican Quay where the Mayflower set sail for the New World in 1620.

They were accompanied by 16-year-old Barbara Milner of Plymouth who is an actual descendant of Myles Standish, military leader of the Pilgrim fathers.

In addition to touring the oceanfront area where the Mayflower set sail, the party worshipped at St. Andrew church where their forefathers prayed before their pioneer journey.

They also motored to the nearby Brixham shipyard where a reproduction of the Mayflower is under construction. The vessel is tentatively scheduled to sail to the United States next July 4.

ABRAHAM LEVIN FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW MORNING

Funeral services for Abraham Levin, president of Levin-Goodman Co., wholesale general merchandise concern at 1015 Washington avenue, will be at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow at the Berger undertaking establishment, 4715 McPherson avenue. Burial will be in Chesed Shel Emeth Cemetery.

Mr. Levin, 59 years old, died yesterday of a heart attack at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Donald Samuels, 858 Berick drive, University City, with whom he lived. In World War II, he fought in the Middle East with the Jewish Legion attached to British forces, and was active in Jewish affairs here, acting as co-chairman of a committee selling bonds for Israel.

Surviving, in addition to Mrs. Samuels, is another daughter, Mrs. A. D. Krems, of Los Angeles, and a sister, Mrs. David Rebelsky, 826 Leland avenue, University City.

CONSERVATION CLUB OFFICER

Dr. R. E. Vandover of St. Louis was elected yesterday a vice president of the Missouri Conservation Fact Finder Club at its organization meeting at Sedalia, Mo.

Roy Hatfield of St. Joseph is president. The stated purpose of the organization is to obtain data to give sportsmen to enable them to act intelligently on matters concerning them.

RUSSIANS TO START HOUSING TOUR TODAY

Delegation Due in Washington, Plans to Visit 13 U.S. Cities.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (UP)—Russian housing officials arrive here today to start a 30-day tour of the United States in which they hope to pick up American know-how in home building.

The 10-man delegation missed a chance to meet Vice President Richard M. Nixon when bad weather delayed their flight from Europe.

They had planned to attend the opening of the National Association of Home Builders' national housing center.

Nixon, in dedicating the building, urged the housing industry and the Government to step up the program of slum clearance.

Nixon said the dedication was "an occasion to remind us of the debt we owe to other countries." He recalled that the idea for the national housing center came from a smaller center in Rotterdam, Holland. He added that "sometimes we forget that we don't have all the answers."

As guests of the N.A.H.B., the Russian housing officials will visit 13 cities in the United States during their trip, which was approved by the State Department as part of the new Russian-American exchange plan. St. Louis is not on the Russians' itinerary.

In a speech prepared for the opening of the $2,500,000 national housing center, Federal Housing Chief Albert M. Cole said research has made the $12,000 house today far more livable and useful than the same priced house 20 years ago.

Meanwhile, Chairman Albert Rains (Dem.), Alabama, of tthe House subcommittee on housing, warned that a recent government tightening of housing credit might bring on a national economic slump.

He told the N.A.H.B. yesterday that fewer persons can buy homes with the tighter down-payment terms in effect. He said that "the Administration has failed to consider the chain reaction which this tightening of home credit can and might set off."

ALY'S MESSAGE GREETS RITA AND 2 DAUGHTERS IN FRANCE

CHERBOURG, France, Oct. 3 (UP)—Actress Rita Hayworth arrived by liner from New York today with her two daughters and was greeted with a message of friendship from Prince Aly Khan. When the liner Queen Elizabeth docked at noon, waiting was Aly's limousine and his American lawyer, Charles Torem.

"I bring a personal message of friendship to Rita from Aly," Torem told reporters. "Heaps of flowers are waiting for her in Paris. This time the relationship of Rita and Aly is on a perfectly friendly basis—thank heavens."

Rita was accompanied by her young daughter, Princess Jasmin, who will visit her father, Aly, and her eldest daughter by her earlier marriage with Orson Wells.

Hour's Concert During Arrival Of Veiled Prophet Ball Guests

Crowning of Queen of Love and Beauty Will Climax Ceremonial Opening of Social Season.

A one-hour orchestral concert, starting at 7 p.m., will be presented at Kiel Auditorium convention hall tomorrow as some 10,000 formally attired guests arrive for the annual Veiled Prophet ball.

The concert will be followed by music traditionally associated with the ceremonial opening of the St. Louis social season, a pageant which will be climaxed by the crowning of the young woman chosen as queen of the Prophet's Court of Love and Beauty.

Wednesday evening the Prophet and the new Queen will take part in the annual parade, an elaborate procession of floats which will follow a seven-mile route through the city. It will begin at 7:05 p.m. at Kingshighway and Lindell boulevard.

Preceding the opening of the ball program tomorrow, the Prophet's orchestra, again directed by Benjamin L. Rader, will play a marching song from Romberg's "The Desert Song," the Il Guarany overture, by Gomez; excerpts from Cole Porter's "Silk Stockings," and the finale from Tchaikovsky's Symphony in F.

Also to be performed are a selection from Richard Rodgers' "South Pacific," the "Slavische Rhapsody" by Friedeman, and the "Belle of the Ball" waltz by Anderson.

Music for the successive stages of the coronation ceremony will be as follows:

Entrance of past Queens.
Adoration — — — — Borowsky
Entrance of Matrons of Honor.

FATHER JOHN M'WILLIAMS DIES, EX-ST. LOUISAN

The Very Rev. John J. McWilliams, a former St. Louisan and instructor at Kenrick Seminary, died yesterday following a lengthy illness at Cape Girardeau, where he had been associated with St. Vincent's College. He was 76 years old.

President of the college from 1926 to 1932, Father McWilliams returned there in 1938 as spiritual adviser after spending six years at St. Catherine's Church in New Orleans.

He previously taught at DePaul University, Chicago, and served at Holy Trinity Church in Dallas. He is survived by a sister. Funeral mass will be said Wednesday with burial at Perryville, Mo.

MAYOR REVERSES RALEIGH ROLE WELCOMING PRINCESS

MONTREAL, Oct. 3 (UP)—Montreal officials laid out the red carpet yesterday for Britain's Princess Royal, aunt of Queen Elizabeth II, but the Princess never got to walk on it.

Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau got so nervous when he welcomed the visiting Princess Royal at the railroad station that he walked on the carpet himself, forcing the royal visitor to walk beside him on the stone floor.

G.O.P. ACCUSED OF GERRYMANDER ON HOUSE SEAT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (UP) —Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler yesterday accused "right-wing" Republican leaders in Wisconsin of trying to gerrymander Representative Henry Reuss (Dem.) Wisconsin, out of his House seat.

He said in a formal statement it could well be "another big steal" by Republicans in a "desperate effort to win control of Congress in the 1956 election."

"Even the Republican party of Wisconsin has recognized what a slick maneuver this is," he said. "In a formal resolution last June, they called it 'wrong from a moral viewpoint . . . a sharp practice . . . and an act of political expediency.'"

Butler said the proposed redistricting of two Milwaukee congressional districts contained in a bill pending before the Wisconsin State Senate is intended solely to "steal" Reuss' seat in Congress.

NUMBER OF U.S. EMPLOYES RISES 7TH STRAIGHT MONTH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3 (AP)— The Federal Government added a net of 482 employes in August for the seventh consecutive monthly increase in its civilian employment, Senator Harry F. Byrd (Dem.), Virginia, announced today.

Byrd is chairman of the joint committee on reduction of nonessential federal expenditures, which keeps a continuing check on federal payrolls.

The increase, all of which was laid to new civilian hiring by tthe armed services, raised over-all civilian employment to 2,385,077 persons.

DODGER, YANKEE ARGUMENT ENDS IN FAN'S KILLING

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEWARK, N.J., Oct. 3 — A three-way argument over the relative merits of the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yankees, that started in a Newark tavern and was continued outside when the tavern closed resulted yesterday in the death of one of the participants.

Grover Allgood, 21 years old, a Dodger fan, got into the argument and later a fistfight with an unidentified man. Peter Sweeney, 30, went to the aid of the man receiving the beating.

According to police, Allgood punched Sweeney on the jaw once, knocking him down. As Sweeney fell, his head struck the pavement. He was taken to Newark Eye and Ear Infirmary where he died.

Allgood was arrested on a charge of atrocious assault and battery. The charge was changed to homicide after Sweeney's death.

RUSSIAN, SWEDISH FARM GROUPS TO TRADE VISITS

MOSCOW, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Russians have announced agricultural exchange visits with Sweden similar to those carried out with the Americans, Britons and Norwegians.

I. K. Lebedev, first vice chairman of the council of ministers of the Russian federated republic, will head a Soviet delegation that will spend three weeks in Sweden. Then a Swedish group will be taken on a tour of Soviet collective state farms.

Poplar Bluff Airman Drowns.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Oct. 3 (AP) — Eleven persons crowded into a 14-foot outboard motorboat were thrown into the water and one man drowned in a Sunday accident, William C. Mathis, 22 years old, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., an airman recruit attached to the 1740th Air Transport Squadron, Palm Beach Air Force Base, lost his life while wading ashore.

o'clock the next morning at Rosedale, Kansas (now part of Kansas City, Kansas). I asked a switchman if I could call my fiancee in Independence.

"Call her," he said. "The phone's yours. But if she doesn't break the engagement at four o'clock in the morning, she really loves you."

I called her at once, and she didn't scold me. I also called my mother and sister. They all wept a little, but all of them, I think, were glad to know an overseas lieutenant.

I went on to New York and spent a few days at Camp Merritt at Tenafly, N.J. It was my first opportunity to see New York City, and my first visit there came when I was given a 24-hour leave, which also gave me a chance to purchase some extra spectacles. I was very nearly blind without glasses and felt that I had better get three extra pairs. The man who gave me the examination and made the glasses for me would not allow me to pay for them. He said I was paying him by going overseas in the service of the country.

him thoroughly political, but they have been restrained by their reliance on the President personally.

Up to now the Secretary of State has had another advantage. The new Administration has followed the main lines of the Truman-Acheson foreign policy. Doubtful Republicans have had to go along with the President; Democrats had to support their own policy.

Helped by Senator George.

President Eisenhower, inspired and helped by Chairman Walter F. George of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, brought that policy to a splendid climax at Geneva last summer. Since then, what it failed to achieve has been increasingly to the fore.

Educated opinion here is that there is very little juice remaining in the foreign policy conceptions with which the post-war crisis of Soviet imperialism was met and overcome. By sad and ironic circumstance, the past is losing its momentum at the precise time that President Eisenhower must relax, at least temporarily, his secure grasp on the world's imagination.

The challenge to the State Department under the direction of Secretary Dulles is to break new ground and offer fresh and positive approaches to the problems which are preempting the headlines. Cyprus is shaking the Greek-Turkish alliance. France is mired in North Africa and the backwash afflicts the United Nations. Conflict in the Middle East threatens the West with a center of Soviet arms and technicians pointing at Africa. The future of NATO is uncertain.

policy is equally no more than a shuffling off of the irrational and unprofitable. It was a simple act of reason on the part of the new regime to end the incredibly stupid Stalinist-policies toward Yugoslavia and Austria. In the same way, it is no more than rational to wish to avoid any major risk of nuclear war and the new Soviet rulers undoubtedly do want to avoid this risk.

In this sense, there has been a "mellowing of Soviet power," internally and externally. But is a return to reason in the Kremlin really an undiluted blessing for the West? Is it not possible that an intelligent and rational Soviet policy will hold far greater dangers for the West, and especially for the United States, than a morbid and irrational Soviet policy?

The majority of those gathered at Milan believed that the answer to both questions was "yes." They believed that, under the new circumstances, to paraphrase the sentence quoted above, "the Soviet Union has it in its power to increase enormously the strains under which American policy must operate." Among those who so believed was the author of the famous article on which American policy has so long been based.

RED FRONT GAINS BIGGER LEAD IN INDONESIA VOTE

Moslem Leader Concedes Defeat, Warns That Communism May Engulf Nation.

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Oct. 3 (AP) — The vote in Indonesia's first general election piled up on the border line of Communism today as the nationalist "Proletarian Front" party increased its commanding lead over its major opponent.

Mohammed Natsir, general chairman of the Moslem Masjumi party, in effect conceded defeat. He told newsmen: "We no longer can expect to get a working majority in the new Parliament."

With more than a third of the estimated 34,000,000 votes counted, unofficial results gave the Nationalists 3,988,954, Masjumi 2,710,951, Communists 2,069,616, and Moslem Orthodox Radicals 1,660,314. The rest were scattered among the other 186 parties on the newspaper-size ballot.

Although the Nationalists were far short of a majority in the popular vote, they could count on the support of the Communists whose backing kept Nationalist leader Ali Sastroamidjojo's cabinet in power for the past two years.

Hopes for Top Cabinet Posts.

The Reds had high hopes of top cabinet posts should Sastroamidjojo again take the helm. Previously the Communists had said they would form a coalition government if they were victorious.

The nationalist organ Suluh Indonesia headlined: "Proletariat Winning Java." The key central island will elect 168 members of the 260-seat Parliament. The final outcome will not be known for weeks as voting continues by stages in the 3000 islands of the archipelago.

Nationalist leaders, whose platform on key points dovetails with the Indonesian Communist party's, demanded that President Soekarno immediately order Masjumi Prime Minister Burhanuddin Harahap's caretaker government out of office. The Communists joined in the demand and also urged the immediate dissolution of the appointed provisional Parliament of 230 members, in which they hold only 17 seats.

Nationalists Have 44 Seats.

The Indonesian news agency said Masjumi headquarters had admitted the Nationalists so far had won 44 Parliament seats and the Communists 24, to 31 for the Masjumi and 30 for the Orthodox Radicals.

Masjumi chairman Natsir warned that Indonesia was in danger of being engulfed by Communism.

The big Nationalist vote amazed the non-Communist Indonesian press and business community, who helped to force the Sastroamidjojo government out nine weeks ago with complaints that nothing was being done to halt spiraling inflation, the worsening economic and financial situation and the rising national deficit.

All the parties promised continuance of Indonesia's "active independent" foreign policy and no tieups with either the West or the Communist bloc. But the Nationalists came out strong for the welfare of the peasants and workers and said they had no objection to Communism if it remained an at-home movement, without tying the nation to Moscow and Peiping.

Communist leaders explained their aims and those of the Nationalists are "not far apart."

ART GALLERY AND CHARITY GET BULK OF KRESS ESTATE

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (UP)—Samuel H. Kress, who died at the age of 92 last Sept. 22, left the bulk of his multi-million dollar dime store fortune to the National Gallery of Art in Washington and to charity, according to his will which was filed in surrogate's court today.

Kress, who was considered one of America's wealthiest men, already had given the national gallery the cream of his collection of Italian renaissance art which was said to be the finest ever acquired by an individual. The amount of Kress's estate has not been announced.

'GRANDMOTHER' ACTRESS BACK IN SCHOOL AT 93

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3 (AP)—Mrs. Adeline Reynolds, who plays grandmother roles in the movies, is back in school at the age of 93. She attends high school evening classes twice a week to learn Spanish.

"We should all learn languages so we can know the people of other countries," she explained yesterday.

Her films have included "Going My Way," "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn" and "Since You Went Away." Her teacher, Mrs. Beryl McManus, says Mrs. Reynolds is as "alert as my best pupils."

O'DWYER SAYS HE NEVER WILL LIVE IN U.S. AGAIN

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (INS)—Former New York Mayor William O'Dwyer said yesterday he has decided never to live in the United States again.

The former United States Ambassador to Mexico, who now resides there, said his decision was not based on his difficulties in his last years in this country.

O'Dwyer said he liked Mexico's climate, its people and the country itself. Living there, he continued, "is a challenge, just like it was a challenge in this country at the turn of the century." He is on a two-week visit in the United States.

GERMANS HERE TO LEARN HOW U.S. UNIONS OPERATE

Five members of the German Union of Public Services, Transport and Traffic Workers were in St. Louis today to observe and study the organization and activities of their counterpart unions, working conditions and production methods in industry and the policy and administration of government services on various levels.

They are Franz Josef Gratzfeld, national secretary of the municipal employes department of the union; Leo Philippen, national secretary of the public utility workers department; Otto Rose, head of the North-Rhine Westphalia area; Freidrich Schmidt, deputy head of the Hesse area, and Herman Steldinger, national secretary of the civil aviation and road transport workers.

The group arrived in the United States Sept. 8 as participants in the Department of State's leaders program. They arrived here today and will remain about five days. They will visit the West Coast before leaving about Nov. 5.

GENERALS VISIT FORT WOOD ON EVE OF RESERVE TRAINING

FORT LEONARD WOOD, Mo., Oct. 3 (AP)—Army Chief of Staff Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor headed an inspection that included eight generals in an inspection of this facility yesterday on the eve of its inauguration of the new reserve training program.

With Gen. Taylor in the convoy was Maj. Gen. P. D. Ginder, commanding general of the Fifth Army, with headquarters in Chicago. Post Commander Maj. Gen. Frank O. Bowman led the tour, the first ever made here by an Army chief of staff.

Gen. Taylor spoke to noncommissioned officers preparing to process today the first enlisted reservists and National Guardsmen. Training begins next Friday.

'PRICELESS' ANCIENT OBJECTS STOLEN

Eight Miniature Pieces Vanish From Brooklyn Museum.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3—Eight ancient silver miniature statues, the cream of an exhibition entitled "Sculpture in Silver From Islands of Time," were stolen Saturday from the Brooklyn Museum. So distraught, however, were museum officials that police were not notified until yesterday.

The statues were all on loan to the Brooklyn Museum from six galleries. Edgar G. Schenck, Brooklyn Museum director, said they were insured for a total of about $5000. He added, however, that each piece was "priceless," for none is replaceable and any insurance on such items is only a token evaluation."

Perhaps the most important piece taken was a one-and-one-half-inch tall, two-and-one-half-inch long panther made in Persia between the Third and Second centuries B.C., and belonging to the Princeton University Museum of Art.

Among the other pieces stolen were: "Roman Lar," made in Rome some time during the Third century. It is owned by the Walters Art Gallery of Baltimore.

Three pieces owned by the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, all considered the most excellent examples of Fifteenth century silver sculpture from France and the Rhine. Those pieces, none of them taller than four and one-half inches, are of "An Apostle," "The Virgin," and the "Virgin and Child."

A rare Chinese work carved from solid silver sometime between 618 A.D. and 907 A.D. is also missing. That piece was an exquisitely carved box in the form of a ram and is owned by the William Rockhill Nelson Gallery of Kansas City.

Another stolen piece came from Japan where it was made in the Eighteenth century. Three and a quarter inches high, its catalogue name is "Kwnnon on Loftus." It is owned by the Seattle Art Museum.

The final missing figure was "Man Riding the Llama," done in Peru between 1200 and 1532 A.D. and owned by the Smithsonian Institution of Washington.

Statuette From St. Louis Museum In Brooklyn Exhibit.

On loan from City Art Museum for the traveling show from which the pieces were stolen is a small Egyptian statuette, dating from the fifth century B.C. It was purchased by the museum here in 1924 for $2584. The thieves did not take the statutte.

City Art Museum Director Charles Nagel was director at the Brooklyn Museum when the show was booked there, he said. It was organized by the American Federation of Arts, Washington, D.C., in collaboration with a Newport (Mass.) silversmith firm. It is not to visit St. Louis.

The method of display, on pedestals that come with the show to make the "tempting" objects as accessible to viewers as possible, aroused fears of theft among the Brooklyn Museum staff members, Nagel added. For that reason additional precautions, in the shape of vitrines or specially illuminated and supposedly secure display cases, were taken by the curatorial staff at Brooklyn, Nagel was assured in a letter he received last week.

GOLDEN WEDDING DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Schmidt, 7354 County Club court, Pasadena Hills, celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary yesterday with a dinner for family and friends at the Gatesworth Hotel. Following the dinner there was an open house at their home.

Schmidt, 74 years old, is a stationary engineer with the General Cable Corp. His wife is 68. They have two children and eight grandchildren.

7 IN AUTO KILLED IN COLLISION WITH BUS IN ARKANSAS

EUDORA, Ark., Oct. 3 (UP)—An automobile speeding along on the wrong side of the highway slammed into a bus carrying the Philander Smith College Negro football team at Eudora's city limits yesterday, killing the seven occupants of the car.

Seven of the 30 persons on the bus were injured but only two required hospitalization. The team was returning to Little Rock from New Orleans after a football game with Dillard University in the Louisiana city Saturday night.

The dead were all Negroes, occupants of the car driven by Curtis Stanley of Little Rock.

Acting Coroner A. O. Roscher held an inquest and established that the Stanley car was on the wrong side of the highway and going at an excessive rate of speed when it collided with the bus on a curve.

10 ARRESTED AFTER RAID ON POLICY HEADQUARTERS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOUNDS, Ill., Oct. 3—Ten men were arrested yesterday following a raid conducted by Illinois State Police and Sheriff Robert Aldrich of Pulaski county at an isolated cabin said to be headquarters of a policy racket.

About $500 in cash and a large amount of lottery equipment were seized in the raid, which followed the arrest of five men on charges of distributing policy tickets in Cairo, Ill.

Nine of the men arrested were fined $25 each by Police Magistrate Joe Jump of Mound City. The tenth, Allen Johnson of Mounds, owner of the cabin, was freed on $1000 bond. All are Negroes.

500 CATHOLICS REPORTED ARRESTED IN RED CHINA

HONG KONG, Oct. 3 (AP)—Three Belgian priests, the Rev. Albert E. J. Weyts, the Rev. Jules Scheyvaerts and the Rev. Paul Coucke, arrived here today aboard the British freighter Pakhoi from Shanghai. They reported that 500 Catholics were arrested in Shanghai recently in the Reds' new drive against religion. They said that on Sept. 8 authorities rounded up 200 Chinese Catholics along with 23 Chinese priests and Bishop Kiong Ping-mei.

Two weeks later, 17,000 students and workers rallied at the mission house, shouting anti-Catholic slogans. The leaders read out charges accusing the bishop of counter-revolutionary activities. Two days later, 200 more Chinese Catholics were arrested.

Father Coucke said the only foreign clergyman who is free to move about Shanghai is Bishop James E. Walsh of Cumberland, Md., who expressed no desire to leave China until he is "kicked out."

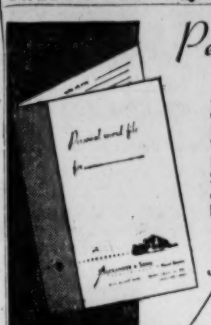

KHRUSHCHEV QUOTED SAYING RUSSIA BACKS AFRICANS

LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Moscow radio quoted Nikita Khrushchev tonight as saying Russia supports the people of North Africa in their efforts to gain independence from France.

The broadcast said Khrushchev, first secretary of the Communist party, made the statement in answer to a question by a Pravda correspondent.

"Regarding the problem of North Africa . . . ," he said, "The U.S.S.R. does not interfere in the internal affairs of other states, and . . . the correct solution of the problem can be found by taking into consideration the lawful rights and national interests of the people of the French Union.

"The position of the Soviet people is a position of moral support and sympathy with the national liberation strivings of the peoples. This has long been known and, it seems to me, does not need any special explanations."

You don't have to wait for your Stomach Valve to Open when you use Straight Aspirin!

MEDICAL EVIDENCE SHOWS BAYER ASPIRIN STARTS TO ACT THROUGH STOMACH WALL ...goes Right to the Root of Your Pain!

When you take a pain reliever which must pass through the valve in your stomach before it can do any good, relief is delayed until this valve opens. Medical authorities have found that the addition of certain antacids to aspirin can actually slow down absorption through the stomach wall.

When you take Bayer Aspirin, there is no unnecessary delay—no waiting for it to go through the valve in your stomach to start working. Medical evidence shows that from the instant a Bayer Aspirin tablet starts disintegrating in your stomach, it is being absorbed through your stomach wall—right to your pain. Therefore, it gives amazingly fast relief.

HERE'S PROOF THAT BAYER ASPIRIN STARTS DISINTEGRATING Instantly

Medical university tests have proved it—and you can prove it, too! All you do is drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water and watch what happens. You'll see that it starts to disintegrate the instant it touches the water. It does the same in your stomach. So to feel better fast, whenever you're suffering from the pains of headaches, colds, neuritis or neuralgia, do as millions do—use Bayer Aspirin.

Get the Best—Get BAYER ASPIRIN

Have you ever heard of the expression "White Elephants"? It's a term applied to items of merchandise that are no longer of any use to the owner, but for which other people would gladly pay a reasonable cash price. If you have white elephants in your basement or attic—things you no longer need—why not sell or swap them through a Want Ad in the classified columns of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch? JUSTICE DEPT. OFFICIAL BACKS USE OF EX-REDS

Security Chief Says Criticism Won't Lull Prosecutors Into Inaction.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3 (AP)—Assistant Attorney General William F. Tompkins said today the Department of Justice will not be "lulled into inaction" by criticism of its use of former Communists and confidential informers as witnesses in subversive prosecutions.

In an address prepared for the annual conference of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, Tompkins said his audience knew it is standard practice to offer this type of witness in criminal proceedings. He described the Communist movement in this country as a "criminal menace."

Yet, he said, uninformed critics attack not only the credibility of particular witnesses but also the propriety of using them at all.

Tompkins, who heads the department's internal security division, did not mention several such witnesses who later repudiated their testimony—among them Harvey Matusow who had testified both in court trials and before congressional committees. Speaking generally of informer-witnesses, he said:

"Not only has the worst kind of abuse been heaped upon the witnesses themselves — they have been labeled stool pigeons, scabs, hired informants and kept witnesses—but the deadly serious accusation has even been made that the Department of Justice has been a party to false testimony given in connection with this practice."

Denying these and other allegations he said had been made, Tompkins said no one "can cite any instance where the Department of Justice has 'purchased testimony,' hired witnesses 'to testify according to the wishes of its lawyers,' or 'kept' witnesses because they have the ability 'to interpret Communist doctrine in such a way as to bring it within the area proscribed by the Smith Act'."

Tompkins asserted that in 13 separate Smith Act cases involving alleged Communist leaders accused of teaching or advocating violent overthrow of the Government, the juries returned verdicts for the Government and that "five appelate courts have reviewed and upheld these findings." Further, he said, Congress has made legislative findings that the Communist movement is dedicated to violent action, prohibited by the Smith Act.

"The only logical explanation for criticism of the use of former Communists by the Department of Justice is that our critics view these trials not as criminal, but as political in character," Tompkins said. "They seem unwilling to concede that the American Communist party poses any real threat or that its leaders have really been engaged in a criminal conspiracy.

"We do not intend to be lulled into inaction by criticism of our program to combat subversion in this country—rather we intend to utilize every bit of credible evidence at our disposal to continue to enforce our laws against any and all subversives in our midst. The sincere former Communist who has the courage to come forward can make a material contribution to the success of this endeavor."

W. GERMANS GIVE THANKS FOR BOUNTIFUL HARVEST

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 3 (AP)—Millions of Protestants in West Germany yesterday attended Thanksgiving services for a bountiful harvest. Altars were decked with shocks of wheat, baskets of grapes, and piles of other crops.

In expressing gratitude for nature's rich gifts this year, pastors urged their congregations "not to forget that hunger still rules today in the other half of Germany."

Flashes of Life

Zzzu Succeeds Zzymbla.
LONDON (AP)—A man who may be champion for a long time has taken over as holder of the last place in London's telephone directory.

His name; V. K. Zzzu.

In the new directory Zzzu gained the prideful place from Lewiz Zzymbla, who reigned for years.

Emergency Calls.
ZURICH, Switzerland (UP)—The Zurich Telephone Co. is offering a new service. For a small fee, the company said, it will provide a "reminder service for those hard-working business men who forget such important events as birthdays and wedding anniversaries."

Ineffectual Champion.
MISSOURI VALLEY, Ia. (UP)—The world championship goose-calling contest lured more than 7000 spectators and 35 contestants to a park here.

The only thing it didn't lure was geese. Not a one showed up, although Mayor M. M. Kirlin reported several were spotted overhead before the calling began.

The new champion is Clarence Faulk, Lake Charles, La.

Misfire.
DENVER (UP)—Sam Girard told police he was sorry that he set fire to the lobby of the Portland Hotel.

"I didn't realize that it was the wrong hotel until after the stairway was on fire," Girard said.

ROMANIA'S RED PREMIER MADE PARTY BOSS, TOO

LONDON, Oct. 3 (AP)—Gheorghe Gheorghiu-Dej, Romania's Red premier, has stepped back into direct control of his country's Communist party. The Bucharest radio announced that the central committee of the party had made him first secretary again.

Gheorghiu-Dej relinquished the post April 20, 1954, adopting Moscow's pattern of sharing power with a collective leadership. He said at the time that "hero worship must be completely wiped out."

Gheorghe Apostol, who was made secretary then, has been demoted to the chairmanship of the Central Council of Trade Unions.

The broadcast also announced that the party's second postwar congress, twice postponed, will now be held Dec. 23. This congress may announce some major policies, including perhaps a renewed drive for industrial production.

PLANTS ODD FRUIT, NOW HE IS ALL WRAPPED UP IN IT

DEAL, England, Oct. 3 (UP)—Joe Goodban said today he should never have picked up the odd looking fruit he found on the beach.

He planted it in his back yard and has felt like Jack of beanstalk fame ever since. The plant grew and grew and now is more than 100 feet long, trailing around his house and overflowing into neighboring lots.

Experts said it apparently is a tropical plant which was carried by ocean currents from Africa.

RED CHINESE FIRE 538 TIMES IN DAY AT QUEMOY GROUP

TAIPEI, Formosa, Oct. 3 (AP)—Over a two-hour period yesterday, Chinese Red guns on Amoy fired 538 shells across seven miles of water at Quemoy, Little Quemoy and Tatan islet before being silenced by vigorous counterfire, the Nationalist defense ministry reported.

There was no mention of damage or casualties. On Friday the ministry reported a Red bombardment of 717 shells, heaviest of the year. The ministry said that Friday's shelling was done by heavier guns, an indication the Communists have reinforced their artillery strength in the Amoy area, some 130 miles west of Formosa.

AERIAL STUNTMAN KILLED AS POLE SNAPS BEFORE 5000

WESTBURY, N. Y., Oct. 3 (AP)—Michael Telesco, an aerial stuntman, plunged to his death before 5000 spectators Saturday night when a 123-foot steel pole broke at an outdoor bazaar.

Telesco, of Trenton, N. J., had completed a series of balancing acts and had climbed down two rungs when the pole began to bend. Then it broke.

A yard-long trapeze bar plunged into his chest as he struck the ground.

TRUTH SERUM DRUGS NOT SURE-FIRE, DOCTOR ASSERTS

CHICAGO, Oct. 3 (AP)—A Colorado psychiatrist said yesterday that persons under the influence of so-called truth serum drugs may confess to crimes they never committed.

Dr. John M. MacDonald, assistant medical director of the Colorado Psychopathic Hospital, said "false and misleading answers may be given" by persons under such drugs. He said this was especially true when the questions were improperly phrased.

MacDonald, writing in the current issue of the Northwestern University Journal of Criminal Law, Criminology and Police Science, also said many guilty suspects are able to lie while under the influence of the drugs.

Trend of the Times

A Growing Upswing In Nature Writing

By Leonard Hall

WHEN a fellow insists upon being a farmer, surely the most poorly compensated of all professions, I suppose he should not complain if he is considered impractical. And if in addition to this he insists on observing and reporting the activities of the yellow garden spider which lives at the corner of the porch and of the frogs in the pond, then his friends are apt to agree he is having fun but also to look upon him privately as an incurable romanticist. He lives in some happy, carefree otherworld, they decide, and not in this deadly serious time of automatic brains and isotopes, VistaVision and TV "spectaculars," psycho-neuroses and automobiles that will soon feature parachutes as well as safety belts.

"Impractical romanticist"—these are indeed hard names to be called, even in such practical and desperate times. Yet I am quite certain that I, for one, will continue to prefer to observe and ponder and tell about the minor miracle of the flying squirrel's sweeping glide, rather than to extol the wonders of automation. If there were no other reason, the one is alive and free while the other is dead and acts when its master pushes a button. And no man yet has ever created a flying squirrel.

IT ALSO SEEMS TO ME that the number of "impractical romanticists" is currently on the increase. Certainly the amount of serious nature writing which is being published is on the upswing, which can only mean that the group of readers to whom such writing is addressed grows steadily. The number of books dealing with some phase of the natural world which come into our hands necessitates a constant increase in shelf space. There are so many of them, in fact, that it seems as though nature writing, like the historical novel, has become a special category of creative literature. It is as if, in a time when life becomes steadily more urbanized and crowded and concerned with the inanimate workings of machines, more and more people feel a need to re-establish contact with the animate and organic world of birds and animals, fields and woods and streams.

THERE WAS A TIME, and it is not so long ago, when this world played a major part in the lives of most of us. It was no more than two generations ago that the majority of people actually lived on the land, depending on it for a livelihood. They plowed the soil, planted crops, tended livestock, worked in the woods. They knew, because this was their life, that man depends on and is part of nature. Even those in the growing cities and towns were no more than a generation away from the soil; close enough to go back from time to time. And thus the natural world furnished inspiration for both life and the arts. The novelist, poet, playwright, painter, musician—all found themes from man's daily contact with and observation of nature. Today one might compile a considerable list of contemporary workers in the arts before finding one to whom man's relationship with nature is as important as his involvement with the machine.

IT IS HERE, it seems to me, that the serious nature writer finds his opportunity. His concern is neither with over-sentimental gushing at the sight of a bluebird nest nor with the dull but necessary listing and classifying of sub-species of fungi or examination of the cell structure of the amoeba. These are for the "nature lover" on one hand and, on the other, the fellow with the Ph.D. who sits with his magnifying glass in the musty file rooms of the museum. I often suspect that this latter must sometimes wonder how he got there, when his original interest in plants and animals was probably in walking through the fields and forests to enjoy their beauty. The nature writer's task, I think, is that of interpreter. He has an obligation to be observant and accurate—and contemplative. Thus he can bring to the general reader an interesting awareness of the living world of soils and water, plants and birds and wild creatures of the forest, a world far more exciting and more essential to human life than the dead world of the drill press and the adding machine. His concern is not only with externals and aesthetics, but with meanings; with trying to interpret to the heart and mind of others the very special things which nature has to say to us.

ON WHAT IS PERHAPS the most vital issue of our time, the nature writer has taken his stand. For there are those, perhaps conditioned themselves by the machine world in which they live, who would have us believe that men can be conditioned to function at a command or the push of a button, like any other automaton. They see the totalitarian state as the natural condition of a world ruled by the machine; and men as units to be manipulated with no more concern for individuality than is given to the functioning of any other mechanical unit; to be worn out, thrown away and replaced by other mechanically functioning human units. But fortunately for those of us who believe in freedom, there are also some who insist that man is a unique and constantly growing organism, an individual unlike any other and capable of infinite variation. With these the nature writer must stand, for this is the only rule which he sees consistently repeated in nature. It is the world where everything is different; where the pattern is never exactly the same, whether the thing we observe is two leaves from one plant, or two animals of the same species. Always in nature the living organism is an individual, acting out the miracle of birth and growth, death and decay. This is the important thing which those of us who live close to nature have to report: that the dead machine will never be as marvelous as even the live frog in his puddle and that among living things, man is the most marvelous. As long as we remember this, we can remain free.

An Educator Who Has Muscle, Too

New U. City Superintendent Played Football and Wrestled in College

By Edward Kosmal

UNIVERSITY CITY has added an athletic touch to grace its halls of ivy.

It all started earlier this year when the time came to pick a new superintendent of schools. In a long-distance move, the University City Board of Education reached all the way to southern California and selected Robert S. Gilchrist to call the scholastic signals here.

The 50-year-old Gilchrist, who began his new assignment shortly before the current school year commenced, is one educator whose background doesn't leave much—if any—room for jest about absent-minded professors. Actually, the new superintendent is qualified to be the candidate least likely to become the butt of any joke. Things like that generally don't happen to football players and wrestlers. And Gilchrist was both.

A linesman and captain of the football team at the Colorado State College of Education at Greeley, Gilchrist lettered three years in football and wrestling. He also found time to act as president of the junior and senior classes.

But all this is only a small portion of the genial superintendent's college story.

"I also was bus driver on a city route from 6:30 to 10:30 a.m. throughout my college days," he explains. His classes lasted until mid-afternoon, when sports normally came into the picture. During the off-football season he managed to spend the weekends in Denver and get paid for it, to boot. The regular Greeley-to-Denver driver, understandably, wasn't enthusiastic about making the run on Saturdays and Sundays.

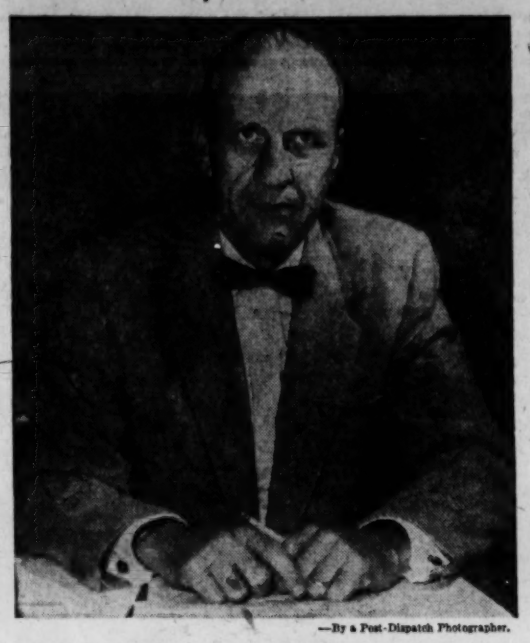

Even as a college boy, Gilchrist recognized a plum when he saw one. So he slipped into the driver's seat on weekends. And during the summer of 1928 Gilchrist extended his bus trips cross-countrywise by making the run to Southern California.

Then there's the chapter entitled, "Gilchrist, the Business Man."

"I fell into it," he explains. His mother owned a large house in Greeley, renting a few rooms to students. At the conclusion of a spring term several students, rushing to get home, asked Gilchrist to sell their old textbooks. He did, with no effort. His initial success spurred him to supply the demand. So Gilchrist and a friend parlayed a short want ad and no capital into a profitable venture.

Advertising for used textbooks, they handed students an IOU for 60 per cent of the price of a new book, selling it at 80 per cent. A grocer in town who saw the dollar and cents value of having students wandering in and out of his establishment gave Gilchrist a rent-free corner in his store. Gilchrist's second-hand bookstore eventually transacted a $7500 to $8000 annual business, which was a lot of money passing through a college student's hands, even in the boom years preceding the 1929 bust.

In the teaching profession since 1922, the superintendent is no stranger to the St. Louis area. His first job after receiving his A.B. and A.M. at Greeley in 1928 was as social studies and mathematics instructor at Webster Groves Junior High School. And in 1930 and '31 he was principal of the junior high and Lyndover elementary schools in Maplewood. Since then he has held teaching or administrative posts in California, Minnesota, Ohio, Colorado and New Jersey.

ACTUALLY Gilchrist, born on a farm in Jewell county, Kan., was teaching before he ever enrolled in college. Graduating from Albuquerque (N.M.) High School in 1922 at the age of 16, his mother considered him a bit too young for college. So Gilchrist proceeded to work and grow older on a Colorado farm. But his chores were short lived, for he became a fifth and sixth grade teacher in Severance, Colo., shortly after receiving his high school diploma. Then in 1923 and '24 he became head of a two-teacher mountain school in Pitkin, Colo., a once-booming mining town whose population had dwindled to a couple hundred citizens. However, by this time he was spending the summers attending classes at the State College of Education.

Traditionally, the instructor of classes five to nine, which were held on the top floor of the two-story Pitkin school building, also acted as principal. And since he taught the upper classes, Gilchrist literally became the school's top man.

It was Gilchrist who was responsible for the first basketball game to be played in Pitkin.

"The school had no gymnasium," he recalls, "but the county assessor permitted us to take over an old building which was bulging under delinquent taxes. We demolished the rooms and strung up a No. 9 wire to keep the outside walls from collapsing."

Far from a piece a work of architectural beauty, the building served as the site for Pitkin's first basketball game and Pitkin's first defeat, both incidents taking place simultaneously.

"Pitkin had to be a self-sufficient town," the superintendent recalls. "It was snowbound virtually every year. When I was there the town was isolated from Thanksgiving until the following Easter."

In 1941 Gilchrist, who received a Ph. D. from New York U., was named director of University School, an experimental-demonstration school at Ohio State.

"It was quite an experience," Gilchrist explains, "The faculty was given complete autonomy in deciding on the best course of instruction to pursue, and I had an opportunity of working with some master teachers in my five years as director of the school."

It was at Ohio State that Gilchrist met his present wife, Adele, who was a language instructor there. Married in 1945, the couple has two children, William, age 6, and Susan, 4. Gilchrist also has another daughter, Mrs. James Kuempel, by his first wife, who died.

From Ohio Gilchrist went to Minneapolis, where he was assistant and associate superintendent for three years. In 1949 he became assistant superintendent in Pasadena, under the controversial Willard E. Goslin, who was asked to resign in 1950. Gilchrist retained his post until he was given the University City assignment last August.

In Pasadena, Gilchrist also busied himself in away-from-school activities. He was on the board of directors of the Family Service Society and the Boy Scouts. In addition he was president of the Community Planning Council and the California Association of School Supervisors, and chairman of the Kiwanis vocational guidance committee. Now in University City, the superintendent is a member of the Rotary club.

AS PRESIDENT of the Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development, Gilchrist was the guiding hand behind the group's 1954 Yearbook. Author of numerous articles on education, he is at present engaged in revising "Secondary Education for American Democracy," a book which he is co-author of.

The 5-foot 11-inch Gilchrist, who carries a well distributed 190 pounds, is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, Alpha Psi Omega, Kappa Delta Pi and Pi Kappa Delta honorary societies.

Gilchrist is pleased with his present assignment for numerous reasons.

"I like this community's realization of the importance of keeping classes down to a reasonable size. In University City," he explains, "the average elementary grade class numbers 28 pupils. Since 1949—when the total enrollment here was 4800—the people have built more than 100 classrooms to house the present 7950 pupils."

And Gilchrist points with pride to the $1,000,000 school bond issue which was passed in University City earlier this year by a 2614 to 80 vote.

The new superintendent has two theories on keeping himself abreast with the latest developments in education.

"I always make it a practice to teach," he says. "While holding administrative posts in the past, I either instructed at a graduate school during the summer or conducted classes on Saturdays. Secondly, my writings require a good deal of research and help to clear up my thinking about the educational field."

It's a sensible approach to his profession, Gilchrist thinks.

"But thoroughness is pretty much of a family tradition," he explains. As an example, he cites his wife who spent two years teaching English in France before she considered herself qualified to teach French to American students.

Gilchrist is the first to admit that directing a city's school system by a newcomer to a community is a large order.

"My first job here," he says, "is to visit every classroom and P.-T.A. in an attempt to become acquainted first hand with our schools and its patrons."

And we have the word of no less an authority than one of Gilchrist's secretaries, Mrs. Wanita Heitzler, that the new superintendent is giving a man-sized portion of time to attain his goals.

"Why look at today's schedule," she says, "I don't know how he'll ever get it all in."

But he did.

Secrets of Charm

Salt Bath for Beauty Glow

DEVOTEES of the after-bath salt rub believe they have the livest, healthiest skins anyone could have. And it seems that everyone who tries it becomes a devotee.

Salt properly used not only brings a fresh glow to the skin, but has a beneficial effect on blemishes and rough spots. Plan to make one salt rub a week part of your beauty routine, and proceed according to these directions:

Place on the floor beside the bathtub a large bath mat or towel, a saucer of salt, a bath brush and a bottle of body lotion. Take a long, warm bath. When your skin is pink, remove yourself, dripping wet, to the mat. Drain the tub and refill it with tepid water.

Work a rich soap lather into the body brush, dip it into the salt and gently rub the mixture into your skin until every inch below the chin is covered. Resoap and dip into the salt again as necessary. Use definite pressure, but don't scrub. Pay special attention to elbows, wrists, heels, and shoulders.

Return to the tub for a thorough rinsing, then dry yourself with a towel that's slightly rough, rubbing briskly. The body lotion comes next and should be allowed to dry on the skin. A final rubdown with a soft towel is the finale.

It's a wonderful feeling right then, and one so many girls say creates an extra sense of well-being for days afterward. But don't grow so enthusiastic that you repeat the salt rub too often. Once a week is often enough, and when your skin is tender from sunburn or any other cause, the salt rub must be omitted.

Slice tomatoes, sprinkle with salt and minced fresh basil; douse with French dressing and refrigerate until serving time. Use about two tablespoons of dressing for each medium-sized tomato.

My Day

Should We Fingerprint Visitors?

By Eleanor Roosevelt

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.

I SEE by the papers that we are planning another exchange of Russian visitors. This time apparently it will be engineers and newspaper people. But they will come on diplomatic passports, because the Russians feel that fingerprinting is only for criminals and have thus far refused to be fingerprinted.

Mrs. Roosevelt

Although this is one of the requirements for visas if one is coming into this country, I am beginning to wonder if it is really necessary to insist on fingerprinting for everybody. It is a messy business, as I well know, for I went to get a pistol permit the other day at my local police precinct office and it took me 24 hours to get my hands really clean afterwards.

Since I am a free American citizen, I did not mind being put in the class of criminals as far as fingerprinting went. I had also submitted to it in the White House during the war. But I can understand how foreigners feel, and I just don't see the necessity of having every foreigner fingerprinted for a visa—especially now, when we are going to have more and more visitors.

REPRESENTATIVE FRANK THOMPSON JR. of New Jersey has been talking in Congress for a long time about exchanges on many levels, and of late the State Department has actually been financing some cultural exchanges—among them, some symphony orchestras which we have helped to go abroad.

We really should have as many different types of people as possible undertake these exchange visits, and I am glad to hear they are going to send artists, musicians, engineers and others, and also include the Iron Curtain countries in the program. That seems to me a real advance, but it should be made easy and not difficult. A number of countries abroad now require no visas.

ON THURSDAY EVENING I attended a dinner of the Hundred Year Association of New York, an interesting association of business men representing organizations that have been in business for more than 100 years. Since 1930 they have given a gold medal each year in recognition of "outstanding achievement for the advancement of New York."

This year the medal was presented to Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, "pioneer founder and leader in electronics communication." Life magazine presented the David Sarnoff story in pictures with narration, Eddie Fisher and Marian Anderson sang, and New York's Mayor Robert F. Wagner presented the award. It was a very distinguished occasion, I thought, and Gen. Sarnoff's speech of acceptance was excellent.

Organizations which give recognition for service rendered are of great value, I think, for no matter how unselfish people may be it is a satisfaction to have some recognition for the work that has been done. When that recognition can be given before so distinguished a company as was present the other night, there is no one who would not appreciate the honor.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

"A COUSIN of my fiancee is to be married shortly. I know the cousin and his bride-to-be well, having met them on several occasions. However, I did not receive an invitation to the wedding. My fiance insists that I go with him to the wedding but I do not think it would be proper. He says that my presence will be taken for granted. Will you please advise me as to the proper thing to do under the circumstances?"

The proper thing is for your fiance to take it for granted they intended to invite you and tell his family that you have not received your invitation. They will then certainly invite you.

DEAR MRS. POST: My son is not engaged but he sees a good deal of one particular young woman who lives in the town where he is now working. She has been home with him to spend two weekends and both times has written me very nice letters afterward. I would like to write a letter to her, and wondered how I should sign my name to this letter and what to call my husband when I refer to him or send his best regards to her.

Answer: You sign your letter Mary Jane Smith and you refer to your husband as "John's father."

On Broadway

By Walter Winchell

THE Philly critics saluted the Broadway-bound dramatization of "The Diary of Anne Frank" as a "rewarding evening" . . . High praise for young Susan Strasberg, making her debut in the Legit, and for Gust Huber, who was so good in "Dial M" . . . But the customers didn't come. . . . Despite very good notices the new entry grossed $5000 (for the first four perfs), according to Variety. . . . Boston's Variety sentinel found "Young and Beautiful" an "unusual play which could be a sleeper" . . . It is based on the stories of F. Scott Fitzgerald — adapted by Sally Benson. Her New Yorker pieces always were readable. . . . Lois Smith (said the aislemen) gives "a piquant performance," and Peter Brandon is outstanding as "a sophisticated cape-wearing hedonist." Glaucoma Danger

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D.

I HOPE that today's column accomplishes its purpose. I have written it to save at least a few hundred people from becoming blind. Here is how the germ of the column grew. On a recent afternoon I was in the office of one of the leading ophthalmologists in the New England area. The conversation got around to glaucoma (a serious condition of abnormally increased pressure within the eye).

DR. PETER STEINCROHN

"Is there anything new about the management of glaucoma?" I asked. He answered that it was the same old problem of procrastination leading to unnecessary blindness.

HERE, IN EFFECT, is what he said: "Patients get to us too late with glaucoma. As in any condition in medicine, we can do more for the patient who comes early. He will usually come running when he has symptoms of acute glaucoma—for example: headache, loss of vision, inflammation and pain. But it's the silent, chronic cases we are especially interested in.

"To diagnose these in time, apparently well people after 40 should have eye-pressures taken every few years by an ophthalmologist. Every patient past middle age should insist on a measurement of his eye-pressure with the instrument known as the tonometer. We can estimate your pressure by pressing down on your eyeballs with a finger. But why guess when the instrument will give us the correct reading?"

HE THEN TOLD ME the case history of a middle-aged man, apparently well, who got something in his eye while walking along the street. It was not until then that the patient realized that he was blind in the other eye. Examination disclosed the presence of glaucoma, which had silently (and slowly) destroyed the head of the optic nerve.

"That might have been prevented," the doctor said, "if this unfortunate man had presented himself every two or three years for tonometry."

The National Society for Prevention of Blindness and also the American Foundation for the Blind (and others) are doing a commendable job in publicizing the dangers of glaucoma. Some of their statistics merit repetition.

In the United States, 20,000 persons (15 per cent of the blind population) are totally blind from glaucoma. An additional 150,000 are blind in one eye from glaucoma. Of far greater concern are the estimated 1,000,000 persons in this country (2 per cent of all persons over 40) who have chronic glaucoma and don't know it.

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

WHEN Cleveland Amory's book, "The Last Resorts," appeared, critics everywhere were more than kind. But there remained one fly in Amory's ointment. He never heard from his blueblood parents in Boston.

Finally he phoned them. "Didn't you get the book I sent, Ma?" he asked anxiously. "Yes, son, we got it," was the answer, "but when your father read me the first sentence, neither of us liked it, so we stopped right there."

'Parenthood Without Hokum'

The Lost Art of Forceful Fatherhood

Dad Fell to Low Extreme, but Now Experts Are Recognizing Child Needs Man to Model After

By Howard Whitman

Second article in a series on "Parenthood Without Hokum." The author is one of the country's leading writers on social problems.

I HAVE never seen a case of fatherhood fallen to such low estate as what I saw that night in San Francisco. I was accompanying three Juvenile Bureau officers on motor patrol when we received a call to an apartment in the North Beach section.

When we got there a man, about 48 years old, was in a chair in the sitting room sobbing and sniveling.

"I called because you've got to help me with my boy," he said. "I just can't handle him any more—I just can't."

He told a story of a son who not only disobeyed, taunted and flouted his father—but actually intimidated him.

"I feel foolish calling the police," the man said, "but I'm actually afraid of physical violence. The boy has already called me every name there is. I have absolutely no control over him. He comes and goes as he pleases—Lord knows where he is now. If I object he raises his fists to me."

Can fatherhood sink any lower?

Over the past 20 years there has been a steady revolt against the authority of father. Some of our experts conjured up pictures of the harsh, brow-beating father who stood over his young, figuratively with bull whip in hand ready to scourge them for the slightest challenge to his mastery. This was the "authoritarian," the tyrant.

It is questionable whether he ever existed to the extent these experts said he did, or whether he was as wicked as they said he was, but they waged relentless war against him nonetheless. In so doing they stripped away not only tyranny, but also a good deal of strength and leadership.

Father was no longer to be the head of the family; he was merely some sort of appendage. The idea that he was the protector and provider, the rock and the strength of the family unit, was junked as being creaky and antique.

The trend has been thus described by Lawrence K. Frank, formerly head of the Zachry Institute of Human Development:

"We forgot father; we left him hanging on a limb looking at this child of his with bewilderment, not sure whether he knew his child, wondering about his place in the modern family."

Draining the blood out of the father role has also produced psychological problems for children. Dr. Edward J. Humphreys of the Norristown State Hospital in Pennsylvania reported, "The nebulosity of the father figure in becoming a key factor in mental upsets. Without a clearly defined father role how can we help young boys to discover their future roles as men?"

But even beyond draining the good blood out of fatherhood we have done our best to pump bad blood into it. Some psychiatrists have made us feel that just about every ill the human mind is heir to, stems directly from that old villain father. Father rejected his children. Father failed to provide love. Father was overdemanding. Father was a fearful bully.

All these and more were heaped upon the head of dad. Fortunately there is less of this today. It is being recognized that father, for all our demands on him, is human too. And it is somewhat infantile—and even mentally unhealthy—forever to use him as a scapegoat for our own shortcomings.

Leaders in sociology and psychology today are recognizing the need for a clearly defined father role and for the restoration of father's functions as head of the family.

In the psychiatric clinics and child guidance centers one hears frequently today of the "need for male identification." What this basically means is that the family needs a man to model after. Small boys must find in their fathers the prototype of a man they can admire, emulate and sometimes even hero worship.

Children themselves tell us of this need in their own guileless language when they say to the kid next door, "My father is stronger than your father," or "My father knows more than your father does." The girl child, too, needs a male identification figure against which to measure her relationships with other males and eventually her selection of a mate.

At the Western Reserve University Medical School in Cleveland, Prof. Emma Plank, a specialist in child development, declared, "The growing child needs masculine identification, the boy seeing in his father a goal which he will one day reach himself and the girl building an image of maleness and a pattern for male-female relationships. Without such a pattern the girl may have considerable fear and doubt about just what the male-female relationship may be."

The new trend also calls for a clarification of roles. For a while the experts were getting mother and father all mixed up. As Dr. Gunnar Dybwad, director of the Child Study Association of America, put it, "Father was being relegated to the role of a 'mother substitute.'"

Today it is acknowledged that fathers don't make very good mothers, any more than mothers make very good fathers. The idea of a two-headed family is being abandoned as quite as unsatisfactory as a two-headed person.

Children fashion their notion of what a man is by what father is, and if father is half a man that is just a kind of notion they fashion.

Dr. James Bard, assistant professor of psychology at Fenn College, in Cleveland, explained the process: "The infant begins to differentiate between mother and father. A baby boy quickly commences the identification process. He puts on his father's hat—and feels very proud doing it. He plays with his father's fishing tackle. And soon he will actually be going with his dad."

"As the years go by, father is the model for his growth and development. Indeed it may be said that whether the child grows up to be a man depends on what he has learned from his father. He certainly won't learn to be a man from his mother."

The new trend even ventures to restore to father his authority and leadership. It is recognized that without these the family is a ship without a helmsman, and no one aboard can feel really safe. In the past it was the vogue for many experts to chide the father who tried to lead his family, even to call him neurotic (or worse, to fill him with fears that he was making the rest of the family neurotic). But in the forefront of family counseling this abides no longer.

DR. IRENE M. JOSSELYN, of the Institute for Psychoanalysis, in Chicago, sounded the new pitch in these words:

"The father should represent a masculine figure, giving a feeling of warm protection not by sheltering the child but by attacking dangers aggressively. His role is not an imitation of, but is complementary to, the role of mother.

"The role of the father in the psychological development of the individual is recognized but we must re-evaluate the role of the father as a constituent part of the family unit."

When the puzzled father today visits a family counselor—one who is abreast of the latest trend—he is no longer likely to be poured into a mold of effete, anemic fatherhood. If, for example, he talked to Director Jeanette Hanford, of the Family Service Bureau of Chicago, he would hear:

—"A certain amount of the firm hand and authoritative voice is needed. Father must play a more aggressive role. He must be responsible, firm, a leader, an exponent of fair play, a symbol of strength—and not just another mother."

This exemplifies the growing trend as I found it throughout the country today. We have tried to turn father into a jellyfish long enough. Now we're beginning to see that he needs a backbone.

PARENTS AND DELINQUENCY

WHAT role does lack of parental responsibility play in juvenile delinquency?

"My father—he's a beaut! He's just a lowdown so-and-so. He don't give a darn if I live or die," one boy said. But let's start at the beginning. The boy—whom we'll call Bud—was a 17-year-old wearing a faded purple jacket and grey denim slacks. He stopped me as I was entering the Hotel Roosevelt in New Orleans and asked for money to get something to eat.

He had been on the bum for three weeks, sleeping in flop houses, washing dishes or panhandling for money to buy food. He had quit high school in Chicago and struck out for Miami in hopes of "striking it rich"—as he put it—in vacation land. When this failed he started bumming and hitch-hiking with nothing but the clothes on his back. He had been washing his clothes at night but his one pair of socks wouldn't take it any longer; they gave out and he had thrown them away the day before.

Before I took him to a local family agency to get him back on the track, Bud told me his story. His mother, he said, had died three years ago—"She was the only person who ever gave a darn for me." Bud's father had divorced her three years earlier and had gone off and married another woman. So Bud was kind of an orphan, staying with grandparents and hating life for the raw deal it had given him, running away now and then to get revenge.

He was bitter when he talked of his father. With a choked and sullen voice he said:

"They oughtn't to let him walk out like that. He's just for himself—looking for his own good times. What happens to me doesn't matter. He never sends any money, never even writes to find out if I'm alive."

If Bud were the next boy to turn up on your front page as a delinquent, would you wonder whom to blame?

The next day in Baton Rouge, La., I visited the Juvenile Detention Home and met Charlie, age 15, and his brother, Leonard, 16. They also were runaways—from Kansas City. They wore the blue jeans and T-shirt of the teen-ager.

We sat down together in the green, dadoed living room of the new detention home.

"Len and me left home because we couldn't stand it any longer," Charlie said. "All Mom cared about was card games. She played cards and bingo five and six nights a week. She even used the money Len and me made working after school."

Leonard added, "When she got mad she'd curse at us and tell us we were just in the way, that if it weren't for us she could be free and have a good time."

The boys described the professional card games to which their mother was addicted. She would pay 50 cents or a dollar for a seat at a table and then play cards until she was either broke or intoxicated with winnings, which she would take back and lose the next night.

The boy's father, as they described him, was well-intentioned but weak and unable to do anything about it. When their mother used the household money for her card games it was bad enough. But when she insisted they turn over the money they made working after school, they decided to light out.

Bud, Charlie and Len were living illustrations of what judges in a dozen juvenile courts had told me: that 90 per cent of the youth problem is the irresponsibility of parents.

Some judges have made strong recommendations. In Florida, the Governor's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency, meeting in Pensacola last January, heard Escambia County Judge Harvey E. Page suggest the whipping post for parents who wilfully shirk their jobs. Later Judge Page said to me:

"We've allowed too many parents to push their duties onto somebody else's shoulders. They bring children into the world, and first they want the schools to raise them, then they want the playgrounds to do the job, and finally they want the police and the courts to raise them. It can't be done. We just have to serve notice on parents that raising their children is their own job—and nobody is going to do it for them."

Santa Rosa County Judge W. A. Bonifay, who also attended the conference, tersely stated, "If there were a little more court at home, we judges would hold less court in the courthouse."

At the Juvenile Court of San Francisco I was conferring in chambers with Judge Milton D. Sapiro when there was a knock on the door. A man about 35 came in, hat in hand. He was the father of a boy in one of San Francisco's kid gangs which had slashed the tires of parked cars, broken plate glass windows and stoned streetcars.

THE man seemed very put out that he had been required to come down to court. His attitude: This was the court's headache, why did he have to be dragged into it? After a brief discussion he left. When the door had closed Judge Sapiro, kindly and mild-mannered, leaned back on his chair and looked toward the ceiling with puzzled eyes. "I just don't understand what has gotten into parents these days," he said.

A review of some of the dominant ideas about parenthood during the past 20 years provide some possible clues. Parents were imbued with the idea that freedom was what children needed most, and any attempt to regulate it or modify it would mark the parent as unenlightened and a fuddy-duddy.

Under the influence of galloping new methods in psychology, some of our experts felt that individual parents weren't much good at rearing children anyway and it would be far better to have them reared on a community basis. The school and social agency could do a much better job, these experts said. Almost anything a parent wanted to do—out of the depths of his natural instincts or the meditations of his mind and heart—was wrong anyway.

CHASTENED by unhappy experiences (juvenile court delinquency cases have risen 45 to 50 per cent in five years) most observers today are ready to return the job of child-rearing to the parents—and let them do it their way.

We cannot put a policeman over each boy's shoulder, nor should we ever want to. Neither can the social worker, the probation worker, or the bright young man in the police juvenile bureau take the place of mother and father in the natural scheme of things. It is doubtful that society ever will be capable of providing mothers and fathers where the Creator provided private and personal ones.

The modern parent may not like to think that he must be an agent of law and order with his own children. Somehow this seems to sully the notion of parental love. Yet which is the loving way—to train your children yourself, here and now, or to leave it to the police, the sergeant in the army, or the boss in the office to do it later on? Though the job may be difficult, parents can certainly put more love into it than total strangers.

Will C. Turnbladh, executive director of the National Probation and Parole Association pinpointed the present situation in these words, "We must once again recognize that parents are the No. 1 authority in a youngster's life. We have swung pretty far away from the notion of parental responsibility, to the notion that when a youngster does wrong it is society's fault.

"Today the situation is critical and we must get parents back on the job. We can't stand idly by and chew our nails."

Turnbladh suggested that for some parents who are wilfully negligent we might need something like Parents Anonymous to do what A.A. does for alcoholics. There even might be a "hard core" of parents who need disciplinary action, he acknowledged.

But certainly no whipping post will be necessary. In the opinion of this observer, most parents want to do the right thing. And if many have failed, it often has been because they were discouraged from doing it. All they need is a green light.

TOMORROW: Discipline — A Naughty Word.

Today's Brain Game

HERE is a quiz on events that made news in past Octobers. Six correct answers is excellent.

1. Vaintarnas dam, a $36,000,000 project completed in October 1954, supplies which Indian city with water?

2. Where did John Brown stage his raid of Oct. 16, 1859?

3. Can you name the island on which the Statue of Liberty was unveiled in October 1887?

4. Talking pictures made their debut in October 1927. Can you name the movie?

5. Can you name the nurse who was executed in Belgium in October 1915?

6. In what country was Mata Hari executed Oct. 15, 1917?

7. War between Germany and the United States formally ended in October of what year?

8. Can you name the ex-Premier of Norway who was executed in October 1945?

ANSWERS.

1. Bombay. 2. Harper's Ferry, Va. 3. Bedloe's island. 4. "The Jazz Singer." 5. Edith Cavell. 6. France. 7. In 1951. 8. Vidkun Quisling.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

THE hand below, occurring in a team-of-four contest, rewarded the declarer who exhibited greater imagination. Both sides vulnerable.

	♠AKQ105 ♥A ♦AJ4 ♣10762

West	North	East	South
1♥	Dbl.	Pass	1♠
2♥	4♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

Both Wests laid down the heart king, and both declarers, after winning with the blank ace, cashed the ace of trumps and led low to the nine, but at that juncture they parted company. At Table 1 South evidently decided that since the club ace was almost surely offside, the only chance for the contract depending on finding West with the king and queen of diamonds as well, so he led a diamond and (West playing low) put in dummy's jack. East won and shifted to a low club. Contract was doomed as West cashed two club tricks, exiting with the diamond queen.

The other declarer gave more careful thought to the bidding and the opening lead, and he decided that West was not apt to have both diamond honors in addition to all the other high cards he probably held—that he would have doubled one spade (for a takeout) with such all-around strength. So this South tried a different maneuver. After drawing trumps, he led a diamond and (West playing low) put up the ace, then hopefully led the diamond four. His hope was fully realized. It would have done East no good to put up the diamond king; he ducked, and the trick went to West's blank honor. Now, if West returned a heart he would establish South's jack for a diamond discard from dummy, and a club return would set up South's king.

It is quite true that West could have scotched this play by going in with the diamond queen immediately, but how many defenders are that good?

Visitors Here to Attend Veiled Prophet Ball

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

VEILED PROPHET week has become a favorite time for entertaining out-of-town visitors. Hosts and hostesses, fortunate enough to have tickets, take their guests to the ball and often to a supper party afterward.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Niedringhaus, 9445 Ladue road, have with them their son-in-law and two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. DeMenocal, who recently moved to a new home in Rye, N.Y., from New York City, and their daughter, Miss Barbara, who is living in New York and has appeared on the stage there. Mrs. Niedringhaus, a former Queen, will sit with other favorites of the Veiled Prophet in a special box during the coronation ceremony.

Mr. De Menocal will return East after the ball. His wife, the former Miss Gay Niedringhaus, will return East Wednesday, while Miss Barbara will stay here until Thanksgiving day.

Parties are being given every day for 10 days in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Rutledge H. Deas of Shreveport, La., who arrived last Wednesday to be guests until Oct. 10 of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome F. Kircher, 41 Picardy lane, Ladue. Mr. and Mrs. Deas, who traveled in Europe with the Kirchers last fall, are former St. Louisans and were their neighbors in Picardy lane.

Mr. and Mrs. Deas will attend the Veiled Prophet ball tomorrow night with Mr. and Mrs. Kircher, as will six out-of-town guests from North Brook, Ill., near Chicago. They are the Kirchers' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Lydon, Mr. and Mrs. Rankin S. Lashmet and Mr. and Mrs. E. Sawyer Smith. Mrs. Smith was Miss Gerald Ann Jones, a St. Louisan. They will all be guests at the Kircher home. After the ball they will attend the supper dance at the St. Louis Woman's Club.

Former St. Louisans Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Holliday of Kansas City, Mo., and their son, Joseph W. Jr., will attend the ball with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Reeve, but will stay at the home of Mrs. Horton Watkins, Mr. Holliday's sister. Mrs. Holliday was Miss Olive Moffitt, a St. Louisan.

Dr. and Mrs. Emmett Allen of San Francisco will be here tomorrow to be guests at the ball of Dr. and Mrs. Roland S. Kieffer, 23 Clermont lane, and the University Club supper afterward. The visitors will depart two days later.

Miss Diane Downey of Los Angeles is the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. J. Thruston Farrar, 6409 Clayton road, Clayton. Miss Downey will attend the Veiled Prophet ball and Queen's Supper tomorrow night with the Farrars.

Debutantes Honored at Breakfast.

THREE DEBUTANTES of this season, Miss Alice Esther Hager, Miss Janet Ann MacCarthy and Miss Natalie Moffitt Reeve, were guests of honor yesterday at a breakfast given by Dr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Trigg, 7227 Greenway drive, University City. The three young women will be among the maids of honor tomorrow night at the Veiled Prophet Ball. They are the daughters, respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Hager, Mr. and Mrs. Minard T. MacCarthy and Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Reeve.

About 45 guests attended the party, mostly debutantes and their escorts. Others were the parents of the honorees, Miss Reeve's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Sam J. Bland, Mr. and Mrs. Fitz L. Sargeant, and the Triggs' son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Charles Mosby III.

Autumn decorations were featured at the party and a horn of plenty from which spilled chrysanthemums and brightly colored leaves provided a centerpiece for the buffet table.

Woman's Club After-Ball Party.

FOR THE FIRST time in its 52-year-old history, the St. Louis Woman's Club will have an after-the-ball party Tuesday night following the coronation of the new Veiled Prophet Queen in Kiel Auditorium. In fact the Woman's Club has gone all out this year for festivities to honor His Mysterious Majesty of Khorassan. Wednesday night 125 children, sons and daughters of members and their friends, will view the parade from the front terrace, which is being roped off. Afterward the children will be taken indoors for a plate supper and sent home.

For the after-the-ball party an orchestra will play for dancing from 10:30 to 2 o'clock and supper will be served buffet style from 11 to 1. About 225 guests will attend. Decorations, in the Prophet's colors, will be emphasized in the bands of gold glitter cloth and purple satin on the buffet table which is to be lighted by candles in silver candelabra.

The following members have made reservations: Mrs. Jerome F. Kircher, club president; Mrs. Joseph W. White, Mrs. Randall Foster, Mrs. H. Edgar Jenkins, Mrs. John A. Latzer, Mrs. John H. Radford, Mrs. Richard G. Baumhoff, Mrs. William R. Gentry Jr., Mrs. James Hudson Jones, Mrs. Robert N. Arthur, Mrs. Herbert G. Armistead, Mrs. J. Carl Anderson, Mrs. Richard Bradshaw, Mrs. Robert A. Getting Set For a Change In Season

By Josephine Lowman

MOST of us let down some in hot weather, and this is good for us. We get outdoors more but may actually have less regular regulated exercise. Because of this relaxed mood, which is apt to show in diet as well as exercise habits, many women pick up five to 10 pounds during the summer. When September rolls past we begin to tire of our sun tan and freckles and our less precise summer hairdo seems a little shabby when we think of our more formal winter clothes. In other words, we are in the mood to "do ourselves over" a bit.

One spot which is a favorite landing space for fatty deposits is the area just below the waist and on the upper hipline. I am sure you recognize the little pads of fat I am talking about. There are many exercises for these but I want to remind you again of a couple I have given you before because they are so effective.

Lie down on the floor on your back. Let your arms rest on the floor, extending straight out from your shoulders. Palms are on the floor. Bend both knees up, lifting feet from the floor. Cling to the floor with your fingertips and keep your knees bent as you roll from side to side, slapping the thighs at the end of each roll.

Another for those little pads on the upper back hipline just below the waist; stand straight, with your feet separated. Raise both arms sideward, shoulder height. Bend over to the left, trying to touch the left hand to the floor. As you do this raise the right arm upward by the right ear and hold it there as you bend. Raise the trunk and return arms to shoulder height position. This time bend to the right and raise the left arm up by the left ear. Raise trunk and return arms to shoulder height position. Continue, alternating left and right.

If you missed the nine-day reducing diet which gives you a loss of from five to 10 pounds in nine days' time, and would like to have it, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for the nine-day diet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of the Post-Dispatch.

Flower Show Course Planned

By Fay Profilet

THE East Central District of Federated Garden Clubs of Missouri will offer Course 4 for Flower Arrangement and Flower Show School to be given tomorrow, Wednesday and Thursday in Clayton City Hall. The course will be conducted in accordance with the rulings of the National Council of State Garden Clubs, Inc.

After registration from 9 to 9:30 a.m. tomorrow, Mrs. James R. Searles will lecture on "Flower Show Practice" and "Horticulture." Following luncheon at 1 p.m., Mrs. Searles will resume her instruction. An ardent horticulturalist, she has served in many capacities at flower shows including those given by the Associated Garden Clubs of Kirkwood, Greater St. Louis Flower Show Association and the Federated Garden Clubs of Missouri.

Flower arrangement will be taught Wednesday by Mrs. Orval C. Sutter, who will start her lecture at 9:30 a.m. Mrs. Sutter is vice pesident of the Federated Garden Clubs of Missouri and for four years served as state chairman for Flower Show Schools. Written examinations for those who are training to become judges of flower shows will be held Thursday. Mrs. Ralph Ehrlich is in charge of reservations for the course.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Dear Martha:

I HAVE a son 21 years old. A good friend of mine has a daughter a year or so younger. She is a nice child but not very attractive and even though my son has tried to be polite to her, he certainly isn't interested in her. However, my friend has tried her best to get my son to take her daughter out. She has invited him to dinner over there, obviously to throw the two young people together, and she even wanted him to go with the family on a brief vacation this summer. My son has talked to his father and me about it. He doesn't want to be rude, but he is interested in another girl right now and he doesn't know what to do about this. Can you give us any suggestion?

MOM.

I think he'll just have to keep turning down her invitations and hoping Mama will take the hint. There's no reason for his spending a lot of time with someone he doesn't care about, and it certainly wouldn't be discourteous to decline because of a previous engagement. When the two families are together, he should be polite to the girl, just as he would be to her parents, but he doesn't have to take her out. If it gets any worse, you can drop the hint by telling your friend about the nice girl that your son has been dating.

Dear Martha:

I AM A GIRL 24 YEARS OLD and I recently became engaged to a boy I have been going with several years. All the time we were going together he was talking about the nice home he would build for us, but the minute I accepted his ring, he changed his mind and decided we would live with his mother. I like her but not that well. She already has tried to tell us what kind of wedding to have and I can just see what would happen if we moved in with her. When I tried to tell him that I didn't like the idea, he accused me of being unfair to her and said he thought we should be grateful that she would let us stay in her home. I'm about ready to break the engagement over this as I think it's pretty important to our future happiness.

NELL.

So do I. He has shown himself in a pretty poor light to wait until he had the ring on your finger to spring an idea he knew you wouldn't like. I believe you would be making the mistake of your life to move into her home under the circumstances. Better to break the engagement than to let someone else run your life. If you take a firm stand, you may bring him around to your way of thinking, but have it very well understood before you go to the altar.

IN ANSWER TO William: Teh Veiled Phrophet's Ball began as a Harvest Festival in 1878. It was suggested to businessmen by Charles E. Slayback. His brother, Alonzo Slayback, gave the festival its name. The first Queen was crowned in 1894. Incidentally, additional material is available at the Missouri Historical Association.

An Encore for Meg Myles

Music Store That Fired Singer Now Sells Her Records

By Mary Kimbrough

MEG MYLES, a new face—and voice—in Hollywood, may be forgiven if she finds a little ironic glee in the thought that the music store which once fired her for "incompetence" now sells her recordings.

It was only a few months ago that Meg was selling other singers' records to pay the board bill until she could catch on in Hollywood. But now she seems to be on her way and there's no time to worry about finding odd jobs between movie assignments.

Meg, blue-eyed and red-haired, has been in St. Louis over the weekend to help publicize her first major film, "The Phenix City Story," opening tomorrow at the Fox Theater. But the way she landed the role was unusual even in Hollywood where anything can happen.

"The two men who wrote 'The Phenix City Blues' asked me to record it, hoping maybe they could sell it to the producers of the film. They hadn't been commissioned to compose a song, but were just taking a chance. Well, when the producers heard the recording, they not only bought it for the show—but they wrote in a role for me."

HER OTHER ROLES have been less significant and one even landed on the cutting room floor. But in addition to her movie commitments, Meg now is becoming known as a night club singer, so she's hoping that the dreary days of trying to land a job are at last over. She embarks on a six-month night club tour after finishing her current publicity job with the film and after that comes a new record contract with a major company.

She wants to continue to combine singing and acting and obtain even meatier roles in the future. And it's a natural ambition. Her mother, although never a professional actress, was active in Little Theater work, and her father is a musician.

"I have never wanted anything but the stage from the time I was 5 when I started taking dancing lessons," she said. "My first memory, though, of a public performance was one Columbus day when I had to recite a poem. The reason I remember it was that my mother made me wear long three-quarter sox and I was mad at her and Columbus and everyone else."

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

MEG MYLES . . . "THEY WROTE IN A ROLE FOR ME."

She appeared in plays in high school at Tracy, Calif., where her family had moved from her birthplace, Seattle, Wash., and later at the College of the Pacific in Stockton, Calif. In fact, her first break in Hollywood came as a result of a college musical comedy. An agent happened to catch the show and invited Meg and another actor to movie town.

"I took my first test for 'Battle Cry'," she said, "but when the picture was released, the role had been cut out. Then I had a brief two-line part in 'Dragnet,' and played a dumb girl type in 'New York Confidential.' My most recent role is in 'The Brass Ring,' which hasn't been released yet. So far the films have been the gangster type but one of these days I hope to go into other kinds of pictures."

SHE ALSO HOPES to have time for her other major interest, designing. Right now she makes many of her own clothes, but she'd like a sideline of designing dresses in addition to her night club and theater work.

But that will have to wait. After dreaming of the stage all her life, and seeing that dream come true, Meg is keeping her sights on spotlights and scripts. Needle and thread can come later.

Question Of Kissing Your Date

By Elinor Williams

WHEN do you let a boy kiss you goodnight—on the first date or after your second date? A junior high school girl asks in her letter:

"I am 13 years old and my mother and I have brought this problem up several times. My mother thinks even after the first date that I shouldn't let a boy kiss me and I think it's okeh. I would like your true opinion."

Answer—Kisses are not decided by the number of times you date a boy. The number of dates actually has little to do with it.

There's no rule that you should let a boy kiss you on a certain date, but not on other dates. The deciding factor is this:

You let a boy kiss you when you know him well enough to like him . . . really like him a "special" way, more than you like anybody else, maybe more than you've ever liked anybody else . . . not just because it's the second or third time he's taken you to a movie.

Most smart girls do not kiss a boy on their first date for two reasons: (1) They don't know him well enough yet to know whether they really like him "specially" or not. (2) It makes a girl and her kisses appear too "easy to get" to a boy . . . and people often don't value what's too easy to get. They think it's for everybody and anybody, so it has no appeal value. See?

With some boys, you might have several dates and not want to kiss them at all. On the other hand, you might like another boy very much at once and like him more as you know him better . . . and you might let him kiss you on the second date or after several dates, depending on how you feel about it, not on the number of dates alone.

International Pattern

BIKI, steeped in Italian traditions and tastes (she is the granddaughter of the famous opera composer Puccini), has made a point in her clothes designing of knowing American women. Keeping her finger on the fashion pulse of these American women who have wholeheartedly accepted her as one of their own, she produced this one-piece dress cut with utter simplicity, touched with chic detail. The high bosom line is separated just below the bust with a straight center band, ornamented with buttons. Below the waistline in front, the skirt has released inverted pleats, but the back has two gores, only slightly flared. Make in wool, tweeds or crepes, in silks like faille or shantung, in linen or novelty cotton for resort wear.

This pattern is cut to Designer Measurements, not Standard Pattern Measurements.

A Big Surprise

Her Dream House Is an Ancient Barn

By Mary Margaret McBride

THE noise that rises above the clack of my typewriter is the sawing and hammering of carpenters. They've just started work on an incredible project — remodeling a 200-year-old barn as a dwelling place for me who has spent years making fun of people who remodel barns.

Miss McBride

The enterprise grew out of my dream of a brand-new little house on the side of a mountain, a little house with fireplaces in every room and more bathrooms than bedrooms. A year ago I thought it would be finished by now, but somehow it never got beyond the blueprint dream stage.

Two weeks ago a frenzy seized me. I decided I couldn't—wouldn't—wait any longer for my house. That was when Stella thought of The Honest Builder in Woodstock. On the telephone he said he wasn't contemplating taking on anything until spring, but promised amiably to look the situation over. When he appeared, it turned out that he was still recovering from a serious automobile accident. That was the reason he had intended to wait until April or May before starting a job.

HE WAS LACKADAISICAL about the dream house and went around squinting at distances, measuring and muttering, looking sadder and more discouraging by the minute. Then he noticed the old red barn and said to Stella, "What's in there?"

I said, "Swallows," but Stella moved right over and opened the sagging door.

He wandered around in a happy daze murmuring. "Oak! Butternut! By George, look at that handmade hardware and those hand-hammered nails! Oh, I can see this, with the adzed beams showing, bluestone fireplace, a living room 34 by 40. . . ."

SO THAT IS HOW The Honest Builder completed his convalescence in five minutes and went to work again. It is also how a 200-year-old barn, which once was part of a farm owned by Robert Livingston, second Governor of New York State, on a grant from the King of Holland, has supplented my dream house. Maybe it will turn out all right—everybody but me seems to be having a wonderful time.

Stella and The Honest Builder have found some brick stamped with the date 1761, an old well covered with a stone hidden by poison ivy, great flat slabs of wonderful local bluestone which made the cementless foundation for the barn and will now serve for my patio.

A patio in the Catskills is just one of the many anachronisms the old barn will see before The Honest Builder has finished. My kitchen, I hear, will be equipped with an eye-level oven, push-button garbage disposer, a dishwashing machine that does everything but put the dishes back on the shelves. But it will also have an old-fashioned fireplace and a colonial rocking chair to stand before it.

Why, it actually sounds wonderful, doesn't it? Maybe better than the dream house.

The Power of Love

By Ruth Millett

ALL those batteries of tests used by psychologists to fit men into the right kind of jobs don't work any better than the old-fashioned way of a boss choosing his workers himself.

RUTH MILLETT

That conclusion has been reached by Dr. Lee J. Cronbach, president-elect of the American Psychological Association.

I suspect that some day it will be admitted by the psychologists that a young person can pick the right mate without any help from the tests that aim at determining whether or not a man is likely to make a good husband or a girl a good wife.

Such tests look with a frown on the only child, the child of divorced or unhappy parents, the marriage between persons of different religious faiths, etc.

And yet some of the happiest marriages seem to be between young men and women who have all sorts of obstacles in their paths.

What the psychologists can't seem to give enough credit to is the great power of love.

If a young man and woman are deeply in love and determined to make a good life for themselves what does it matter if he is an only child, or her parents are divorced, or one of them was brought up in one faith and the other in another?

With love for each other, obstacles seem to melt away.

The girl whose parents were unable to hold their own home together may strive even harder than another wife to keep her own marriage happy.

The only child may know better than anyone else how wonderful a big family is and decide to have a large family himself.

Differing religious beliefs don't need to lead to bitterness. They can lead to tolerance and understanding.

And so it goes. The psychologists can give tests and make predictions about the possibility of a happy marriage between two persons. But they can't really evaluate the great power of love.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

"MY husband wants us to take dancing lessons. We are both over 50. Don't you think it's silly at our age?—Mrs. M."

No! Indeed it is not silly. Do look around you. At your age men and women are just beginning to enjoy themselves. Judging from your letter you are depressed. Why not have a physical check-up and plan a personal good grooming program. You will look better and feel younger, and then you will be able to keep up with your husband's enthusiasm for life. You let him down when you let yourself down.

"MY HAIR is curly and fuzzy. When I was young it was considered cute and pretty, but now with gray hair I think it makes me look older and foolish. Have you any idea of what I can do?—F.A."

You are quite right. Frizzes and curls are not particularly flattering to maturity. Massage your scalp with cosmetic oil, brush your hair night and morning. Have your hair cut and contoured close to the head. Wear smooth hats—no fussy feathers and trimming. You need a sleek hair line both as to hairdo and hat.

New Woolen

A new woolen that looks like chinchilla but is brocade-cut is being used for classic types of coats. Among the coats are the balmacaan, cut with raglan shoulders, a miniature back vent, and welt seaming. This coat has real leather buttons. Buttons for the double-breasted, back-belted boys' coats are equally attractive, among them being large white pearl platters. Leather piping also is featured while bright velvet accents are noteworthy on some of the tweed coats.

Cut cooked smoked tongue into toothpick-size strips; add to a shredded green cabbage salad. Serve with crusty rolls for lunch.

COUGHS FROM COMMON COLDS THAT HANG ON

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion. It goes into the bronchial system to help loosen cough, clear throat and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood cresote by special process with other time-tested medicines for coughs due to colds. It contains no narcotics.

Fix It Yourself

By Hubbard Cobb

Reducing Your Fuel Bills

COME January of next year a friend of ours is going to take his family on a two-week vacation to some nice warm spot where the swimming and fishing are just fine. He's paying for this little trip out of money he started saving about six years ago on his fuel bills. He was able to save this much on his heating fuel bills simply because he set out and made his house as heat-proof as he could make it.

It cost him some money, of course, but this was soon paid back in fuel savings and after that, the rest of the money saved was pure gravy.

THE FIRST THING HE DID was to insulate the attic floor and then he had a firm blow insulation into the sidewalls. He installed tight fitting storm windows on all windows and storm doors on all outside doors. He then went to work and installed weather-stripping on the inside windows as well as the doors.

His next project was to go around and caulk all the cracks and seams in the outside walls. He found these where the siding joined the window and door frames, at the cornice where the roof joined the walls and at the base of the house where the house joined the foundation walls. Each year, before the heating system was turned on, he had a serviceman come and check and adjust the equipment so it would produce the most heat for the least amount of fuel.

HE PURCHASED a good quality thermostat to replace the beat-up one that was not doing a very good job of things and the thermostat is adjusted as little as possible. During the average day it's set for 70 degrees. At night, when the family goes to bed, it's turned down five degrees.

There are a lot of ways to make money to pay for a winter vacation but few are as easy as just cutting down on your winter fuel bills.

Crochet Pattern 743: Misses' Sizes 32-34; 36-38 included. Use 3-ply fingering yarn of mercerized crochet and knitting cotton.

Send 25 cents in coins for a pattern—add 5 cents for each pattern for first-class mailing. Send to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Needlecraft Dept., P.O. Box 136, Old Chelsea Station, New York 11, N.Y. Print pattern number, name, address, zone.

Look for smart gift ideas in our Laura Wheeler Needlecraft Catalogue. Crochet, knitting, embroidery, lovely things to wear. Dolls, iron-ons, quilts, aprons, novelties—easy, fun to make. Send 25 cents for your copy of this book now. You will want to order every new design in it.

Broiler main course: squares of cooked ham or luncheon meat are put on skewers and broilers along with drained canned peaches. Both ham and peaches are basted with a sauce made by simmering a cup of the peach syrup with a couple of tablespoons of lime or lemon juice and a dash of nutmeg.

Possible Showers in Offing

—Associated Press Wirephoto.
Low temperatures and areas of precipitation expected tonight.

Considerable cloudiness through tomorrow with a likelihood of occasional showers or thundershowers starting by tonight was forecast for the St. Louis area. Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren said temperatures will range tomorrow from about 60 to the middle 70s.

As rainfall for the year here continued to lag almost four inches below normal, heavy showers measuring up to five inches fell in some areas in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Louisiana in the 24-hour period ended early today. Precipitation in St. Louis for the year is 26.27 inches.

Minimum temperatures in Missouri this morning varied from 53 at Vichy to 62 at Joplin, and over the nation from 20 at Fraser, Colo., to 79 at Galveston, Tex., and Yuma, Ariz. It was 60 in St. Louis and 58 at the Lambert-St. Louis weather station.

Highs in the nation yesterday ranged from 47 at Marquette, Mich., to 104 at Yuma and Gila Bend., Ariz., Blythe and El Centro, Calif. Wahlgren pointed out that record high temperature in St. Louis for this date, 92, was set a year ago.

SHE DANCED at his Wedding

By Vida Hurst

CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

ARTHUR left his office by the private door which opened into the corridor. He had given Donna no instructions so she had nothing to do but feel sorry for herself. Despising womanly tears, especially her own, she wept copiously but briefly.

"I must control myself," she thought. "Some one may come any minute. I'd better take some of Arthur's aspirin."

The idea of taking aspirin helped until she caught sight of her tear-streaked face in the mirror above the washstand. She was splashing cold water on her reddened eyes when Peter entered the outer office. Donna had not closed the connecting door so Peter sauntered in, asking cheerfully, "What's new?"

If only she had been able to apply fresh make-up before his arrival but maybe he wouldn't notice what she was doing.

"Nothing much," Donna said without looking at him.

"Where's Art?"

"He was here earlier but he went out again."

"Without saying where we could reach him?"

"That's right."

DONNA continued to powder her nose and said nothing.

"Obviously there is more to this than meets the eye," Peter said. Leaving the desk he walked across the room and turned her face to the light. "Why were you crying?"

"It was silly of me, Pete. I'm sorry."

"But WHY?" Was it because of Arthur?"

"In a way but I'd rather not talk about it if you don't mind."

"I DO mind. What did he say to upset you?"

"It wasn't what he said exactly. It's the situation. I shouldn't have tried to work here. I'll be a constant troublemaker."

"For whom? Arthur and me or Enid?"

"She was furious about the way he behaved Saturday night. She said he made a fool of himself."

His eyes burned into here. "If Enid said that it was to throw a smoke screen over her own behavior."

"That's what I thought but Arthur doesn't agree with us. She kept him awake last night arguing about it."

Peter said savagely, "Good. Even so he has no right to take it out on you."

"Oh, he wasn't. At least he didn't mean to. He's so in the habit of confiding in me . . . I can't keep from feeling sorry for him."

"Horse feathers. He doesn't need any sympathy. I suppose now you want to break our engagement?"

"We may as well since we both know it can't mean anything."

PETER'S expression was grim. "It means more than you realize. As I told you before I refuse to release you until the six months are up."

"Oh, Pete, what's the use? It may be years before I fall in love again. Maybe I never will. I trusted Arthur so completely. His desertion has been a terrible shock. I can't get over it in six months."

"You'll never get over it if you start feeling sorry for yourself."

His tone infuriated her. "Oh, all right then. Nothing can induce me to marry you but I'll keep my promise. We'll be engaged since it means so much to you."

Seizing her in his arms he kissed her with such force that she would have fallen if he had not held her. Neither of them heard the outer door open until Arthur stood before them.

Arthur spoke with exaggerated courtesy. "A business office is not the place for a romantic interlude. If you will get the heck out of here I shall appreciate it."

Donna's cheeks were crimson as she sailed past him but Peter said jauntily, "You're right, Captain. But you of all people ought to understand it's not almost possible to observe the rules."

Peter went into his own office and closed the door.

Donna did not speak to either of them again that day. It was an impossible situation but she refused to quit working until they requested it. After all she had invested her inheritance, such as it was, in this project. She had a right to protect her investment regardless of Arthur's marriage to Enid or her own engagement to Peter.

Popular Junior Dress

Successor to the chemise type of dress, the "shift" that is fitted through hipline but loose above is a popular junior type. It often is combined with a slim coat. Wool, jersey, corduroy and even velvet are fabrics liked for this style of costume. Also in the same mood are the middy dresses in tweed and fine black wool, crisply tailored and accented with occasional touches of white.

Uncle Ray's Column

By Ramon Coffman

ONE STRANGE custom of ancient Egypt had to do with rolls of paper, or papyrus, which carried writing. These rolls were placed in the coffin by friends and relatives at the time of the funeral.

The rolls were purchased from priests, and contained prayers and words which were expected to produce charms and magic spells. Drawings of various kinds were placed in the midst of the writing.

Rolls of that kind have been found when ancient coffins were opened. Several rolls were translated into English, and were combined in a printed volume known as the Book of the Dead.

The ancient Egyptians knew nothing about printing. If one of them could come back to life, he would be amazed to see a printed book. Perhaps most of all he would be astonished to find Egypt's holy writings from several coffins in a single volume.

AN ANCIENT ARTIST MADE THIS PICTURE OF PRIESTS AND WOMEN MOURNING THE DEATH OF AN EGYPTIAN.

Q. Why were holy writings placed in a coffin?

The relatives and friends wanted to supply the dead person with a guide to help him to meet dangers and win a happy future life.

Q. Did they believe that a soul lived after death?

A. They believed in something like a soul. This may also be described as a spirit or double. It was supposed to look like the person who had died.

Q. What dangers did a spirit meet?

A. Among them were lakes of fire and huge serpents. The spirit was expected to repeat magic words at the right itme. If that was done, there would be escape from the flames, also from the bite or crushing power of a serpent.

Judging by one picture in the Book of the Dead, Egyptians felt that they needed something besides magic words. In this picture a spirit is shown striking the head of a mighty serpent with a spear.
